POETRY.

POWER OF MUSIC.

Strolling in a rural district
On a mild autumnal day,
My ear caught the sound of music
In tune and measure lively, gay.

Listen to that little charmer
Whose voice comes floating on the breeze,
'Tis the daughter of the farmer
In cottage 'nestled 'mong the trees.

She's unconscious of the power
That her soul inspiring strain
Has o'er list'ner at this hour,
Giving pleasure, soothing pain.

I would not exchange position
With a Monarch wearing crown,
For this hour, such fruition
Will all care and troubles down.

Hear her trilling, of the beauties
Of this Autumn, sunset scene;
Her voice 'companied by her lute is
The heighth of pleasure, it I deem.

Hardened stoic must that soul be,
If not moved by notes like these,
If not lifted 'bove things earthly
Nor on lofty thoughts doth seize.

Why did all creating Nature
Form a melody like this,
If not good for the creature,
Giving mortal joy and bliss.

Cautiously the list'ner lessened
The intervening space between
Where the list'ner stood, and listened
To the carol and the scene.

This her theme and gist of action,
Thus she warbled out this song,
Nor courting any one's attraction
As her fingers swept the keys among.

Being now by woodbine lattice
With gray of ev'ning hov'ring o'er us,
She unconscious who there at is,
I did dare to join in chorus.

How she started when she heard me;
How surprised at one so near;
Yet with politeness, she bade me
Come within and take a chair.

SONG.

I love the months of Autumn—
I love its balmy air—
Ev'nings so mild and pleasant,
The day so bright and fair.

CHORUS—So I will sing this roundelay,
And tribute give to Autumn day.

The trees with fruit are laden,
With apple, peach and pear
For hand of youth and maiden,
And vine with clusters rare.

CHORUS—

The foliage of the forests
Are tinged with colors gay—
Nature seems to be at rest
Clothed in her fine array.

CHORUS—

'Tis harvest time for nutting
Among the young and fair;
The youth the trees are climbing,
The girls to baskets bear.

CHORUS—

With permission, as I left her,
To call on her again, I might,
So I raised my tile in answer
Politely bidding her good-night.

—Amateur.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE LAWYER'S SECRET.

It was a luxuriously furnished room, where a glowing grate threw genial light and warmth upon the occupants, that General Langton, lawyer and millionaire, listened with bated breath and pallid cheeks to a low and melodious voice that told a story of a life.

The speaker, a beautiful woman of about thirty, yet ten years younger than Mr. Langton, reclined in a low, cushioned chair, her attitude bespeaking the ease which wealth gives, but her face was full of deepest anguish as her lips recounted the story.

'You loved me,' she said, gently, yet sadly, 'I loved you as I never loved anyone before, although I am a widow. That you knew, but did not know my husband's name. By my uncle's last request I dropped it, and took his with the property he left. Do not look at me tenderly, Gerald, do not shake my voice or my heart, for when you know who I am you will not repeat the offer you made me, and which, heaven is my witness, I tried to avert.'

'Let your conscience be at rest there,' said her listener, in a grave yet tender voice; 'you have never given me one hope, Maude. By what instinct I knew that you loved me I can never tell—something in your eyes, some tone of your voice betrayed you. If, as you say, something in your past life does separate us, you have been no coquette to torment me with false hopes. But, Maude, tell me again, whatever stands between us, you love me?'

'I love you,' she said, gravely, 'and it is because I love you that I will not let you link your honorable name with that of the wretch who was my husband. I was very young—not sixteen—when he came to make a visit to some friends living at Grassbank. Uncle Richard has a country seat near the village. I first met Alexander at a picnic, where he was the very life of the party, everybody's cavalier, courteous to all, full of wit and animation and service to all. I believe every girl on the grounds thought she had captivated him, his attentions were so well divided and yet so impressive to each one. He claimed to be no more than a salesman in a large wholesale house with a good salary, but he had the manners of a gentleman of good education, and the most perfect beauty of form and face that I ever saw in a man.

'It was not long before it was evident that he wished to win my love, and he had an easy task. Such love as a child of sixteen can give I gave him.

'He was the impersonation of every hero of poetry and fiction with whom my limited reading had made me familiar. School-girl like, I had made an idle hero, and fitted this, my first admirer, with all imaginary perfections.

'From the first Uncle Richard disliked him, pronounced him false and shallow, and assuring me that my personal attractions had not won his heart; but the fact of my being an heiress to a large property had gained the protestations in which I so firmly believed.

'It is a painful story to me now, Gerald. Let us suffice that I have lived in a world of pleasant dreams while Alexander remained at Gratsbank. When he left me he carried my promise to be his wife at Christmas.

'I think if my money had depended on Uncle Richard, my marriage might have been prevented by his threatening to disinherit me, but both from my father and mother I had inherited money that made me independent in a peculiary sense of his control or consent.

'Most grudgingly, however, uncle did consent, after searching inquiry about Alexander, resulting in no worse report than that his employers thought him fast, idle, and just the man to be a fortune-hunter.

'Even then my dear uncle would have protected my settling it upon myself, but with the reckless generosity of extreme youth I refused to have this done. Never, I was firmly convinced, would my adored Alexander wrong me in any way.

'For a year after the splendid wedding that made me Alexander's wife I was very happy. I was too ignorant of value to understand that we were living far beyond our income, enjoyed to the utmost the luxuries around me—the constant gayety that was in such strong contrast to the school routine from which I had been released.

'Then began a life of neglect, often of quarreling, when I objected to my husband's course of conduct—his drinking, his extravagance, and his late hours. Still I found my our pleasures in society, and a renewal of some of my own favorite studies, especially language and music. I was fond, too, of water-colored painting, and made presents to my friends of specimens in that line.

'It was four years after my marriage when I was thunder-struck by Alexander asking me to request a loan from Uncle Richard, with the information that every penny of my property was gone.

'Since then I have known that a large portion of it was lost on the gaming table.

'Long before this I had lost all love for my husband. Respect had died out when I knew the dissipated life he was living, and foolish as I was I could not continue to love a man whose actions were so despicable. I refused the errand, and brought down a torrent of such great abuse that I really expected that Alexander would end by striking me.

'Day after day the request was repeated, but I would not yield. Upon my marriage Uncle Richard had sold his city residence and took up a permanent abode at Grassbank, where, knowing my husband to be an unwelcome guest, I never visited him. I wrote occasionally, but the love of years, like that of mother and child, had been so sadly strained by my persistence in marrying Alexander that even our correspondence was languid and commonplace.

'I would not, therefore, write to him to ask a favor that I knew would not be necessary without criminal recklessness of expenditure, and each refusal made my husband more furious. Then came an overwhelming blow. Alexander forged a check, and drew $10,000 of Uncle Richard's money out of the bank. I don't think my uncle would have prosecuted him had he guessed who was the forger; but he handed the whole matter over to the law as soon as it was discovered that the check was forged. It was then traced to my husband, and at the same time it was discovered that he had robbed, in the same way, his former employers.

'He had given up all work on his marriage; but when he found himself without money, his knowledge of the business enabled him to forge the note of Derkins & Co. Even if Uncle Richard had spared him for my sake this other forgery would have entitled him to penal servitude. He was sentenced to seven years, and uncle took me home, full of heavenly pity and forgiveness for the child who had treated him so ungratefully.'

'Then your husband is in prison?' said Gerald, in a hard, strained voice.

'No, no, he is dead! He died within the first year. Uncle Richard saw the death in a paper and sent the money for his burial. So, I am free; but none the less I am the widow of a convicted felon.

'But none the less,' quoted Gerald, 'the woman I honor and love above all others, and hope still to make my wife.'

It took, however, more than one interview, full of love's pleading, to win Maud from her resolution. She so honored her lover, and was so proud of his good name and the position he had attained by his talent, that her sensitive nature shrank from even the shadow of her misery upon his life.

But the victory was won at last, and the lawyer went home one evening full of a proud glad joy, for Maud had then promised to be his wife.

'If you are willing to take Alexander Hull's widow to be your wife,' she said, 'I will not oppose you any longer, for I love you with all my heart.'

He had no thought but of that glad triumph when he turned up the gas in his office. He was in the habit of making a last visit there before going up to his bedroom, in case notes or messages were left for him. One lay there on this evening, a shabby-looking envelope, but directed in a bold, handsome hand, which he recognized at once.

He tore it open. Afrer a few words of introduction, the note ran:

'You did the best you could on my trial, but the facts were too strong for you. I have now a last favor to ask of you. I die as you know, at noon to-morrow. You, as my lawyer, can see me at any time. Will you come as soon as you receive this and win the gratitude of the man you know as JAMES FOX?'

'The man I know as James Fox,' muttered the lawyer; 'the smooth, plausible scoundrel who actually made me believe him innocent of the hideous murder for which he was convicted. I can find extenuation for some murders, but the cold-blooded assassination of an old man for money only was revolting. How he deceived me, though, for a time. And how he exulted over his success in doing so when he saw facts were too strong. Shall I go to him? I suppose I must. It is still very early.'

It was not yet midnight when Gerald Langton was ushered into the cell of the man who, in a few short hours, was to meet the extreme penalty of the law for the worst of all crimes.

Yet there was nothing revolting in the appearance of the criminal. His dress was neat, his hair carefully arranged, his mustache faultless, his hands white and refined-looking. He rose from his seat upon the bed as his lawyer entered the cell.

'I knew you would come,' he said, courteously, 'though you were offended at my want of frankness. Well, that is all over. You will not refuse the last request of a dying man, Mr. Langton?'

'Not if I can grant it,' was the reply.

'This,' said the murderer, 'is not my first offence against the law. Some years ago I was sentenced to a term of years for forgery. By a strange accident I escaped the penalty. On the same day James Fox was sentenced to two years for petty larceny, and we were sent together to prison. James Fox—my comrade, understand, not myself—was deranged, but his lawyers had not been able to save him, as his aberration was not always apparent. When we were entered upon the books of the prison, imagine my amazement when my fellow prisoner gave my name for his own. Like a flash I saw the advantage to be gained by the deception, and allowed the error to pass. My companion committed suicide, and I escaped with two years' imprisonment instead of seven. But I feared recognition, and went to Canada. There I lived by my wits until a year ago, when I returned to try to raise money for my wife, and thought I saw an easier plan by committing the crime for which I die to-morrow. But I want to see my wife. I wronged her—I robbed her—but heaven is witness I love her. When I was in prison she dropped my name and took her own again. So it is not for Mrs. Alexander Hull you must ask, but for Mrs. Maud Temple.'

Was the room reeling—the ceiling falling—the wall closing around him? Gerald Langton felt as if they were as the name fell upon his ears. Maude—his Maude—the wife of this cool villain, who talked of his hideous crimes as if they were ordinary events? Well, he knew that to carry this man's message was to separate himself from Maude forever. Never would she let him marry the widow of a murderer. Very rapidly all the terrible facts passed, one after another, and he said: 'If you love her why add a misery to her life? She may live down the old pain you caused her; why, for a selfish gratification, will you make her whole life a misery?'

'She was my wife. I would bid her farewell.'

'She is not your wife. Your own crimes have released her from any allegiance to you.'

'You know her?'

'Yes. I know what she has suffered, and beg of you to let her still believe you died years ago.'

'She is happy?'

'Scarcely that. Such wounds as hers never heal entirely, but it is cruelty to tear them open when they are quiet.'

'Has she married?'

'No. She is still your widow.'

'It is hard to deny myself one more sight of her face, and the hope I had that she would say that she forgave me.'

'Think of her, not yourself.'

There was a long silence in the cell.

Every throb of Gerald Langton's heart was pain to him, but Alexander Hull sat in moody silence, evidently reluctant to give up his wish.

At last he spoke.

'You have been very good to me. Tell me, now, if you have any personal reason for your request. Perhaps you love her.'

'I do,' was the brief reply. 'She has promised to be my wife.'

'Then it will be James Fox who is hanged to-morrow. I meant to give my real name, but I will carry my secret to my grave. It may be in another world that the little self-denial will be a plea for me. Go now, you may trust me.'

He kept his word, and Gerald Langton his secret.

When Maude, a few weeks later, became his wife, she little guessed the terrible ordeal that he had spared her, or the added disgrace that belonged to the name she had given up.

A Remarkable Month.

The month of October has been a remarkable one in respect to the weather. There has been an almost total absence of "Indian Summer," which is generally regarded in this country as the most charming period of the year. The month of October has ordinarily been distinguished for the mildness of the temperature, the bright clear skies, and magnificent sunsets, and the general purity of the atmosphere which renders its advent one of welcome. This year this order of things has been entirely changed, and a more disagreeable combination of the elements than those that have visited us for the past month it would be difficult to find. Thirteen days of rain is too much for October. Besides, it sadly interfered with bass fishing.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The President has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

In furtherance of the custom of this people at the closing of each year to engage upon a day set apart for that purpose in a special festival of praise to the Giver of all good, I, Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States, do hereby designate Thursday, the 29th day of November next, as a day of national thanksgiving.

The year which is drawing to an end has been replete with evidences of Divine goodness. The prevalence of health, the fullness of the harvests, the stability of peace and order, the growth of fraternal feeling, the spread of intelligence and learning, the continued enjoyment of civil and religious liberty, all these and countless other blessings are cause for reverent rejoicing. I do, therefore, recommend that on the day above appointed the people rest from their accustomed labors, and, meeting in their several places of worship, express their devout gratitude to God that He hath dealt so bountifully with this nation, and pray that His grace and favor abide with it forever.

In witness thereof I have hereunto set my hand, and cause the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 26th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and eighth.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

By the President.

A Bequest With a History.

The following item appeared in a late issue of the Philadelphia Times. We will not vouch for its truth, but it is interesting.—Washington Star.

"Among the bequests, aggregating $50,000, made by the late James D. Stryker, of Lambertville, N. J., whose will has just been filed for probate, was one for $250 to Conrad N. Jordan, of New York city, treasurer of the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad, and for many years cashier of the Third National Bank. There is a history attached to this bequest. Years ago Mr. Jordan was clerk in the Hanover National Bank of New York city. On his way home, over the Cortlandt street ferry, one bitter night in December, he saw a lady attempt to jump from the departing ferry-boat. She had boarded the boat in advance of the gentleman to whom she was engaged and to whom she was subsequently married, and finding that he could not catch the boat she attempted to return to him. She fell into the water and disappeared beneath the mass of broken ice that filled the slip.

"Mr. Jordan jumped in after her and held her head above the freezing water until both were fished out. The risk of the venture was augmented by the fact that the lady weighed two hundred pounds. She was a daughter of the late Mr. Stryker. Mr. Jordan refused to tell his name, but Mr. Stryker discovered it after protracted inquiries, and his daughter sent Mr. Jordan $100. Mr. Jordan returned it with a note saying, in substance, that he did not save persons from death for a consideration. In place of the bill a dozen bottles of currant wine was forwarded to Mr. Jordan by Miss Stryker, with the assurance that she made it herself. Once a year until his death Mr. Stryker called upon Mr. Jordan to remind that gentleman of his gratitude. The amount that Mr. Jordan receives under the will he will invest in a souvenir of the event. He is a wealthy man."

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

Death of Ex-Gov. Randolph.

Mr. Theodore Fitz-Randolph, ex-Governor of New Jersey and ex-United States Senator from this State, died suddenly Wednesday morning last at his home in Morristown. The deceased was born on June 24, 1826, in New Brunswick, N. J., being a descendant of the Randolph family of Roanoke, Va. His father, James Fitz-Randolph, was the proprietor of the Fredonian, a Whig paper at New Brunswick. After a common-school training at the Rutgers Grammar School, Theodore learned the printers' trade and set type for his father's paper, for which he afterwards wrote. He then moved to Mississippi, where he married Miss Coleman, a grand-daughter of the late Chief-Justice Marshall.

Leaving Mississippi he returned to New Jersey, taking up his residence in Hudson County until 1852, when he went to his late residence in Morristown. Two years previous to this he had been elected by the Democrats to the New Jersey Assembly, where he declined the Speakership. Later he acted as the Chairman of the Special Committee of the "Peace Congress," and was the mover of a measure to afford relief for the families of volunteer soldiers.

In 1860 he was elected a State Senator to fill an unexpired term, and in 1862 was re-elected, serving until 1865. At the beginning of this term he was appointed Commissioner of the draft for Hudson County. In 1868 he was elected Governor of New Jersey over John I. Blair by 4,618 majority. Retiring from the office of Governor in 1874, he was elected to the United States Senate for a full term of six years, defeating George M. Robeson. In 1876 he served as a member of the Democratic National Convention. As yet no definite arrangements have been made for the funeral, which will probably be held on Saturday, when the remains will be interred in the Morristown Cemetery.

The Election in this City.

Tuesday was as perfect a day as the most superstitious Republican could desire, yet right in Plainfield, the stronghold of the "grand old party," the Democratic candidates for Governor and Assemblyman cut down the real majority of 450 to 190 for Dixon and 109 for Hall. The reason of such a turn in the tide is assigned to many causes, but the Republican party itself has only to blame a certain clique of its so-called leaders, which by high-handed and arbitrary dictation nominated a man for the assembly who was not the choice of the party here. Also have the "aristocracy"—the "kid-glove element" of the party—driven from its support those whom the Republican organ calls the "niggers and irresponsible whites." Men will not stand everything even for the sake of their principles, and the time comes when imperious allies deserve a rebuke that can only be administered as was shown Tuesday. It was then proven that even in so strong a Republican district as this has been made by the gerrymandering of a partisan legislature, the power to elect or defeat a candidate forced upon the Republicans by the clever manipulation of a few "in the circle," is in the hands of the old stalwarts of the party in this city.

The voting proceeded during the day in the usually quiet and orderly manner, with the heaviest polling during the later hours. A few cases of ballots refused by reason of non-registration are reported, but when is considered the fact of the present being the first time when registration has been required, the small number of such cases is remarkable.

THE FIGURES.

Wards—	1st	2d	3d	4th
Total vote	305	266	266	418
FOR GOVERNOR.
Dixon	155	171	197	195	—718
Abbett	150	95	69	214	—528
Dixon's majority for Governor					190
FOR ASSEMBLYMEN.
Hall	146	158	198	180	—682
Hough	159	101	69	244	—573
Hall's majority for Assemblyman					109

In the entire city Solomon Parsons, the Prohibition Candidate, received 15 votes, and Benjamin Urner, the "National," 13 votes. The latter party also voted for a Coroner, presumably to sit on its own corpse, as no such vacancy had occurred.

A few figures on past Assemblymen may not be amiss wherewith to prove by comparison what the grand old party used to do before a certain few tried to rule it:

	1878	1880
Republican	720	935
Democratic	416	644
Republican majority	304	291

1882	1st	2d	3d	4th
Republican	157	173	196	244	—770
Democratic	144	94	76	206	—520
Republican majority 250.

The total vote cast was small in comparison to former election being only 1,289 of the 1,580 registered.

The Election in North Plainfield.

The friends of Mr. John Vetterlein, Democratic candidate for Assembly, and that gentleman himself, should feel proud over the result of the vote in North Plainfield. Accepting the nomination against his wishes to lead the Democracy in the face of a Republican majority of 475 given last year, the handsome majority received by him in Republican North Plainfield Township, and the bare majority given his opponent in the county, evidences that those who knew Mr. Vetterlein voted for him irrespective of party ties, because of his worth and fitness for the office. It is claimed that influences were brought to bear against him in Somerville, by his opponent's money, which caused his defeat. If it is true that a priest's influence was also used against him among parishioners, in Somerville, it is a reflection upon the calling of such a person. Warren did badly. She should have given him 75 majority. The Democracy of Somerset are unanimous for giving Mr. Vetterlein the nomination again in 1884, when he will undoubtedly be triumphantly elected. All honor to the Republicans of North Plainfield who voted for him last Tuesday. Below is the vote of North Plainfield:

FOR GOVERNOR.

	Dixon	Abbett	Total	Maj.
1st Dist.	167	122	289	65
2d Dist.	116	123	239	7
	283	245	528

Dixon's majority 38.

FOR ASSEMBLY.

	Hoffman	Vetterlein	Tot.	Maj.
1st Dist.	136	153	289	17
2d Dist.	107	136	243	29
	243	289	532

Vetterlein's majority 46.

FOR SHERIFF.

	Hummer	McMurtry	Tot.	Maj.
1st Dist.	173	115	288	58
2d Dist.	118	123	241	5
	291	238	529

Hummer's majority 53.

There were 2 votes for Urner and 7 for Parsons. In the county, Mr. McMurtry, Democrat, was elected Sheriff, and Mr. Hoffman, Republican, is claimed to be elected Assemblyman by 51 majority.

THE "irresponsible whites and niggers" voted gloriously last Tuesday, and don't you forget it Bro. L.

New Baggage Rules of the Penn. Railroad.

Commencing Nov. 1st, a rule (at present in effect upon all the principal rail lines of the West and South) limiting the weight of single pieces of baggage was adopted upon the Pennsylvania Railroad. On and after the 1st, agents of that line will decline to receive for transportation any piece of baggage exceeding 250 pounds in weight. The rule requiring a charge for the weight of all baggage in excess of 150 pounds for each passenger will remain in effect, as before.

Hough's majority, 43.

Elizabeth re-elects Dr. Grier, (Dem) for Mayor by 400 majority, and all four of the Democratic Chosen Freeholders, a gain of two.

Piscataway Township, Middlesex County, gave Dixon 57 majority.

Somerville gave 237 majority for Abbett.

Benj. Butler, Esq., was defeated for Governor of Massachusetts by about 17,000.

New Brunswick gave Abbett 337 maj.

The Republicans of New York State elected their candidate for State Treasurer, Carr, and the Democrats carried the rest of the ticket. The Legislature is Republican.

In Maryland Mahone is defeated and the Democrats have a good working majority in the Legislature.

The Republicans carry Pennsylvania by 17,000 majority.

Nebraska is Republican.

Minnesota is Republican.

Kansas claims a Republican victory.

Mississippi is Democratic.

Connecticut is Republican.

VETTERLEIN FOR 1884.

The flattering vote given the Democratic candidate for Assembly in North Plainfield, John Vetterlein, whereby the Republican majority was overcome and a handsome majority secured for Mr. Vetterlein, is sufficient evidence that the people of his district think him a fit man to represent them in the House of Assembly. We therefore nominate as candidate for Assembly of Somerset county in 1884, JOHN VETTERLEIN.

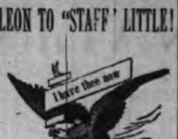
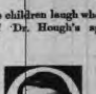
Having slandered the working girls and defamed the character of our Governor, we presume the Trenton Times will now turn its attention to some other dirty work.

LEON TO "STAFF" LITTLE!



Even the children laugh when they think of Dr. Hough's splendid victory!



This is the way the editorial staff (?) of "Staff" Little's paper looked the morning after election.

This kind of poultry failed to elect Hall. They will do for Thanksgiving.

This is the style of hat we won on Abbett's election.

There's a Hall to rent in Fanwood.

Powerful influence, that Trenton Times.

How about that "Record," Mr. Little.

Our Governor is a good looking man—and a good worker.

Staff Little's influence has been tested and found to amount to a big O.

His "Record" is all right. The people have said so.

"Dinna ye hear the slogan!" The year of 1884 approaches.

The Central Times didn't want the vote of the firemen for Hall. Well, they didn't get it.

The boys of the Trenton Times helped elect Abbett by the lies they were allowed to write by the owners of the slanderous sheet.

That slanderous sheet, the Trenton Times, having failed in its mission to defeat Leon Abbett for Governor, must now, like other frauds—go.

Would-be Assemblyman Hall rode on horseback to Plainfield from his home in Fanwood on Tuesday to hear from his party. He was smoking a segar.

All honor to those honest Republicans of Plainfield who last Tuesday threw off the shackles of bossism and voted for a capable man to represent them in the Legislature.

The result of the election in Plainfield last Tuesday was a surprise to the Republican managers of this city. They know now that fanatical ideas and measures will not tend to keep their scattered forces together. The working members of their party have taught them a lesson which they will not forget in a long time. The Democrats, however, smile serenely.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY—To the [illegible] National Bank of Plattsburgh—By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Robert A. Reed is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, and plead, demur or answer to the complainant's bill on, or before the second day of January next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you. The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Elias Barton to Robert A. Reed, dated June 1st, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, on lands in the city of Elizabeth, and you are made defendants, because you recovered a judgment against Charles W. Barton, in the Union County Circuit Court and therefore claim to have some lein on said mortgaged premises.

Like an Evil Spirit.

In olden times it was thought that evil spirits came in through cracks and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspected source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its effects from our systems. If BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is taken in time, malaria has not a ghost of a chance. This is the great family medicine. Your druggist sells it, and you ought to keep a bottle in the house.

SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES IN FANWOOD TOWNSHIP.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a warrant, issued by the Township Committee of Fanwood Township, Union County, N. J., under their common seal, signed by their chairman and attested by their clerk, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided for the collection of taxes laid on certain lands in said township for the year 1882, the subscriber, constable of said township, will on Wednesday, the 28th day of November, 1883, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the hotel of Bennie Britain, in the township of Fanwood, Union County, N. J., by public auction, sell the lands and premises hereinafter described, to make the taxes with interest, costs, fees, charges and expenses thereon, to any person or persons who will take the same for the shortest time, not exceeding thirty years, and pay the amount due thereon. The following is a correct list of those in arrears for taxes for the year 1882 and a description of the lands upon which said taxes have been laid and that are to be sold hereunder:

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER IN UNION COUNTY.

THE next "trouble" will be City Election.

"NOBLE Band of Brothers" is good. But that Band was not for Hall.

THE report quite widely circulated announcing the death of Dr. Charles Hart, is without foundation.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield fire department holds its regular monthly meeting next Tuesday evening.

MESSRS. Lot Manning and Alex. Blair, brothers of Jack Cuff, who recently died aged 113 years, are still living in this city.

SCHOOL Commissioners Harper and Kiesner, with ex-Mayor Randolph visited the public schools during Tuesday last.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund will have a concert followed by a dance in its rooms during the evening of Wednesday, the 28th inst.

A NUMBER of guests have taken advantage of the opportunity and are being accommodated at the Netherwood during this lovely season.

MR. John Becker, Jr., was elected Foreman of Warren Engine Co., No. 3, Wednesday evening, in place of Richard Coleman, resigned.

THE Rev. W. W. Moffett of whom we spoke of in our issue of Oct. 19th, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church, next Sunday.

REV. A. V. V. Raymond will speak on Sunday evening, Nov. 11th, at the Trinity Reformed church, Second street, upon the life and character of Martin Luther.

THE Park House under the management of Mr. C. L. Johnson is rapidly filling, over fifty permanent guests having already engaged rooms for the Winter.

THE sale of valuable building lots on Hillside avenue, advertised for yesterday, was adjourned until Thursday next, the 15th inst., at the same hour and place.

MESSRS. Carney Bros., Thursday morning, secured the contracts for the plumbing of nine new houses in this city and North Plainfield, and 40,000 feet of tin roofing.

MR. E. P. THORN, on Park avenue, calls the attention of the public to an excellent article of claret for family use, which he is selling at low figures. Read his advertisement.

THE fire department turned out twice last Friday night. The first alarm was caused by the burning of brush on Putnam avenue and the second by the fire at Bound Brook.

THE term "gin slinger," "rummy" and other like choice epithets made quite an impression (?) in the 4th Ward, judging by the majorities given there against the "circle" candidate.

Mr. Hall's defeat was accomplished by such unprincipled means that it is no discredit to him.—Central Times.

Sorry for Hall. But then you should not have used such means.

IN another column notice is given present owners of lots in the Cemetery formerly owned by the Second Baptist church, to present their deeds for record by the late purchasers, the M. E. church.

Intelligence and decency have asserted themselves in Massachusetts and put down the prince of demagogues, Ben Butler.—Central Times.

Quite right. The Democracy do not desire Ben for a Presidential candidate.

THURSDAY of last week the floor beams of the Opera House stage were laid and the work rapidly progresses. Already more than one-half of all the brick it is to contain, are laid.

NEXT Thursday opens in St. Mary's Hall a grand fair under the auspices of that parish which promises to be fully as successful as the many of the past under the same management.

THE members of No. 2 Hose Company intend giving a bang-up ball, in Blatz's Hall, the evening of Wednesday the 28th inst., the pleasures of which will be continued over into Thanksgiving morning.

THE very attractive and enjoyable fair that was recently held in Van Deventer Hall by the members of St. Joseph's parish of North Plainfield, closed after a week's great success, with a financial profit of about $600.

Five hundred dollars is the sum of money said to be spent here in the interest of the Democratic party.—Central Times.

The above assertion is false and we dare the Times to give its authority for such a statement.

THE Y. M. C. A. will open its Course of Entertainments for 1883-84, next Thursday evening, when the pleasing Eichberg Quartette, the charming soprano, Miss Perle Dudley, and the talented Dudley Bucks will combine in rendering a programme decidedly gratifying.

SINCE our last we have been able to secure more accurate information in relation to the residence to be erected on Franklin place by Mr. Richard Esterbrook for his daughter Mrs. Francis Wood. The entire contract was given Mr. Isaac W. Pangborn, and its cost is to be about $15,000.

Money played its usual part in the elections on Tuesday. The class of patriots who 'go' for the side which bribes them are a great acquisition to the country.—Central Times.

Is that so? We have always understood from the Times that its party managers were above reproach and did not encourage such measures.

NEXT Thursday evening at Van Deventer Hall, the Cousin Joe Comedy Company will give an entertainment such as is seldom equalled in this city, in which will take part such bright particular stars as Wilgus, the banjoist, Nellie Devere the child wonder, Stateman the Dutch comedian and Havill the specialist.

SUNDAY morning a man giving the name of Williams secured board at Mrs. Bowman's, on Front street, and left Monday afternoon with a pair of cuffs and sleeve buttons, an overcoat and silk handkerchief. He had just been appointed a night watchman at the oilcloth factory, but there is now a vacancy there.

ANOTHER attempt to start a conflagration was made at 9:30, P. M., of election day upon the premises in the vicinity of Division and Eighth streets. A fuse leading from and through a chicken-house into a barn, was lighted but went out. The fence adjoining, however, was burned slightly, but the fire was discovered in time.

THE twenty-sixth annual convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association will be held in the Third Presbyterian Church, Warren street, Trenton, New Jersey, on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 14 and 15, 1883, commencing at 11 a. m., on Wednesday and closing Thursday noon. Delegates from all the counties are especially urged to be present, and all friends of the cause are invited. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. John Hall, D. D., and Rev. Talbot W. Chambers, D. D., of New York and Rev. J. M. Freeman, D. D., of Morristown.

THE first annual ball of the Plainfield Cornet Band, which took place at St. Mary's Hall last Thursday evening, was a success in every particular. The music by Prof. Guttman was first-class, and all enjoyed from beginning to end the programme of dances set forth. The general manager was Mr. Arthur A. Lisner, with a floor committee consisting of Messrs. James McCarthy and Geo. Becker, and a reception committee composed of Messrs. Charles Trotter and Joseph Dawe. Mr. T. F. Wright and Miss Annie Sullivan led the march in a praiseworthy manner.

THE Rev. C. H. Snedeker will preach in the Union Chapel at Netherwood next Sunday at 11 a. m.

TICKETS of admission to the Y. M. C. Course are now ready at Reynold's pharmacy, for delivery to purchasers.

THE First and Fourth Wards are Democratic "banner" wards. The Second did nobly. The Third is so far gone and wedded to Republican "bossism" as to discourage any Democrat from voting in it.

FROM the Central Times we learn that "some of the best men in the party (Rep.) were employed at the polls and elsewhere all day looking after the interests of the Republican party." Is that so, who are they, and——what did they accomplish?

THE Central Times says: "There was money brought to the city by some Democratic wire-pullers, as was freely boasted." In the language of an eminent politician, now passed away, we would say—"You lie, you villain, you lie." Prove it, Mr. Times, and do your duty by enforcing the law.

THE second floor of John H. French's new Clothing House on Front street, has been leased by Mr. Eugene Laine, tonsorial artist, as a place of business and residence, where he has all modern improvements applicable to his business, including bath room. Mr. Laine is an artist of well-known ability, and asks for a share of public patronage.

Vote Early and Often.

Those who could not vote on last Tuesday by reason of having neglected to register, may find consolation by voting early and as often as they like at St. Mary's Fair next week. All the fair candidates are said to be handsome.

What the Dr. Thinks of Plainfield.

RAHWAY, N. J., Nov. 7th, 1883.

TO THE CONSTITUTIONALIST:—

Many thanks to my Plainfield constituents—through you I extend to them my sincere gratitude for their earnest support.

D. W. C. HOUGH.

A New Parsonage.

At a meeting of the members of the Crescent avenue church, held Wednesday evening for the purpose, it was decided to sell the parsonage on East Front street and another will be purchased nearer the church and more worthy the coming occupant.

Registry.

The total number of names registered during the two days set apart for such purpose, was 1,580. First Ward, 409; Second Ward, 345; Third Ward, 329; Fourth Ward, 497. Another opportunity will be given to register those who neglected it, before the city election.

At The Netherwood.

Election day at the Hotel Netherwood was a gala day—there being about forty arrivals. After dinner a four-horse stage took a large party over Johnson's Drive, while others were attracted by the Tennis court. In the evening there was dancing in the parlors until a late hour.

Extended.

On the motion of Corporation Counsel Marsh in Supreme Court Wednesday, the rule to show cause why a mandamus should not issue against the City Treasurer compelling payment to the County etc., was extended to Monday 12th inst, and leave granted to take testimony.

Gov. Abbett Will Represent the People.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 7th, 1883.

MESSRS. W. L. FORCE & BRO.:

Gents:—Thanks for your congratulatory telegram. I shall represent the people in my administration.

Yours Truly,
LEON ABBETT.

A Card of Thanks.

The members of Hose Co. No. 2, desire to publicly express their sincere thanks to Mr. Frank Day for the use of his team, and to the ladies who so kindly assisted in decorating the tables upon the event of the late Firemen's Parade.

J. R. FRAZEE, Secretary.

The Vocals.

The Chorus of the Plainfield Vocal Society is complete, and no additional members will be admitted. The subscription list is also filled, and no more tickets can be purchased. The dates for the concerts to be given are, Thursday, Dec. 20th, Tuesday, Mar. 4th, and Tuesday May 13th.

Who Next.

Incendiarism was attempted and robbery committed during Thursday night of last week, upon the premises of Mr. John F. Wilson of North Plainfield. Some valuable harness was stolen from the stables and an attempt made to fire the buildings, but the latter was fortunately unsuccessful.

Fire at Bound Brook.

Robert McNabbs' Planing and Flouring mills, situated on the canal bank, at the end of the iron bridge over the Raritan, in South Bound Brook, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday night last about half-past ten o'clock. The buildings were insured for $8,000, which covered the loss. No clue to the origin of the fire has been discovered.

First Class.

The comforts and conveniences of Laing's Hotel, under the management of its present lessee, Mr. Joseph B. Miller, and the excellence of its table, make it a most attractive Winter boarding place. The rooms are all pleasantly located, well lighted and heated, and the rates are as low as possible when is considered how generally satisfactory are the accommodations.

Another Course.

We are certainly to be favored this Season with a surfeit of literary and musical entertainments, and the last to announce itself is one of the best. In the Methodist church, Thanksgiving evening, the Rev. J. H. Vincent will open a series of three lectures, with one of his unequalled addresses on an entirely new subject—"Power of the Parlor." He will be followed by J. W. Bain, Esq., and the Rev. C. H. Fowler, D. D.

Another's Fault.

It seems that the executors of the Stillman estate are merely endeavoring to hold Mr. Chapman—who represents the Y. M. C. A.—to his original agreement with them. The amount of rent of the second floor as included in the contract, was computed at that time on the basis of an investment by the executors to the amount of $5,000. They now claim to be ready to expend $8,000 if a proportionate increase of rent is allowed.

Guilty.

The Grand Jury of this county, at its recent session, indicted several parties residing within the township of Summit for keeping disorderly houses by selling liquor to be drank on the premises without the authority of a license obtained pursuant to New Jersey law. One of them, Lawrence L. Walsh, was tried on Friday last, he being defended by Mr. Kalish, Messrs Guild & Curry, of Newark, assisting the Prosecutor of the Pleas. The case went to the jury on Saturday morning under an able charge from Judge McCormick. They returned into Court at four o'clock in the afternoon, Judge Harper being on the bench to receive them, and rendered a verdict of guilty.

Shooting on Sunday.

On Sunday last, William Uhrhahn, of North Plainfield, was out hunting contrary to law. In loading his gun, one barrel was discharged, and he looses two fingers. William should first learn how to handle a gun, and then go hunting during week days.

Thanksgiving.

The President's little proclamation again reminds the people of the United States that another year has nearly run its course, and that the time has come to give thanks and eat turkey in commemoration. It has been a bad year to many; but good, bad, or indifferent, its course approaches its final goal, and upon the 29th day of November the American people will be ready to celebrate its many virtues in their usual manner.

More Incendiarism.

Saturday night last, between eleven and twelve o'clock, a barn and cattle sheds belonging to Mr. Charles Sebring, situated on Green Brook road, near Sebrings Mills, were set on fire by some scoundrel and completely destroyed, together with contents, hay, grain, farming implements, etc. Fortunately the live stock were rescued by tenants on the premises, but with great difficulty. Mr. Sebring estimates his loss over $1,200 on which there is an insurance to cover it. This is the second time Mr. Sebring has been burned out within two months.

Personalia.

Mr. Auguste Saltzman is still confined to his bed by inflamatory rheumatism. He has the sympathy of a host of friends in his affliction.

Mr. Edward C. Chapin, a former resident of this city, died suddenly at Auburn, N. Y., Friday, Oct. 26th. Mr. Chapin at the time of his death, was the New York manager for Messrs. T. Kingsford & Son.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Laura Smith, daughter of the Rev. N. E. Smith, formerly of this city, and Mr. Wm. F. Cameron, of Brooklyn. The ceremony will take place at four o'clock of Wednesday, the 21st inst., at the Congregational Church, corner of State and Hoyt streets, and receptions will follow during the evenings of Dec. 4th and 6th, at the residence of the bride's parents.

A Useful Invention.

Mr. Morgan Bird, of this city, is the patentee of a labor-saving apparatus at his coal yards on Fourth street. It consists of an elevator to load coal in a wagon by the aid only of the horse hitched to the wagon being loaded. The animal is driven on a tread mill constructed even with the flooring, without unhitching. By his action the treadle sets in motion an endless band on which are attached iron buckets which scoop up and carry coal from the bin to a proper elevation and then dumps the same into a screen from which it falls into the wagon. By this process a ton of coal is loaded in three minutes, and is thoroughly screened, the latter fact being of great value to the consumer, as he gets clean coal. Mr. Bird invites the public to call and see the modus operandi of loading coal by his invention.

Obituary.

Mrs. Oliver B. Tweedy died at her residence on Crescent avenue, this city, Sunday morning, of disease of the heart. A year since she was attacked by a paralytic stroke, and has been in ill health ever since. Mrs. Tweedy was the daughter of Joseph N. Lord, a prominent New York merchant, who died many years ago. The widow of Judge Edmunds is a sister of the deceased. Mr. Tweedy, who survives his wife, is one of the best known men in New York. For years he was at the head of one of the most extensive dry goods establishments in that city, in which he amassed a fortune. He frequently related how he and William E. Dodge used to sleep in an obscure garret while both together as boys were occupied in their duties, which later on led them to fortune and prominence. Mrs. Tweedy leaves a large circle to whom she had endeared herself by her Christian and womanly virtues.

In Memoriam.

On Thursday, October 25th, after a short illness of less than three days, there passed from earth one whose sad death brings an almost universal sorrow on our city. Mrs. Jos. M. Titsworth was a woman whose strength and beauty of character, and whose refinement of soul, combined with a warm, loving disposition, endeared her in a wonderful manner to all who came within reach of her influence.

It is a rare thing to find one whose character is so rounded out, so beautifully developed on all sides, as hers. In her home, of which she was the centre and light, she shone pre-eminent. A loving, devoted wife, a fond, self sacrificing mother, a daughter and sister whose greatest joy was to lighten the burdens and cheer the pathway of those with whom her life was spent, her absence leaves a void that naught can fill.

In the large social circle in which she moved she was conspicuous. Her queenly grace and cheery countenance lent a charm to every company in which she mingled.

Her heart was ever open to the suffering and the unfortunate, and the sorrowing always found a ready ear and helpful sympathy. So deep was her interest in young people, and her desire so strong that they should lead high and noble lives, that she often went far beyond her strength in her efforts to provide them entertainment and pleasure.

Her devotion to her friends was so marked that often has it been said, and truthfully, "A truer friend, or one more staunch, never lived." The key note of her character is struck in the following words which she wrote on the 23d of last September as a part of the directions relative to her funeral service, whenever it should come: "Could my silent lips move at my own service it would be only to plead that all young men and women (in fact every one of whatever age) should try to realize how greatly they influence one another, plead with them to live pure, to live true, and never to live for self. I believe I had rather die than to live for none other than my own small self."

She was strong in her attachment to the church of which she was a faithful and active member. She threw her whole soul into every department of its work, and was ever on the alert to do anything that would advance its welfare and interests. In its Sabbath services her voice rose sweet and clear, lending an inspiration to worship to all who heard it. In its Sabbath School and social meetings her voice was never wanting, and, with strong convictions, she was prompt in the discharge of every duty.

In her death a loving home is left desolate, a church looses one of its most faithful members, and society at large is bereft of one who was at once a benefit and an ornament. Though young in years, being but 32, she was rich in good deeds, and she has gone from a life of unselfish devotion to a bright and sure reward.

Mrs. Titsworth was the oldest child of Mr. C. Potter, Jr., and the daughter-in-law of Mr. Rudolph M. Titsworth. Her parents, three sisters, a husband and two young children compose the immediate family who are so sadly stricken by her death.

The funeral services on the following Sunday were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, her pastor, assisted by the Rev. Drs. Ketcham and Maxson. Deeply impressed in themselves, they were rendered more so by the fact that they were the literal carrying out of her expressed wishes. The large company which crowded the house, and the great number who were unable to gain admission, spoke eloquently, though silently, to the extent of her influence and the depth of the interest the public had in her life and death. Now, as never before, can she realize the beauty of the words she so often quoted:

Hush! the sevenfold heavens and the voice of the Spirit
Echo, "He that overcometh shall all things inherit."

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITY OFFICERS.

From the Mayor appointing W. R. Mattox as a regular and Joseph Noel as a special policeman. Ref. to Police Com.

From the Corporation Counsel reporting the progress of such court cases as the city is a party to. Received and filed.

Also the reports of the City Treasurer and City Collector. Received and filed.

The clerk read a copy of the petition of County Collector Sheridan before the N. J. Supreme Court, for a mandamus against the city for $2,478.51 the amount recovered by the Board of Education of this city from the County Collector, and the order of the Court for City Treasurer Van Winkle to show cause why such mandamus should not issue. Ref. to Com. on Laws to confer with the Corporation Counsel and take such steps as might be necessary to protect the interests of the city.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Special Com. on Clark matter—Mr. Serrell presented an exhaustive report of his examination of the books and accounts of the late Collector. Read, received, filed and printed elsewhere.

In answer to Mr. Marsh, Mr. Serrell stated that by Mr. Clark's admission he owes the city $1,095.26. He owes the Board of Education—which says it will take care of that amount—$2,995.92. Besides this is owed the city jointly by Coward and Clark, $2,240.66; which each says the other owes.

Mr. Marsh moved that the Com., be continued and with the Corporation Counsel consult with Mr. Clark and his sureties and see what settlement could be made, and to also confer with Mr. Coward to see if a speedy adjustment of the matter cannot be arranged at once, and that said Committee report at the next meeting of the Council. Carried.

It was moved and carried that when the Council adjourn it be to meet again in one week.

Mr. Jones moved that the Com. on the Clark matter also confer with the Board of Education and officially learn if it recognizes its liability to settle with Mr. Clark.

Alms—By Mr. Beguelin as correct: L. A. Connett, $9; M. A. Cooper, 10; Plainfield Relief Asso., 51. Referred to Aud. Com.

Finance—By Mr. Serrell as correct: John Johnson, $146.37; N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co., 50. The former laid on the table and the latter referred to Aud. Com.

Lamps—By Mr. Polak as correct: N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gas Light Co., $134.04, and 131.84; Plainfield Gas Light Co., 13.25, and 217.56. Referred to Auditing Com.

Laws—By Mr. Coriell in relation to the petition for a Fire Marshal, that the Board of Managers of the Fire Department were given every power to protect the citizens, and allowed a special tax of $7,000 for such purpose, and consequently that was the source from which the citizens should expect what they desired. Rec'd and adopted.

Mr. Marsh moved that the City Clerk notify the petitioners that the Council deemed it inexpedient to appoint such an officer, and forward a copy of the report. Carried.

Mr. Marsh offered a resolution directing the Clerk to forward the President of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department a communication calling attention to the petition, and expressing the sense of the Council in the matter. Adopted.

Police—By Mr. Jones as correct: W. S. Chase, $58.34; M. Bird, 62.50; George W. Grant, 50; M. Conway, 12; C. Jones, 50; G. M. Smith, 2.25; Thos. Burns, 2.50. Ref'd to Aud. Com., with the exception of the bill of M. Bird which was laid on the table.

Mr. Jones reported the approval of the Police Com., of the nominations of a regular and a special policeman presented that evening.

A motion to confirm was laid on the table until the next meeting.

Salaries—By Mr. Marsh as correct: J. C. Meeker, $50; J. T. Frittis, 75. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Streets—By Mr. R. Simpson as correct: J. C. Meeker, $122.63. Referred to Aud. Com.

Also recommending the granting of a petition for a cross-walk on Sixth street. Laid on the table for one week.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Coriell to the effect that the law exempting active firemen from taxes to the amount of five dollars, applied to all taxes and that the Collector be directed to act accordingly. Adopted.

Mr. Marsh took the chair and on motion of Mr. Livingston he was elected President pro tem during the absence of that officer.

The rules were suspended, and Mr. J. Simpson from the Aud. Com., reported its approval of the following: N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co., $50; J. C. Meeker, 172.62; C. Jones, 50; M. Conway, 12; G. W. Grant, 50; Thos. Burns, 2.50; W. S. Chase, 58.34; G. M. Smith, 2.25; Plainfield Gas Light Co., 217.56 and 13.25; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gas Light Co., 134.04 and 131.84; M. A. Cooper, 10; L. A. Connett, 9; Plainfield Relief Asso., 51; J. T. Frittis, 75. Warrants ordered drawn and the bills paid.

Upon a reconsideration the salary of the City Physician was ordered paid out of the General Fund.

Mr. Polak moved that hereafter all petitions for the erection of new buildings be referred to the Lamps Com., and that such buildings be not started upon the permission of the Mayor who had no right to grant such.

The motion was altered to read that such was the sense of the Council, and so carried.

The Council then adjourned.

Pianos Exceptionally Low.

The manufacturers of the "Wheelock Pianos," who have hitherto done exclusively wholesale business through agencies in all parts of the country, now offer the same at retail in New York and vicinity, at prices and upon terms the most favorable possible for instruments of their grade. People of musical taste and cultivation who desire to purchase a fine piano but cannot afford, or do not choose to pay a large sum for a widely advertised name, will do well to examine the "Wheelock. They will be exceptionally low for cash or on easy instalments and can be seen at the warerooms, 25 East 14th street, N. Y.

A Batch.

REPORT ON THE CLARK DEFICIENCY.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 3d, 1883.

To the Common Council of the city of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—Your Committee appointed to examine the books and accounts of Lewis E. Clark, collector of taxes, prior to the year 1882, respectfully report:

That legal proceedings were in progress when your Committee was appointed, and these caused considerable delay. Finally Mr. Clark met your Committee and produced his books pursuant to the order of the Court.

Upon general examination of these books in connection with Mr. Frank H. Gardner, an account in the City National Bank selected by your Committee, they found the same of the most crude and primitive character; many entries and most of the footings being in pencil.

Your Committee concluded that mistakes might have arisen in consequence of the loose and inaccurate manner in which the books had been kept, and as your Committee had confidence in Mr. Gardner, and Mr. Clark expressed confidence in him, they concluded to request Mr. Gardner to get the actual facts as shown by the books, and to give Mr. Clark every opportunity to explain any entries or vouchers, and your Committee proceeded on the assumption that Mr. Clark's books and accounts were correct until the contrary was demonstrated.

After very protracted and patient labor with Mr. Clark at as many as six meetings, Mr. Gardner succeeded in obtaining all the facts which Mr. Clark appeared to be possessed of, touching these matters; these have been gone over carefully by your Committee.

Your Committee has been kindly assisted by members of last year's City Government, and they also bear testimony to the patience, care, fidelity and forbearance of the expert, Mr. Gardner, in this tedious and disagreeable business. Comparing the slip-shod inefficient manner in which tax accounts were formerly kept with the present system, your Committee believe that a change was not made any too soon, and that the last Common Council deserve the thanks of all good citizens for inaugurating a business-like way of collecting taxes and keeping the accounts of the same.

It is impossible to portray the inefficient manner in which accounts were formerly kept. In settlements with the township Committee the Collector in many instances included personal money matters and mixed such transactions in the public accounts.

In one instance your Committee found an item of $1,542 92 in the books of Mr. Clark as paid to Mr. Coward, but on investigation it appeared to have been a repayment of borrowed money, and there was no corresponding credit in Clark's report at the time the money was borrowed; this shows that Clark has had that amount of public money in his hands since 1875 or 1876.

It appeared also that the Township Committee acknowledged the receipt of $659 38 from Mr. Clark that did not appear on his books as handed over to them; this amount has therefore been credited to his account, which with other minor inaccuracies places the indebtedness of Mr. Clark according to his own showing from his books as $1,095 26.

Your Committee desired in the first instance to obtain all the statements of account which Mr. Clark could give, and to get all the facts that he had to present. They therefore, submit herewith a tabular statement very carefully prepared from Mr. Clark's books and accounts by Mr. Gardner, with the assistance of Mr. Clark, which said Clark states emphatically is correct, BUT IT IS TO BE DISTINCTLY UNDERSTOOD THAT YOUR COMMITTEE SAYS, THAT STATEMENT IS INCORRECT AND UNSATISFACTORY IN THE FOLLOWING PARTICULARS.

After your Committee had this statement, they compared the payments which Clark therein alleged he had made with the vouchers and found on the School Accounts as follows:

In the accounts Mr. Clark claims to have paid to the Board of Education:

On School Warrants - -	$ 45 287 07
On School Taxes - -	114,854 30
Total - - -	$160,141 37
The books of the Board of Education and Clark's vouchers only show payments of - - -	$157,145 45
Deficiency in payments -	$ 2,995 92

According to his own acknowledgements of receipts.

The attention of the Board of Education was called to this matter, and their Secretary, Mr. John W. Murray, their accountant, Mr. Bagot met Mr. Clark and Mr. Gardner, and failed to find any errors. Your Committee has believed that as Mr. Clark was the agent of the Board of Education to receive School moneys and to deposit them to the credit of said Board, and as the City had nothing to do in this transaction that the duties of your Committee were ended when the facts were developed, and that the Board of Education had to protect itself, and that the city had nothing to do with this item of deficiency; and in this opinion your Committee is informed, the said Board of Education fully concurs and will arrange to settle the matter with Mr. Clark personally.

The next item has given your Committee and Mr. Gardner untold trouble. Mr. Clark holds a receipt from the County Collector for $2249 66, and the credit for paying the same is in his account. Mr. Coward, in his report to the city, claims credit for paying this identical sum; both parties could not have such credit, and it was evident that the city had been deprived of this sum of $2,240 66 since the middle of 1877.

The complicated settlements between Mr. Coward and Mr. Clark, and the positive statements of both parties, confused both your Committee and the accountant, and your Committee took carefully the statements of both parties, the substance of which was that Clark originally paid the money but that Mr. Coward claimed to have repaid him, and hence was entitled to the credit instead of Clark. The facts of the money transactions were stated substantially the same by the two parties, but after patient consideration and the divesting of the account of extraneous matter, the following are the facts of the transactions:

1876—Cash paid County Collector by Mr. Clark - -	$601 61
Cash paid County Collector by Mr Clark - - -	2,240 66
June 1877—Cash paid County Collector jointly by Coward and Clark - - -	5,681 62
The complications arose on these items only, hence none others are introduced. Towards the last named sum Coward gives a check of - - - -	$5,681 05
Clark gives a check of -	300 57
	$5,981 62
$4,471 62 paid County Collector by Coward; $1,209 43 overpaid by the check of Coward; $5,681 05 amount of Coward's check.
Clark's check was - -	$300 57
and the amount overpaid by Coward's check -	$1,209 43
are added together and Clark takes credit on above payment for - - -	$1,510 00
Coward simply pays as per charge in his own report	$447 62
Amt. paid Co. Coll. above	$5,981 62

The Committee believes that Coward had nothing to do with the payment of the $2,240 66, but he persistently claimed that he had paid the whole by repaying Clark in account, and Clark claimed that he had paid the whole and that he held the voucher. The Committee believes *that Coward has simply made an ad*vance of $1,209 43 to Clark. Coward has charged the City in his account - - -	$2,240 66

It appears that he only actually advanced - -	$1,209 43
In this view of the case he has owed to the city since 1877 the sum of - -	$1,031 23
Clark had the benefit of this sum received from Coward and his account is short to that extent - - -	$1,209 43
Amount in dispute - -	$2,240 66

SUMMARY OF TRANSACTIONS.

Clark's own statement admits that he owes without Int.	$1,095 26
Clark's deficit in account with Board of Education as aforesaid without interest	$2,995 92
Amount for which Coward claims credit and which is due City by Clark or Coward or jointly by the two	$2,240 66
Total inaccuracies and defalcations without interest	$6,331 84

Furthermore, your Committee calls attention to an unsettled bill of Mr. Clark for commissions due when he left his office, of $

Respectfully submitted,

SAMUEL S. GAFFY, advertising agent for Marshall & Ball, Clothiers of Newark, has presented to each school in this city a globe, with map of the world on it, for every class in the school.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Marshall & Ball's advertising agent gave a free exhibition on Friday evening last on Broad street, with some very fine magic lantern views.

The lecture by the Rev. Mr. Thompson of Brooklyn, which was advertised for Monday evening in the M. E. church, was postponed on account of the sickness of Mr. Thompson.

Samuel Godschalk and brother Frank went to Philadelphia on Friday last to attend the funeral of their brother-in-law, Dr. Armitage, who was a practicing physician in that city.

The coroner's inquest in the Stedley case was held yesterday (Thursday) afternoon at the Town Rooms. A large number of witnesses were subpœned and examined by Coroner Lowrie.

The funeral of Mrs. Erastus Miller took place on Saturday afternoon. The services were held in the Baptist church on Elm street. Interment in Fairview cemetery. Mrs. Miller was 71 years of age, and has been a severe sufferer for the past five years.

The election in our town last Tuesday passed off very quietly, with but little excitement, which was centered in the election of Mr. Hall, the Republican candidate for Assembly, who as the result in the district has shown, got left. The total number of votes cast was 421. Dixon, 232, Abbett, 177, Urner, 7, Hall, 238, Hough, 175, and two double ballots. The result was within a very few votes of what the Democrats predicted and of which they were willing to concede the morning of election. Ben is the only one that feels very bad about it, but he is used to it.

On Thursday of last week Mr. B. F. Ham's team of horses attached to a carriage containing Mrs. Ham, Miss Julia McQuoid, and Mr. Ham's son Frank, who was driving them, while standing in the drive-way along side of the M. E. church, became frightened at a team of goats and becoming unmanageable ran out of the gateway and turned into Broad street, where one of the whiffletrees caught into the wheel and overturned the carriage, injuring the two lady occupants quite severely. Young Frank escaped with slight bruises. The carriage was considerably damaged. It has become a great nuisance, this driving of the small goat carts upon our streets and sidewalks.

As a cure for Heart Disease, nervousness and sleeplessness, Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator is unsurpassed. 20 years trial prove it. $1. per bottle at druggists.

Compound Capsicum and Purified Petroleum, combined with other ingredients, make "Pomeroy's Petroline Porous Plasters," the best in the market. Price 25 cents. For sale at all Drug Stores.

MR. GREEN, of driven well fame, claims $20 each from 200 well owners at Jamesburg. A meeting was held by them at the office of Down & Finch, and they resolved that Mr. Green would get his claim only through the courts.—Asbury Park Journal.

Somers' antidote to malaria is the only remedy approaching a specific against malarial ailments. It has cured more chills and fever, or malaria in other forms, than any known remedy. Its popularity originates from the cures it has made; not from advertising. It advertises itself. A. Field, of A. Field and Sons, 79 Chambers street, New York, writes: "It has cured my children of malaria, and me, of an obstinate dyspepsia."

Life does not count by years. Some suffer a lifetime in a day, and so grow old between the rising and the setting of the sun.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth and Head ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price, 50 cents. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

Answer this question. Why do so many we see around us, seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cents, we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

A lazy man's soliloquy: "I would be quite willing to sit up at my meals if I could only lie down at my work."

Shiloh's Consumption Cure. This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis while it's wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since it's first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. If your Lungs are sore, Chest or Back, Lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

DURNO'S CATARRH SNUFF.

This well-known remedy for Catarrh still maintains its well earned popularity. E. A. Savage, of Geneva, Kansas, writes, March 4, 1880: "I have used Durno's Catarrh Snuff, and it is the only thing that does me any good. It always effects a cure." Sold by all druggists everywhere.

It was the newly-fledged bee that, after venturing out of the hive on a wet day, sang on its return, "There's no place like comb."

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

That is daily bringing joy to the homes of thousands by saving many of their dear ones from an early grave. Truly is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Loss of Voice, Tickling in the Throat, Pain in Side and Chest, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs, a positive cure. Guaranteed. Trial Bottles free at H. P. Reynolds' Drug Store. Large size $1.

AN UNDOUBTED BLESSING.

About thirty years ago, a prominent physician by the name of Dr. William Hall discovered, or produced after long experimental research, a remedy for diseases of the throat, chest and lungs, which was of such wonderful efficacy that it soon gained a wide reputation in this country. The name of the medicine is Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and may be safely relied on as a speedy and positive cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc. Sold by all druggists.

A young lady at San Leandro writes, informing us that she has found an infallible hint to remind prosy guests—chronic staylates to take their leave at a seasonable hour. She merely asks the 'sticker' to see whether the morning paper is on the front steps.

BY THE SAD SEA WAVES.

SAD AND LONELY AT THE END OF THE SEASON.

The Life of the Summer Hotel Man as Told by Himself.

"I presume that no one but a newspaper man who has traveled fourteen miles to report a political meeting and then has discovered that it is to be held at a town over in the next county, can appreciate the feeling of loneliness and leftness which comes to the proprietor of a summer-resort hotel at the end of the season. One has passed, as it were, from the busy haunts of men into the solitude of his own thoughts; from life and bustle and activity to death and slowness, and beauty unadorned; in short, one has been seated, as it were, upon the platform, in front of the band, dividing with the silver-tongued orator the admiration of the audience—but the supports have give way, the platform has tumbled and one has the bass cornetist's foot in his mouth, and the orator's pitcher of ice-water down his back!

"Yet we have had a good season. I don't deny that. In the first place, it was a long season; we hotel-keepers were taken out of pawn in June, and it is only now that we are going back to be camphored and ticketed and laid on the shelf for the winter. Then, again, the weather favored us; it wasn't too cold—and you may wager your newest election-hat that it wasn't one degree too warm. And most people were prepared to pay well for what they got. (I may add, in confidence, that they also paid well for a good many things they didn't get—but you'd better keep that to yourself.) I suppose, on the whole, I ought to be happy; but you know there is no such thing as complete satisfaction in this world. Did you ever see a goat which couldn't get away with one more circus-poster?

"There is one thing I must say, anyhow; I want the public to know that we are honest and straightforward. We are not a deceitful crowd! When one of you young fellows goes to a city boarding-house for a room, the landlady will tell you (that is, if you go in the summer) that the hall bedroom, say, is a cool room in summer; if you see her later, she will allege that it is a warm room in winter. Now, you might keep cool there in summer, if you had a good stock of grace and a refrigerator handy; and you might continue in a perspiration all winter, trying to get warm; but the landlady would probably lie to you once, at least, out of a possible two times. As for us—you know where to find us. You know that the bill may make you sweat, but that the building never will; that the rooms are the same, yesterday, to-day and forever—or until it becomes expedient to set fire to the hotel and go out of the business. In fact, when you look into the matter, you will very soon be convinced that, as compared with the landlords and landladies who have their whack at you, the year round, we are a reasonable and trustworthy race.

"It would astonish you I guess, to know how little money there is in dudes! A dude is not so useless as he looks, when it becomes a question of buckwheat-cakes and beef. I have seen a very thin and helpless appearing dude bring death and destruction to an extensive lay-out of that sort. I have learned to look with fear and trembling on 'consumptives,' too, and on women of fashion, likewise. I have discovered that a good many consumptives are at their worst (for the grub) about dinner-time; and that it is the fashion, with some women, to put in about eighty-five minutes between the soup and the dessert. But the dude, I think is the worst of the lot; for it is only at the table that he spreads himself. He sleeps on the roof, without a murmur, and he drinks eau sucre without a stick in it. I am going to stick him, next year, though; I am going to charge the water, as an extra, in the bill.

"Well, as we learn more we somehow become more intelligent, don't we? I thought, when I came here from Oshkosh, that I knew it all, but one season here has about convinced me that I can absorb a good deal more of information without unduly enlarging the pores. I shall take my old register, this winter, and try if the blank leaves will hold all that I don't know; and then, after I have filled it up, I will turn to the names of my guests, and I will say to myself: 'Young Blank didn't know that Miss Jenks was considerably poorer than Job's turkeys were before he began to fatten 'em for Thanksgiving; old maid Bell didn't know she was a worse sight than a man with delirium tremens, when she came out of the surf; and Hillis didn't know that it was a six-dollar clerk to whom he gave his daughter. To be sure all these people knew how to run a hotel! They gave acres of advice, off and on; but—take it all around—perhaps I wasn't the only fool at the Beach, after all.'"

CIVIL RIGHTS BILL UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

A decision was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States a few weeks ago, in five Civil Rights cases. They were prosecutions under the Civil Rights act for not admitting certain colored persons to equal accommodations and privileges in inns and hotels, in railroad cars and in theatres. The Court holds that Congress had no constitutional authority to pass the first and second sections of the Civil Rights act of March 1st, 1875, under either the Thirteenth or Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution. The decision however, is held to apply only to the validity of the law in the States, and not in the Territories or the District of Columbia, where the legislative power of Congress is unlimited. So far as the States are concerned, the two sections of the law above referred to are declared unconstitutional and void. Justice Harlan dissented, as the opinions defeated the intention of the people and what they supposed they had accomplished.

The White House is refurnished every year, yet no one knows what becomes of the furniture that is taken out. Turn the rascals out.

The preliminary estimates for the next annual River and Harbor job have been handed to Secretary Lincoln by the Chief of Engineers. They amount to the enormous sum of $35,000,000. A judicious pruning of this estimate by the Secretary of War would strike off the figure 3, and leave the odd $5,000,000 as a more than sufficient margin for further reduction by Congress. Should Congress then strike from the $5,000,000 thus submitted to it the last figure, or, still better, the first, its action would be wise, and generally approved. There must be no River and Harbor job next year.

DROWNED IN BEER.

Concerning this Popular Beverage Two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphor. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, N. Y.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Catherine S. Vail, complainant, and Caroline T. Markly, et als., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock, p. m., of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and state of New Jersey:

Beginning at a stone in the middle of Fourth and Centre streets; thence running in a northwesterly direction along the line of the middle of Centre street, three chains and eighty-one and a half links; thence in a northeasterly direction in a line parallel with Fourth street, two chains and ninety-six links; thence in a southeasterly direction in a line parallel with Centre street, three chains and eighty-one and a half links, to the middle of Fourth street; thence in a southwesterly direction along the line of the middle of Fourth street, two chains and ninety-six links to the place of beginning. Being the same premises occupied by Stephen Vail, deceased, in his lifetime, as a homestead, and containing one and twelve one-hundredths of an acre, more or less. Excepting, however, from the above described tract so much thereof as is hereinafter particularly described, that is to say: commencing at the point where the southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's [widow] lot on Central avenue and Third street intersects the easterly line of Central avenue; thence running southerly along said easterly line of Central avenue, sixty feet; thence easterly and parallel with the aforesaid southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's lot, one hundred and seventy [170] feet more or less to the westerly line of a lot of land belonging to Mrs. McDermott, and now occupied as a stone yard; thence northerly along the westerly line of Mrs. McDermott's lot, sixty [60] feet to the point where this westerly line of Mrs. McDermott's lot is met or intersected by the southerly line hereinbefore mentioned of Margaret K. Vail's lot; thence westerly along this southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's lot one hundred and seventy [170] feet, more or less, to the place of beginning. Also, all the right, title, and interest in the roadway lying in front of the last above described tract to the middle of Central avenue, which belongs or may belong to the said Catharine S. Vail.

POETRY.

LEFT!

A Summer evening—
A low, square room.
One-half moon-lighted
And half in gloom.

From out the stillness
A girl's voice floats,
And charms my soul
With its sad, sweet notes.

The music draws me,
With witchery sweet,
To lay my heart
At the singer's feet.

I pause a moment,
And, while I wait,
I hear the latch
Of the garden gate.

A shadow darkens
The moonlit square;
A touch falls soft
On the girl's bright hair.

A sudden silence—
A startled cry—
And they are happy!

* * * *

But where am I?

THE SONG OF THE HEN.

A minstrel am I of a single lay
But I sing it the whole day long,
In the crowded coop, or the breezy way
I warble my simple song.
Only an egg, with its clear white shell,
The sea hath no pearl more fair—
And over that spheroid I cackle and yell,
And holler and rassel and rair.

Oh, a frail, weak thing is my ovate gem,
As it lies in my straw-lined nest;
But it taketh the orator, stern and stem,
When it catches him on the crest,
There is might in its weakness, when it goes
Down in the afternoon of life,
It can lead a strong man by the nose
When it mixeth itself in the strife.

I am no slugger; the hawk that swoops
Must hunt for me under the thatch,
And yet in the field or the noisy coops
I always come up to the scratch,
So I sing the only lay that I know,
In numbers becomingly meek;
Because, though 'my son never sets,' I know
That my life will be ended necks tweak.

OUR NEW DEVIL.

HE DABBLES IN STOCKS AND IS LEFT.

For that Reason He Suddenly Practices Economy and Blackens His Shoes with Stove Polish and Assumes a Melancholy and Forlorn Air.

"Why, hello!" exclaimed the city reporter to Splint as he meandered into the sanctum the other morning with his shoes blackened with stove polish. "Going into the stove polish business? I see you have your sign out."

"Nowp!" he exclaimed with a sigh as big as the Washington monument. "Practicing economy, that's all. You see since I lost so heavily in stocks, I have to be a little saving for a while, until I can get my wages raised."

"Been dabbling in stocks have you?" inquired the reporter.

"That's about the size of it," replied Splint. "Yes, I've been playing hide and seek with the bulls and bears a little, and I got left. Behold before you a bankrupt; a busted, bloated monopolist; a total wreck; a financial c—rash!"

"Why, how did it all happen?" asked the reporter. "Come sit down here on this Chinese ottoman, (a soap box covered with a rag carpet,) and tell us all about it."

Splint sat down, propped his feet upon the mahogany editorial desk, and lighting a fresh cigarette, began:

"Well, I'll tell you. You see last week I met a fellow from New York city; a fresh looking chap. He came up to me down at the post office, and, says he: 'Look here young fellow, see what I've just made in a little stock speculation in New York.' Sure enough he had a handful of the crispest kind of bank notes. Then he continued: 'I'll tell you what I'll do with you. Do you want to become rich?' I told him that was what I had been sighing for all these years. 'Do you want to own whole blocks of brownstone?' I told him I should be pleased to do so. 'Do you want to revel in riches?' he went on. I told him that I kind of had a hankering after that sort of thing. 'Then invest in stocks,'" he said.

"And you invested?" inquired the reporter.

"Well, I should muttah!" Splint exclaimed. "I invested too cussed much for my health. Why, do you know that fellow had the richest blood I ever saw. He was the slickest cuss this side of Ohio."

"Well, never mind about his blood," interrupted the reporter, "but tell us about your stock transactions."

"Well," Splint continued, "I met the fresh young fellow the next evening by appointment, or, I should say by the post office, and his face wore a smile that was childlike and bland, and as broad as Boston Common, as he came up to me and shook hands. He immediately informed me in a most fatherly way that he had taken a great interest in me, and wanted to see me get rich right off. On the spot, as it were."

"Well?" interrogated the reporter, as Splint stopped to draw his breath.

"Well," continued Splint, "as I was saying I met him the next evening, and he unfolded a scheme by which I could become rich in about, well, say, prematurely rich, as it were. He informed me that he had just received a telegram from New York stating that he had just been made agent for the 'Lose-all-you-got' silver mining company in Colorado, and told me that stock was then selling at 85, and wanted me to invest a small sum."

"Did you invest?" inquired the reporter.

"Well," Splint replied, "I invested a few. I bought about thirty shares, for the young fellow told me that the stock would boom way up in a few days, as soon as the thing became generally known."

"Did it boom?" asked the reporter.

"Naw!" Splint exclaimed. "The next day the stock dropped to 62, and when I met that agent I was mad. He told me that was all right. Stock frequently did that, and all you had to do was to buy more stock to cover what he called 'shorts.'"

"Yes, that is frequently done," remarked the reporter.

"So," continued Splint, "I bought twenty-five more shares to cover the condemned 'shorts' so that I would make up for what I lost on the 'longs,' I think he called it, and the next day the cussed stock took another tumble and dropped to 41. Then I got mad."

"Getting shorter right along," said the reporter.

"Yes, a few," he continued, "but then you know I don't care for money; I'm a sort of walking National bank, you know, and I bought forty shares more to cover 'shorts.' If the stock ever did go up I was going to own the whole mine."

"Well, did she boom any?" inquired the reporter, becoming interested.

"Yes, she boomed down to 11 the next day," Splint replied. "But I met the agent a few days after that and he said the stock had gone way up to 98. He couldn't account for it until he received some specimens of gold from Colorado, and then everybody wanted to buy me out."

"Did you sell?" inquired the reporter.

"Well, no," replied Splint. "I wish I had. If I knew what I know now I'd sold out and made 22 on the whole investment, and retired from the 'case.' But I was so confident of success that I bought the whole mine, and that night I went to bed and dreamed of buried millions and all that sort of thing. Well, I got up in the morning and felt as though I owned the whole town. I was just going down the street to buy two or three blocks of houses, when—"

"When what?" interrogated the reporter.

"When a man came up to me and told me the mine was 'salted,' and that stock was quoted at 0."

"Where was the agent?" inquired the reporter.

"Where?" repeated Splint, "that's what no fellow can find out," and he proceeded to dust off the stove and wipe away a tear with the same rag.

BRUNO'S DECISION.

What became of him? The remarkable effect that can be produced upon animals by the tones of the human voice, would be considered, by some, confirmatory of the idea that they have minds sufficient to understand what is said to them. For instance, in the days of my childhood, when Jersey City residents had gardens and plots on the outskirts, of several acres in extent, there lived (on now Green street, near the railroad car-house and yard) a Mr. Fortunatus Stone. Around his place were numerous large willow trees; the old wind-mill in the (near) distance, and the North (Hudson) river came nearly up to the back door. The city of New York was immediately opposite in the form of a crescent. It was a charming view long to be remembered. Mr. Stone kept lots of chickens and several cows and a large dog named Brun, who would drive the cows to pasture, take down the bars with his teeth, drive them in and replace the bars (which were made light purposely) then jog home and wait until milking time, when he would be told to go for the cows. This he did regularly, until, old age coming on, his teeth decayed and he met with difficulty in the performance of this duty, and oftimes required help. The nobler animal (man) rebelled against this extra task, and one night as the family sat around the "fire on the heart," as usual, Bruno lying beside them with his head on his paws, blinking his eyelids in seeming enjoyment, and drinking in the talk and the warmth of the blaze as was his custom, (for it was now Autumn) someone remarked: "It is tedious doing that dog's work for him; he'll be of no more use, now that his teeth are gone. About the best thing that can be done will be to kill him, and not have him under our feet about the fire all winter." Of course they all gave their opinion, but concluded that his days would end very soon. "He had been a nice dog; they had had him many years; were sorry to part with him," etc. Bruno, in his quiet fashion, was hearing all—and, resolving what?—who can tell? Was it man's ingratitude and the small valuation set upon his life services? or did his poor heart then and there break with grief and disappointment? We may never know—for the next morning he went as usual to the pasture with the cows and attendant, but did not return, nor was he ever seen afterwards. Did he commit suicide? He was too old and worn out to exist long, away from his home comforts. He had heard them talk of killing chickens and had seen the operation; he knew it meant something dreadful was about to happen to him. Was it the sorrowful tone of some voice whose owner had spent many happy hours with him in youthful sports? Who may tell? At all events I never could feel it right to discuss the prospective death of any animal in its presence. Who can tell how much they understand and know? It really seemed pathetic, this "taking of himself off," and I cried, and I was not the only one in my grief, for it was a regret of years duration—ever finishing with the remark—"who thought he'd know what was said? poor doggie, good, faithful doggie!" It is a general supposition that people are insane who commit suicide. Did ever any one imagine an animal so insane as to kill itself? Certainly Bruno was not insane!

CHURCH vs. RAILROAD.

The Classis of Raritan at a special meeting held in the First Reformed church of Somerville, N. J., Oct. 24th, 1883, adopted the following minute, which they directed to be sent to the Philadelphia and Reading R. R. Co., and also to the newspapers along the line of the road with a request for its publication.

Believing as we do that God has commanded all men to keep one day in seven a day of worship and of rest from secular activities; and believing that the interests of Christianity are closely connected with the observance of this command; that if men are to worship and to learn their duties and privileges in Christ it is indispensable that they should have their Sunday undisturbed by the ordinary week day interruptions and occupations; believing also that the maintenance of the weekly rest-day is necessary to the physical welfare of our people:

Therefore we, the members of the Classis of Raritan, Reformed Church of America, have observed with deep regret and pain the action of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, in recently adding largely to the number of Sunday trains upon their roads passing through this state. We earnestly protest against this action and request its reversal upon the following grounds:

(1) That the sentiment of our best citizens upon the line of these roads does not demand nor favor the running of these additional trains on Sunday. The absolute necessities of Sunday travel were sufficiently provided for before; and it is not the desire of our people that unusual facilities should be offered to those who for purposes of recreation may travel on Sunday to the disturbance of the quiet of others.

(2) That to some of our churches near the railroad the noise of outgoing and incoming trains, the whistling and bell ringing, and the passing of crowds of people to and from the railroad station have become a serious annoyance and interruption of worship on Sunday since the change to which we refer was made.

(3) That families living in the country who are obliged to cross the railroad tracks to reach their churches are in many instances hindered from driving to church by reason of these Sunday trains.

(4) That some members of our churches who are railroad employees are by this new departure deprived of their Sunday rest and religious privileges, and are compelled to work on Sunday or lose their situations.

(5) That our people generally are by this means familiarized with the desecration of the Lord's day, and habits of Sunday lounging and recreation are fostered, which are adverse not only to church interests but to the public morals and the welfare of all our communities.

THE classes of New Brunswick have appointed a committee to select a site for a new Reformed church in the southern part of New Brunswick.

PICTURESQUE PLAINFIELD PORTRAYED.

Pen Sketch of Our City—What Nature Has Done For It—The Sanitary Condition—Improvements Needed.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Permit an observer the use of a little space in your excellent paper to express a few thoughts and offer some suggestions respecting your beautiful city as a desirable place of residence.

Those who find enjoyment in the lovely landscape, in communing with nature, can there look with pleasure on romantic hills, verdant slopes, varied and picturesque scenery, and can breathe bountifully an invigorating and life-giving atmosphere.

When the great Creator called into being our first parents, He did not place them in a city surrounded and circumscribed by walls of brick, stone and mortar, towering to the clouds; neither did he compel them to fill their lungs daily with the thick polluted vapors that hang like a pall around the stores, shops, factories and cesspools of a densely crowded metropolis. He gave them a home in Eden where they could bathe in the soft sunlight of Heaven and breathe the pure air that nestled among the branches of the "Tree of Life," amid the ever changing foliage of the garden, sweet with the breath of those virgin flowers which first bloomed in that earthly paradise.

From such sources, in part, it was designed that happiness should emanate; such the model of an earthly dwelling place. He endowed man with capacities to receive enjoyment by contact with everything beautiful and lovely in nature and by a reflex influence bear aloft the holy aspirations of the soul to Heaven.

Plainfield approximates so nearly to this ideal that it is unsurpassed as an attractive location for all who desire a permanent home.

Nature has done much for Plainfield. Not least among her choicest gifts is pure, sparkling water. Hitherto, this has been available everywhere by simply driving a hole in the ground. But time brings forth what time cannot keep back. Already this priceless blessing is merging into a curse. It is to be feared that this best of all friends is fast assuming the role of an enemy, as facts now coming to the front too truly attest. A secret and insidious foe has been lurking, beneath the soil, growing with accelerated strength, and is even now doing its work of pollution and death.

It is a truth too obvious to need demonstration that the soil and sub-soil of Plainfield is fast becoming permeated with deposits of filth from all sources thrown upon it and buried during the past.

Grounds thus made the receptacle of foul drainings until they have become saturated with all that is offensive can no longer be expected to yield water that is fit to drink. The sanitary condition of Plainfield is a matter too serious to be postponed. All history tells us that pure water and plenty of it is not only indispensible to health, but necessary for the proper enjoyment of every other blessing. Plainfield, beautiful for situation, hitherto enviable for considerations that make her unequalled as a place in which to live, should have in the near future an abundance of good, pure water, and with it, some system of sewerage that will dispense with cess-pools and dispose of all unhealthful accumulations.

With these much-needed improvements she could boast of as pure air and water as now fans the mountain side or trickles down its water-fall. She would then justly rank pre-eminent. Plainfield cannot afford to stand still or to retrograde. If she does, her property must depreciate, consequences will follow which will prove fatal to her interests and she will soon publish her own obituary.

G.

UPHOLDING THE LAW.

'Oh, pa, there is an awful fight around the corner!'

'Yes?' said pa, indifferently.

'And one man has chewed the other's ear off.'

'Yes?'

'And the other man has shot off his pistol and killed a baby!'

'Poor baby,' yawned pa.

'Ain't you goin' round there?'

'Presently,' replied pa.

In a short time everything became quiet, and pa rushed frantically around the corner and arrested an old woman for selling matches without a license.

Pa was a policeman.

A FINE VIEW.

Two Boston Gentlemen, while tramping through the White Mountains the past summer, came across a lonely but among the hills from which the prospect was particularly fine and extended. The proprietor of the establishment was hoeing in a small garden, and the travelers began to quiz him. Said one:

"You have an excellent view from your house?"

"Purty fair," replied the farmer."

"I suppose," continued the first speaker, winking at his companion, "on a clear day you can see almost to Europe?"

"Kin see further than that," returned the man.

"How so?" was asked in surprise.

"We don't think nothin' of seein' as fur as the mūne!"

The Bostonians had found their match.

THE LAWS OF TRADE.

"Twenty-three dollars for that 'ere stove!" she exclaimed, as she held up her hands in horror.

"Yes'm—twenty-three."

"But iron is down."

"Yes."

"I seen in the papers during the last month where as many as six big iron companies have failed."

"Well?"

"Well, that ought to make stoves cheaper, and I know it."

"Madam, in the last two months death has laid his hand upon as many as twenty-five young 'uns in this town."

"Yes, poor things."

"But are nursing bottles any cheaper than three months ago?"

"N-o," she slowly admitted.

"Of course not, madam. The laws of trade are immutable. The best I can do is to throw in a horseradish grater, if you take the stove at $23."

FRANK MOORE, convicted of robbing the Pennsylvania railroad cars of silk at East New Brunswick on June 19th, was sentenced at New Brunswick to ten years in State Prison.

THE Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company's steamer Pottsville, which has been ashore on the beach at Lavalette, N. J., since last January, was got off on Monday of last week.

SCATTERED LEAVES.

GATHERED FROM OUT THE FOREST OF LIFE.

Commodity—the bias of the world.

Courtesy—the fine art of character.

What is the use of thinking right and doing wrong?

Vice—the greatest of all Jacobins, the arch leveller.

Patience—the endurance of an evil out of love to God.

Tears—crystal beads with which heaven shall be bribed.

It is a poor specimen of humanity that worships humanity.

Reverence—a feeling that waves the aureole of sainthood.

The dewey face of childhood—the dawn of a new era of progress.

Imagination—the herald of King Reason and his Queen Truth.

Beauty—Part of the finished language by which goodness speaks.

The pride of integrity—richer and holier than the pride of a coronet.

Law without penalty—not only worthless but a positive worker of ill.

Misers—the greatest spendthrifts; and spendthrifts often become the greatest misers.

Honor—like the shadow follows those who flee from it, but flees from those who pursue it.

Enthusiasm—purpose's heart of fire that acts the engiury of life to its work of achievement.

Happy dreams—pleasant, and they easily come to an end with daylight and its stir of life.

Divine love—a sacred flower, which in its early bud is happiness, and in its full bloom is heaven.

No man—sane on things that respect the feelings, who does know how to be insane on proper occasions.

Principle—a loom that weaves the purple and a pick that digs the gold for the coronation of character.

Respectable rascality—dragon teeth sown in the heart of the State to spring into their harvest of woe.

Love to man—the eye through which we may look and see the face of God bending above us in infinite Fatherhood.

The old—mother of the new, and her children should never forget the debt they owe her, nor cease ever to reverence her?

Grumbling at the weather—disloyalty to the King whose army of elements march the universe, bestrewing blessings in its wake.

Shakespeare—a moral teacher only by his sensitive intellectual sympathy with all the needs and joys and sorrows of humanity.

The distinction between young America and old America—very nearly the same as the distinction between a mushroom and an oak-tree.

Words—distorted and misconstrued, and two upright men, between whom one frank, open conversation would set all right, are separated forever.

Man—like a watch; if evening and morning he is not wound up with prayer and circumspection, he is unprofitable and false, or serves to mislead.

Ignorance and prejudice—a splendid bow with which to hurl darts of vindictiveness—a bow that passes easily into the hands of that base Archer, Slander.

A good heart—built of God's love out of the soil of time's necessities, and fragrant as the flower is built of a sunbeam out of earth's mould, and breathes perfume.

The deadliest poison you can distill into the wine of life—a fearful reserve which creates suspicion, or a lie that will canker and kill your own love, and through that your friends.

All true religion—a sense of want; and where want goes to sleep on possession, it becomes bewildered, and, when occasionally opening its eyes, sees nothing with the clearness of reality.

A man—older in America at twenty-five years of age than he is at forty in Europe; and we put responsibilities on young men here that it would not be thought of putting upon a man in England till his life was half gone.

A man is supposed to know himself and have good reason for everything he does. It is as unfair as it is unmanly to imagine our reasons into another man's actions and by them judge him. Let him be his own vindication.

The conscious feeling of growth in intellect or heart is wonderfully helpful to that growth. It lifts one out of many a "slough of despond" into the life-giving air above. Like reinforcements, as it is, it nerves for new onsets and new victories.

Happy the man who has the forgiving heart of the little child. One moment all its energies concentrated in a thunder cloud of anger, the next moment the sunshine of love and laughter holds the heaven of its heart, and you, though in the wrong, are forgiven.

Well regulated society, society that is threaded and thrilled with common sense, is a better safeguard against divorce than all the laws of all the statute books, because it is then likely to mate only those whom God and nature had before mated, and to such is never the wish of separation.

The Bible is not enough. Every man wants, and needs, other books, just as sunlight is not enough. We want sunlight built into the rose, into the corn and wheat, into the sunny eyes and blushhued cheek of childhood, into the soft-cheeked peach and the purple globed grape. The fruits of the sunlight is what men need as much as the sunlight itself. So we need the Bible's thought as it is builded into other thought; we want to see the fruit it bears when planted in man's brain and heart. And the sight and taste of that fruit is as necessary as the Bible itself. The Bible in the color of some heart—that is what delights men, and its substance feeds him.

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

In thankful recognition of the unbounded kindness and continued mercies and blessings which our Heavenly Father and Ruler has bestowed upon us during the past year, I, GEORGE C. LUDLOW, Governor of the State of New Jersey, do hereby designate and appoint THURSDAY, THE TWENTY-NINTH DAY OF NOVEMBER INSTANT, to be observed throughout this State as a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God; and I recommend that on that day ordinary business occupations be suspended, and that the people assemble in their several places of religious worship and unite in praise, thanksgiving and prayer.

Given under my hand and private seal at the Executive Chamber, in the City of Trenton, this second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and eighth.

[L. S.] G. C. LUDLOW, Governor.

Attest: JOS. L. NAAR, Private Secretary.

POPULAR RIGHTS.

It is a truth of political history, that from the very establishment of the Federal Constitution, two opposing forces have existed in this country actively striving for the mastery.

One of them, openly and faithfully cherished by the Democratic party, has sought to confer upon the people equal rights and privileges, and the other, supported by various partisan organizations that have from time to time arisen antagonistic to the Democratic, has ever aimed to concentrate governing power and monied influence in the hands of the favored few.

That has been the contest from the beginning, and it remains to-day, however artfully draped, to be a living controversy.

The fact cannot be disguised by any species of political subterfuge, that strenuous efforts are now making, in this land of professed freedom, to consolidate wealth and its mercenary power in immense personal fortunes, at the expense of the toiling masses and the general public good.

"But," we may be asked, "do you object to men becoming vastly rich?"

No, we do not, but on the contrary hail with pleasure the success of any man as the possessor of riches, provided, they are the product of honest skill and industry.

We do however object, and will continue to wage war against the system of levying crushing tribute upon the many for the purpose of making millionaires of the comparative few.

That iniquitous system is rampant at the present time, and not only fast creating a monied aristocracy, but destroying legitimate business pursuits by the robber hands of unprincipled monopoly and gambling speculation.

We are in favor of giving every citizen a full and free opportunity to prosper and grow rich, the small tradesman equally with the heavy capitalist, and the mechanic and laborer as securely, in their life spheres, as he who points with pride to millions invested in untaxed bonds.

We shall refer to the subject again, it being one of vital importance to the preservation of popular rights.

Democracy lives and will never die.

Democrats! Pick your flints for '84.

New Jersey is Democratic to the tune of 6,800.

Maryland stands firmly Democratic and so does Mississippi.

The Democratic majority in the State of New York is about 18,000.

Why not make DeWitt C. Hough Speaker of the House of Assembly?

It will not do for any political aspirant in New Jersey to ignore the people.

Judge Dixon is a canny politician. He held tightly on to the bird and let the bush severely alone.

The splendid majority given to Governor-elect Abbett is a just rebuke to malignant personal slander.

Virginia proudly raises the banner of Democracy over the combined power of Mahone, treason and Federal patronage.

The Republicans carried Pennsylvania by less than their usual majority, thereby verifying the declaration that "the Dutch have taken Holland."

Our friend Vetterlein made a fine run for the House of Assembly in Somerset; another year will record him a winner.

We confidently assert that Leon Abbett will prove to be one of the most honorable and efficient Governors New Jersey ever had.

It was sensible action on the part of many intelligent Republicans, both here and in Rahway, to withhold their votes from an unknown Assembly candidate and give them to Dr. Hough whom the people favorably know.

Massachusetts defeated Gov. Butler, but is terribly agitated over his enormous following of 150,000 voters. Old Ben is full of fight, promising to enter the battle again next year and make things lively around Tewksbury.

Shame ought to crimson the face of those professed decency-loving editors, who for the past two months have been so disreputably engaged manufacturing and circulating false charges against the Hon. Leon Abbett, now the triumphantly elected Governor of New Jersey.

During the past week eighteen new engines have been placed on the Pennsylvania Railroad. They will be used on the passenger trains between Jersey City and Philadelphia. The driving wheels on these locomotives are six and one-half feet in diameter, and are the largest ever cast.

The effect of vile political falsehood and malice was plainly manifested in the County of Mercer at the recent election, where a venom-steeped sheet labored so hard to defame the Democratic candidate for Governor, that the majority of 400 given to Mr. Potts in 1880 was transformed into about as much for Mr. Abbett in 1883.

It is amusing to read about Democratic money in Plainfield keeping voters out of a Republican "Hall." If certain would-be engineers of the Republican party can collect their shattered energies sufficiently to go among the people, not the kid-glove fraternity, they will readily ascertain the cause.—It was not money that burst your boiler, gentlemen!

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

There will not be very much or important patronage at the disposal of Governor Abbott. He will have the appointment of a Private Secretary, a Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, in place of Mercer Beasley, the present incumbent; Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals, vice Judges Caleb S. Green, M. Cole and Wm. H. Kirk; a Clerk in Chancery, in place of Mr. Duryee, whose term will expire in May, in 1886; Prosecutors of the Pleas in Passaic, Camden, Mercer, Gloucester, Cumberland, Burlington, Salem, Bergen, Union and Warren counties.

STATE ITEMS.

At Trenton, Nov. 8th, the Supreme Court gave two opinions with relation to libel suits against newspapers. It affirmed the judgment of the State against Messrs. Gibbs & Stanton, of the Sussex Independent of Deckertown, and denied the motion to quash the indictment secured by Senator John Carpenter, Jr., of Hunterdon county, against Lawrence S. Mott, of the Trenton Times.

The Long Branch Ocean Pier Company's Directors met recently and sold the pier to the Central Railroad of New Jersey for $97,500. It was stated that the railroad company would not take possession of the structure until next Spring, and that the pier would then be torn up and sold. The boats running to the pier have drawn a great deal of travel from the railroad. It is stated that James A. Bradley, the founder of Asbury Park, has agreed to take the pier after it was torn down, and would build several promenade piers out of it at the Park.

At Trenton, United States Senator Sewell, Strickland Kneass, Edmund Smith, Isaac S. Buckalew, William Bettle, Charles P. Stratton, Delos E. Cheever, Charles T. Parry, William T. Bailey, B. F. Archer, Charles S. Ridgway, George M. Dorrance and Ralph B. Gowdy have filed in the office of the Secretary of State articles of incorporation for the Long Beach Railroad Company to run from Barnegat City down to Long Beach and across the bay to the mainland, and down to Tuckerton and Absecom. The length of the road proposed is 46 miles, and it will open up a heretofore undeveloped section of the New Jersey coast between Atlantic City and Barnegat. The capital is $500,000. The incorporators are nearly all interested in the Pennsylvania Railroad.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The new firm of butchers, J. Nelson & Co. are out with a new price list this week.

George B. Lines has opened a new meat and vegetable market corner of Central and North avenues.

Collector W. W. Connoly has gone on a two weeks trip to the West, expecting to get as far as Kansas City before his return.

Mr. Wm. Foster, who formerly resided on Westfield avenue, has removed the past week with his family to Minneapolis, Minn., where he has engaged in business.

On Thursday morning, Nov. 9, the sudden death of Mrs. N. K. Day occurred at her residence on Elm street, from heart disease. On that morning she was attending to her household duties as usual. Her husband had gone to his work and her son to his business in New York city. The butcher called at about 10 o'clock and took her order for meat. He returned in about half an hour and found her lying in the basement dead. Dr. Harrison was immediately summoned, but could be of no avail. He telegraphed to County Physician Terrill, who arrived at two o'clock. After inquiring into the facts of the case he gave a permit of burial. The funeral occurred on Sunday afternoon in the M. E. Church, which was largely attended by relatives and friends of the deceased. The Rev. Warren Hoagland officiated. Interment in Fairview Cemetery.

On Monday evening, the 5th inst, there was a most pleasant and happy gathering at the residence of Squier Radley, in Westfield township. Fifty years ago that night he and Susan A. Woodruff were married, and now a large company came to celebrate their golden wedding. They were each born in sight of this old homestead, were playmates together at the school at Willow Grove, always lived in the same neighborhood, and each are now 71 years of age. They were blessed with six children, all of whom married and were present at the golden wedding. There are now 28 grandchildren and one great grandchild. The tables groaned under the weight of good things. At one of the tables twelve persons were seated who were all over 70 years of age, one being 86 years and five of them attended the wedding fifty years ago. Among the guests present were a few from Rahway, Plainfield and Philadelphia, also Henry Baker, Dr. F. A Kinch and the Rev. N. W. Cadwell of Westfield, the latter of whom made a few remarks suitable to the occasion.

The coroner's inquest in the case of Joseph and George Stedley for beating Joseph's wife, concluded their labors on Tuesday afternoon, they having examined some seventeen witnesses in all. After the hearing of the medical testimony in the case which was to the effect that Mrs. Stedley had died from pneumonia of the left lung, but that the remote cause of death might have been from the bruises she had received, the jury retired and in a very few moments arrived at the following verdict: That Elizabeth Stedley came to her death from natural causes. Coroner Lowrie immediately gave officer Marsh the discharge from jail, where they had been confined sixteen days, for Joseph and George. Frank Lemke, one of the witnesses examined before the coroner's jury on Tuesday, went to Elizabeth on the 6 o'clock train to meet the Stedleys, they being friends of his, he having boarded with them before the decease of Mrs. Stedley. At about 7.40 that evening he attempted to cross the Pennsylvania Railroad at the crossing near the depot, directly in front of the Lehigh Valley express, and was caught by the engine and instantly killed. The body was taken to the morgue. It was most horribly mangled; nearly beyond recognition. County Physician Terrill immediately notified his friends in Westfield.

The Peculiar Old Mystery!

It was one of the peculiarities of the old-fashioned Doctors that they never would tell patients what they were prescribing for them. They said it would do the patients no good to know, and that it would only be gratifying a foolish curiosity. In order to keep patients from knowing, they would write the prescriptions in dog-Latin, so that most patients could not read them. All that sort of thing is now over. The patient wants to know what he takes. He is weak, and wants to be strong; or he is dyspeptic, and wants to digest well. Or he has a troublesome liver which he wants to put to rights. So he takes Brown's Iron Bitters about which there is no mystery at all. This is the best preparation of iron in the world, in combination with gentle yet efficient tonics. It gives strength. It builds up enfeebled systems. It enriches impoverished blood. It removes feminine weaknesses. It casts out debility. It is what YOU want, and your druggist has it. 2

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to the third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

WALTER L. HETFIELD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 23, 1883.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Footways and Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The tenant, occupant, or any person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square or public place within the city, where there is any footway or sidewalk, and in case there may be no tenant, occupant, or other person having the care of the whole of any such building or lot, the owner shall put, maintain and keep such footway or sidewalk in good and sufficient repair, even on the surface, and so constructed as freely to shed water, and for the width of at least three feet, if said footway or sidewalk be that wide. If not, then for the whole width thereof, shall make and keep it free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other barriers or obstacles; and in all cases in which at any time any footway or sidewalk is not in the condition required by this section, such tenant, occupant, owner, or other person, as aforesaid, shall forthwith cause the same to be repaired or put in above condition in conformity herewith.

Sec. 2. The street Commissioner is hereby authorized to notify and order persons liable under the preceding section to comply with the requirements thereof; and every such person neglecting or refusing to comply therewith within one week after such notification and order of the street commissioner shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to a fine not exceeding ten dollars, and for each and every week thereafter that such neglect or refusal shall continue any further sum not exceeding ten dollars; and in case such neglect or refusal shall continue for the space of nine days after such notification and order of the street commissioner, the street commissioner may cause the necessary repairs to be made, and the person or persons so notified under this or the preceding section shall be liable for the costs incurred in making such repairs in addition to the fine.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER IN UNION COUNTY.

OH, for a North Plainfield lock-up.

THIS week's weather caused cold fingers among the laborers on the Opera House.

WINTER put in an appearance on Monday last.

NOW gird on your armor for city election.

EMPTY store buildings are a rarity in Plainfield.

THE Council meets again Tuesday evening, the 27th inst.

THE Grove street bridge at last approaches completion.

TWO weeks from Tuesday will occur the Charter Election.

HEAVY overcoats are now in demand. Read our Clothiers' advertisements.

THE first real snow squall of the season went scurrying by on Monday last.

ANOTHER chance to register, if you have neglected it, will be given on the 27th.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Union Club, will be held next Monday evening, at eight o'clock.

THE Rev. Alexander H. Tuttle will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church, next Sunday morning and evening.

TO-DAY the grand fair of St. Mary's opened. Don't fail to attend it. Lots of attractions behind as well as on the tables.

THE Crescent avenue Young People's Association will hold one of its enjoyable sociables in the church parlors, this evening.

THE 8th annual Ball of No. 2 Hose Co., will take place at Blaiz's Hall, Wednesday evening, the 28th inst. Music by Prof. Ottes (formerly Bannan) of New York and a good time.

THE Young People's Association of the Park avenue Baptist church will hold its first social entertainment of the season, Monday evening. Music and other pleasing features have been arranged.

UPON the advice of the Corporation Counsel, pending a decision in the present suit for a mandamus against the city by the county, the Treasurer will pay no warrants issued in settlement of claims.

THE Freehold papers of last week contain flattering notice of the recent wedding in that city of Miss Mamie E. Hyer, only daughter of Capt. J. H. Hyer of Holmdel, and Mr. William I. White of North Plainfield.

ANOTHER special sale of dry and fancy goods by Edsall is announced in our columns this issue, to commence next Monday, and continue all the week. This is a good way to make trade lively, as this house fully understands.

MR. JOHN LAVINE, the able Manager, announces two vocal recitals by Mr. and Mrs. Georg Henschel, at Chickering Hall, during the afternoon of Dec. 4th, and the evening of Dec. 11th. The programmes are very attractive.

THE Turn Vereins at their Hall on Second street, last Wednesday evening, held one of their enjoyable evening dances. It is to be followed by another next Thursday evening, and a Grand Ball, Christmas Eve, Dec. 24th.

THE owners of property at LaGrande avenue and Franklin place, intend setting out the fence to about the edge of the present sidewalk. Such action, it is needless to say, does not receive the enthusiastic commendation of adjoining residents.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, last Tuesday evening, was adjourned for want of a quorum until Tuesday of next week. President Van Winkle and Commissioners Morris and Jones were present.

THE Newark Free Press is the title of a new paper recently started at Newark.—It is issued every Sunday morning by L. J. Hamilton. Mr. Joseph Atkinson is the editor. The Press is a neat looking sheet and well edited. We wish the new venture the success it deserves.

IN Mr. E. P. Thorn's liquor saloon are displayed two fine engravings of Washington and Jackson, surmounted with frames of cherry wood, which were the handiwork of Mr. Thorn's father, Jacob Thorn. The pictures are valued highly for their antiquity and the reminiscences surrounding their former ownership.

JOHN J. FORD, proprietor of "The Office" in Trenton, which has been the stopping place of many Legislators every winter, died Sunday morning last, after a lingering illness. He was forty-three years old. Mr. Ford was popular among State politicians everywhere, and leaves an estate valued at $40,000. It was said that his style of serving oysters excelled anything between New York and Philadelphia.

A MOST welcome and highly appreciated visitor to our sanctum, recently, was a case of most delicious champagne from our kind friend Mr. F. Neuffer, manager for the well known house of Theophile Roederer & Co., of Reims. We need only say in commendation that the wine is to-day the most popular in the market as well as at such leading Clubs as the Union, Knickerbocker, University and Manhattan, and has received the enthusiastic approval of the ablest connoisseur everywhere.

Sixty-Third street and Third avenue.

The attractions of the American InstituteFair of the present season exceed—although seemingly impossible—those of past years, and the interest and patronage has increased, as was deserved, proportionately. Machinery and manufacture in operation, thousands of articles of use and ornament and hundreds of wonderful inventions displayed, combine in an exhibition that will entertain and instruct for hours. You'll learn and see something new for every hour you spend in the building.

Probable Suicide.

Last Thursday morning as the 8:30 a. m. train from this city was between Roselle and Elmora, the engine struck a man on the track, cutting both legs off below the knee. The man died almost instantly. The engineer, Joseph B. Case, says that he first noticed the man walking on the west bound track. He was running about thirty miles an hour, and when the engineer was within three car lengths, or ninety feet of the man, the deceased crossed over on the east bound track and deliberately threw himself in front of the engine. It has been ascertained that the name of the deceased was Valentine Pabst of Newark.

Lectures of Great Interest.

In again calling attention to the course of three lectures arranged by the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church, and to occur upon dates given in the advertisement elsewhere, we feel satisfied that we recommend unusually commendable entertainments. The Rev. Dr. Vincent on a new subject will of course attract a full house, that, were the others so well known, would be equalled upon the dates that follow. G. W. Bain, Esq., the eloquent Kentuckian, on Temperance, and C. H. Fowler, D. D., on "Great Deeds of Great Men," are two lecturers and two subjects that should command the favor of so intellectual a community as ours. Many seats for the course are already taken, but others as desirable can yet be selected at Reynolds' pharmacy.

New Deputy Warden.

Mr. Philip Hocquard has been appointed Deputy Warden of the County Jail, in place of Mr. Carey, resigned.

A Dividend on Jersey Central.

The first quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on New Jersey Central, under the Reading lease, has been declared payable December 1.

A Difference.

The types did some wrong figuring in the report of the Special Committee on the Clark deficiency, published by us last week. They said that "Coward simply pays as per charge in his own report, $447.62." The amount should have been printed, $4,471.62.

The Greatest Cause for Thanks.

"We publish elsewhere the usual Thanksgiving proclamation of the Governor, who, however, with his well known modesty, omits to mention two of the greatest causes the people of New Jersey have for thanksgiving. One is Governor Ludlow himself, and the other is his successor.

Too Many Constables.

During the present term of the Union County Courts the number of constables who have been doing duty has been over a dozen. Last Friday afternoon, as the Court closed its session for the day, Judge McCormick issued an order reducing the number to six, saying that these would be sufficient for all purposes.

High Wind and Snow.

Monday last was a cold and blustering day for the country lying north of Philadelphia. At many points snow fell in some places to the depth of eight inches. The storm on the lakes was very severe and the loss of at least a dozen vessels is reported, but fortunately so far as is yet known there was no loss of life.

Not a North Plainfielder.

A report was current in this city, during Tuesday, to the effect that the burglar shot by Mr. Choate of Woodside Friday night, was a resident of North Plainfield. Relatives, however, who visited the morgue at Newark, failed to identify the body, which was subsequently recognized by New Yorkers who claimed to have recently boarded in the same house as the deceased.

Union Club.

There will be an entertainment at the Union Club on Thursday evening, Nov. 22nd, at 9 o'clock, for which occasion the Hatton Glee Club has been engaged. Members of the Club and their immediate families will be admitted without tickets, while any member desirous of inviting friends may procure tickets at 50 cents each, of the Executive or Entertainment Committee prior to the day of the entertainment.

Deserving.

Owing to the sudden change of weather Monday evening, and the severe and chilling winds, but a small audience gathered to enjoy the really pleasing entertainment of the "Cousin Joe Comedy Company," in VanDeventer Hall. It was not a success financially, but otherwise so much so that we feel sure a repetition will receive the patronage the talents of the several artists and the efforts of Manager Mattox, deserve.

Temperance Meeting.

A public Temperance meeting will be held in the room of Howell Division, S. of T., third floor of White & Stelle's building, corner of Front street and Park avenue, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 20th, at 7:30 o'clock, to attend which the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity are respectfully invited. An address will be delivered by Aaron M. Powell, Esq., recently returned from England.

JAMES R. PERINE, R. S.

An Assemblyman-elect Dead.

John W. Doremus, Democratic member elect of the Assembly from the Second district of Bergen county, died on Sunday morning last after four days of illness of pneumonia, aged 45 years. He caught cold during the excitement attending the recent election. A new election will have to be held in the district after thirty days notice by the Governor. This will not change the political complexion of the House at all as the district is strongly Democratic.

Mysteriously Killed.

Mr. John Weckesser, a hard working and industrious farmer near Mount Bethel, was killed during Monday afternoon last in a manner that will probably always remain a mystery. He was found under his wagon, in a field where he was working, with his skull crushed. It is supposed that he fell from the wagon and was kicked or stepped on by the horse.—He was about 45 years of age and leaves a family. The County physician, Tuesday morning, granted a certificate of accidental death.

Times Change.

The Philadelphia & Reading R. R. Co. has issued orders to all its employees to change their watches and clocks in accordance with the standard of time adopted for this division of the United States. Sunday next, noon, according to the new standard, will be telegraphed to all stations on its roads and branches, and a universal setting of time pieces will then result. The new time, which is four minutes, and a little over fifty seconds slower than the present standard, will prove a great convenience, as by its general adoption New York time and that of Philadelphia will conform and the annoyance of having, as at present, different standards on the same time-table, thereby avoided.

Foot Ball.

A game of foot ball was played on the afternoon of election day, in the field on Eighth street between New and Liberty streets, between a picked team from Mr. Leal's school and a team from the young men who are commuters on the 7:58 a. m. train to New York. The game was played under the Inter-Collegiate rules, which prevented such rough playing as is permissable under the Rugby rules, and the consequence was that, although, possibly to some of the spectators the game was not as exciting as they hoped it would be, no bones were broken or any person seriously injured. The two teams proved to be pretty evenly matched. The train team, although a trifle heavier and older than the school team, were unfortunately somewhat rusty upon the points of the game and had had next to no practice, while the latter team was possessed of this knowledge and had had considerable practice. The teams consisted of the following persons:

Leal's School Team—Robbins, Capt., Bulinger, E. Walz, L. Walz, Burt, Stewart, Yates, M. S. Ackerman, Pell and Tracy.

Train Team—R. Murray, Capt., Parkhurst, Squires, Kirk, Hoagland, Milliken, Bass, Sanford and Ackerman.

In the first inning the train team placed four points to their credit, two by a touch down and two by safety touch downs of the opposing side—the school team scoring nothing. In the second inning the train team increased their score to seven points, two by a touch down and one by a safety touch down, when time was called by the referee. This left the score 7 to 0 in favor of the train team. Referee, Mr. Chas. Hyde of Yale.

Suit to Recover a Bet.

Peter Wilkes sued James Sampson in the Trenton District Court to recover $50 won on a bet. Justice Woodruff decided that he could not legally help deciding for the plaintiff, who consequently recovered his $50. In refering to this suit the Judge condemned "the meanness of a person who seeks to win another's money and when he has failed seeks to recover his lost money by legal means."

A Needed Improvement.

The citizens residing on Seventh street, between Park and Madison avenues, having resolved to put that thoroughfare in a passable and respectable looking condition, have engaged Street Commissioner Meeker to make the necessary repairs. That he is doing by spreading a dressing of coarse gravel over the street and thoroughly rolling it. When completed this beautiful thoroughfare can once more boast of a smooth and dry road bed, thanks to the generosity of the property owners residing there and the good and efficient work done by Mr. Meeker, who thoroughly understands road making.

Officers of the Y. M. C. A.

At the recent annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, the following officers and board of directors were elected:

H. R. Munger, President; G. A. Chapman, Vice President; L. S. Mulford, Recording Secretary; H. J. Runyon, Corresponding Secretary; H. O. Newman, Treasurer.

Directors—C. E. Tyler, H. B. Newhall, F. J. Miller, E. L. Bonny, D. M. Runyon, Geo. W. Rockfellow, J. M. Titsworth, H. W. Stover, E. St. John, S. C. Baker, E. R. Ackerman, H. A. McGee and J. W. Jackson.

Councilmen to Serve Two Years.

The following law, passed the last session of the Legislature, applies to this city and, it will be seen, extends the term of Councilmen elected after the coming election, to two years.

CHAPTER XXXII.

An Act concerning cities of the third class.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in cities of the third class the terms of office of the members of the common council or other legislative body shall be for as many years as there are councilmen or members of such other legislative body elected from each ward; and that at each annual municipal election after the next succeeding election, one member of the common council or other legislative body shall be elected from each ward.

2. And be it enacted, That at the next succeeding municipal election the members of the common council or other legislative body shall be elected as heretofore, and at the second meeting of such common council then elected the members from each ward shall, by lot, divide themselves into classes, so that the term of office of one member from each ward shall expire in each succeeding year.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 26, 1883.

Advice to Sportsmen.

With the advent of the rabbit and quail hunting season we have—in justice to our farmers—a few words of advice to give to the sportsmen of this section. While out hunting use proper judgment. Don't have an utter disregard for the property of others. When a rabbit is "holed" in a stone wall, don't tear the wall down and leave the owner thereof to make the repairs. In "tramping" around don't cross soft grain fields, and thus leave destruction in your tracks. In close proximity to dwellings be sure to look before you shoot. By so doing you may escape the probability of killing bigger game than you really intended. By the reckless conduct of so many unthinking sportsmen the average farmer looks with displeasure upon the season when his premises are invaded and he has to suffer great indignity. It has led to the printing at this office of notices containing the following significant language: "All persons are forbidden to trespass on these premises. Trespassers will be dealt with strictly in accordance with law." It is the proper mode of protection from ruthless marauders.

Plainfield District Messenger Company

The incorporators of the above mentioned company met on Monday evening last and organized by the election of the following named gentlemen as officers:—President, Charles Wann. Vice President, W. W. Rider. Secretary, George V. B. Frost. Treasurer, Wm. E. Dodge Stokes. Directors, Chas. W. Kimball, William E. Dodge Stokes, W. W. Rider, G. V. B. Frost, Charles Wann. Mr. Rider is the General Manager, Mr. Frost the General Superintendent and Mr. Wann the General Agent of the Mutual District Messenger Company of New York city, who are credited with the success of that Company. Our citizens may therefore rest assured that this important service will shortly become a reality in our midst. Mr. Stokes is a millionaire of New York and a popular banker of that city. Mr. Kimball is well known among our citizens as a lawyer of no mean ability and an energetic business man. As ex-Corporation Counsel of this city, his efficient services in its interests are matters of record. He is a valuable acquisition to the Board of Directors. The President, Mr. Wann, a citizen of North Plainfield, is to be congratulated upon the formation of the above mentioned company. It has been through his efforts mainly that such a consummation has resulted. It is now necessary for 250 subscribers to be secured to put the service in operation. The rental per box is to be $1 per month. Circulars giving full description and information regarding this service will be distributed to our citizens by uniformed messengers from New York before our next issue.

Personalia.

The Hon. H. J. Taylor, ex-Mayor of Jersey City, has returned to Plainfield after a long Summer's vacation.

President Livingston of the Common Council has been fishing in the Potomac river, and the Baltimore papers record his big catch of black bass.

Mr. John Hall, of Williamsport, Pa., formerly of the firm of Wood & Hall, this city, has been here on business a few days. The Major's many friends were glad to see him.

Mr. N. T. Oatman of the Evening Journal, Pittsfield, Mass., and the Springfield Republican, is stopping at the Park House, having traveled all the way to Plainfield for rest from literary labors.

Mr. Chas. Zuckschwert, formerly of this city, has so far recovered from his severe attack of typhoid fever as to be able to once more walk about the streets at his home in East Orange.

Capt. B. F. Depew and wife have returned to this city after an absence of five months spent in summering among the hills and lakes of New York and other Northern States. They will make Plainfield their winter residence.

William Angus Montague, Lord Kimbolton, son of Lord and Lady Mandeville, and their twin daughters, Lady Alice Eleanor Louise Montague and Lady Mary Alva Montague, are visiting at the residence of S. B. Struthers, Esq., of this city.

Mr. Isaac P. Brown, of Broadway, is the raiser of a peculiar kind of celery which he calls the "Mahone." The repudiator of Virginia is outwardly white, by nature he's inwardly black; so are the outer leaves of the celery white where they should be naturally green.

P. B. Provost, ex-chief of the Decatur, Ill., Fire Department, is visiting friends in this city and Scotch Plains. Mr. Provost married his wife at Scotch Plains, a Miss Van Valkenburg. Many of the "old boys" in Plainfield remember Mr. Provost, and between them many a story is rehearsed of old times when Plainfield was not as large as it is now.

The Christmas Letter Mission.

The Christmas Letter Mission was begun in England twelve years ago, during which time its work has so greatly increased that in England alone 330,000 letters were distributed last Christmas, while in the United States our first distribution amounted to nearly 21,000. The Mission aims at bringing a ray of Christmas brightness to those who might otherwise pass the day without a word of special greeting. Few of us know what it is to spend Christmas in a hospital, work-house or jail, but every one can picture his utter wretchedness in such a condition. It was with feelings of deep sympathy for those in trouble that Miss Helen M. Cox, of Newton, Long Island, endeavored last autumn to organize a branch mission in the United States, and so great was her success, that as already mentioned, nearly 21,000 letters found their way to weary and afflicted hearts. The responses to these letters which came from prisons, hospitals and insane asylums, were most gratifying by showing that young girls and old men were alike encouraged to turn over a new leaf and begin again, while the "mildly insane kissed their letters putting them in their bosoms," and the inmates of hospitals spent their Christmas with brighter faces than they had worn for many a day. But to give all this pleasure it is necessary to have many persons interested in the work, each one of whom is responsible for the distribution of the letters in one institution. The expense attendant is very slight, five cents supplying a letter and a pretty card. Any one willing to act as county secretary or distributor for some institution, is cordially requested to send the name and address to the State secretary, Mrs. Wm I. Shreve, Main street, Orange, New Jersey.

A Clever Officer.

The arrest of Henry Lewis, alias "Jumbo," immediately after the Huntington burglary as reported exclusively in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, on suspicion of being concerned therein, has through the personal and unassisted efforts of Captain W. S. Chase, resulted not only in the fastening of the guilt upon the prisoner but in the recovery of all the goods purloined. So clever a working of a case has seldom been recorded. There was in hand a burglary committed in an unoccupied house by parties unknown and unseen, and who left no trace as to their identity; and there was under arrest a shrewd darkey who claimed to live in a barn on the suburbs and to be entirely ignorant of any robbery. Sharp detectives from elsewhere held long talks with the suspect but learned nothing. So closely did he adhere to his story that he requested permission to remain over night in the jail after his examination, "because the barn where he slept was so far away." Captain Chase however, taking advantage of the law which allowed the detention of the prisoner, kept him locked up, and worked untiringly to fasten the burglary upon him. After following clue upon clue success rewarded his efforts. On Manning avenue, North Plainfield, was discovered a building formerly used as a smoke-house, and a key found on the prisoner unlocked the door. In this was stored a large portion of the missing property, and a pocketbook which contained among other things a receipt for the rent of the post-office box used by the accused. When the latter was told how much evidence had been secured and how damaging it was to his chances of freedom for some time to come, he rather weakened; and upon being advised to tell who his confederate was and the whereabouts of the balance of the property, he agreed so to do. He then set out with Capt. Chase to lead that officer a wild search in places where the prisoner claimed, he 'supposed' the other articles were hidden. But in the very beginning his captor warned him it wouldn't do, that he had better go straight to the spot, and that if he attempted any smartness with intent to get away he might get shot full of holes. Lewis then conducted the officer to a stable on Second street, and removing the floor boards under the manger of one of the stalls drew out some rugs, silver ware and the entire balance of the stolen goods. Not an article was then missing and through the cleverness and faithfulness of Captain Chase, Mr. Huntington recovers everything.

The prisoner was brought before Justice Wadsworth for examination last Friday evening—County Attorney Wilson appearing in prosecution and Mr. John Ulrich for the accused. His counsel, however, had informed the prisoner he could do nothing for him, and advised him to plead non vult. He was then committed to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. From Lewis' confessions it seems certain that his accomplice was "Hank" Southard of this city, now serving three months in the County Jail for stealing a robe. Dummy prisoners have, however, been placed in the cells Lewis and he each occupy, and posted how to talk to best incite the accused to criminate each other. Consequently sufficient evidence will undoubtedly be secured to convict both.

OBITUARY.

STEPHEN O. HORTON.

Justice Stephen O. Horton, an old and well-known resident of this section died at his residence on Somerset street, North Plainfield, Friday evening, Nov. 9th, after several weeks suffering from dropsical complaint. His death was quiet and peaceful. All through his long illness, deceased bore up under his sufferings with remarkable fortitude, conscious that his recovery was beyond a possibility. As he expressed it "the frame is worn out, and no medicine can repair it."

Stephen O. Horton was born at Chester, Morris county, N. J., in July, 1811, and was consequently seventy-two years of age last July. He has lived in Plainfield and North Plainfield for the past 30 years. When the Central Railroad was in its infancy, Mr. Horton was one of its most trusted employees for years, having the charge of construction trains, and was inspector of the Newark Bay bridge at the time of its construction. In 1864 he was elected Collector of Union county by the Democratic board of freeholders, of which party he was a staunch adherent, and re-appointed for three terms. His name was before a Democratic convention for Member of Assembly and later he was elected Justice of the Peace of North Plainfield, in which capacity he faithfully administered justice. He was President of the Plainfield Mutual Fire Insurance Company and a member of the Board of Directors of the Somerset County Agricultural Society. He was an honored member and a Past Master of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, A. F. & A. M.

The funeral of deceased was held at his late residence on Monday afternoon last, the Rev. W. E. Honeyman officiating. At the grave in the Presbyterian Cemetery, the remains were interred according to the beautiful and impressive masonic ceremonies, Worshipful Master B. F. Coriell delivering the ritual and Rev. W. E. Honeyman closing with prayer.

The pall bearers were P. M., Edward C. Mulford, P. M., L. L. Compton, P. M., W. B. Maxson, Israel D. Ten Eyck, Wm F. Adams and Wm. H. Brower.

Deceased was honored and respected by all who knew him, and his advice was sought after alike by friends and strangers who admired him for his honesty and good judgment. He was a kind neighbor, ever ready to lend a helping hand and always willing to obey the golden rule, and do unto others as he would have others do unto him. Peace be to his ashes.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, Nov. 12th.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Pres. Livingston and Messrs. Coriell, Gardner, Marsh, Ross, Serrell, J. Simpson, R. Simpson, Polak, Jones—10.

Absent—Mr. Beguelin—1.

On motion of Mr. Marsh, the reading of the minutes and the regular order of business was dispensed with.

The following claims were presented: W. J. Tobin, $12; Amos Moffett, 12; W. A Woodruff, 12; D. L. Robinson, 6; S. A. Davis 12; Wm. Addis, 12; Plainfield Gas Light Co., 215.46; Maurice Higgins, 4.25; Mulford Estil, 57.58. All referred to proper Committees.

Mr. Marsh moved that the Street Com. be instructed to direct the Street Commissioner to raise and repair the cross-walk over Front street at the head of Grove if it can be done. Carried.

Mr. Polak asked some information from the Special Com., in relation to the repairing of Park avenue, between 5th and 6th streets.

Mr. Jones stated the Com. had been forwarding the matter and further action was to be taken at once.

The Com. on Elections reported its approval of the bills in its hands for services of members of Boards of Registration of the several Wards. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The Police Com. reported as correct claim of Maurice Higgins, $4.25. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The bill of Carney Bros., $57.40, was referred back to Police Com.

The Lamps Com. reported as correct claim of Plainfield Gas Light Co., $215.46. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

On motion of Mr. Marsh, the City Clerk was directed to have republished the Corporation Notice of Foot-way and Side-walk Ordinance, if necessary, owing to an error in former publication.

Mr. Jones from the Police Com., reported that there could be found no authority to pay the claim of J. B. Parsell, $50, on account of damages sustained by him at the hands of disorderly persons. Also recommending the confirmation of Mr. Wm. R. Mattox as a regular, and Joseph Noel as a special policeman. Reports received.

The nomination of Mr. Mattox was then taken up and confirmed. That of Mr. Noel was again laid on the table.

Mr. Serrell called the attention of the Council to an error in the publication of the report on the Clark deficiency as occurring in the official papers.

Mr. Marsh moved that the Clerk be directed to publish during the week before the day of registry, the date of such day that precedes the Charter election. Carried.

Mr. J. Simpson from the Aud. Com., reported as correct the claims in its hands. Warrants ordered drawn.

The following were taken from the table, referred to Aud. Com., and subsequently ordered paid: John Johnson, $146.37; Morgan Bird, 62.50; V. W. Nash, 29.

Mr. Serrell from the Special Com. on the Clark matter, reported progress. That there was every prospect that where a definite sum owing the city was shown, friends felt it should be settled without delay. He presented a series of resolutions in relation thereto which were adopted:

On motion it was carried that when the Council adjourn it be to Tuesday evening the 27th inst.

The Clerk was directed to furnish a certified copy of the resolutions to the Corporation Counsel.

The Salaries Com. reported as correct the claim of J. A. Hubbard, $435.39. Ref'd to Aud. Com., and subsequently ordered paid.

The motion ordering the bill of J. Johnson paid, was reconsidered, and the claim laid on the table.

The Council then adjourned.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

There will be a grand shooting match at Mount Bethel on Thanksgiving morning, commencing at 11 o'clock.

Ducan C. Ross, the Scotch athlete, has issued three challenges—first, to wrestle at side hold any man in America for $500 or $1,000 a side; second, to wrestle any man in the world, mixed styles, for any amount; third, for heavy weight performances for any amount, open to the world. Ross has deposited a forfeit.

Scene—Four shooters looking for rabbits. Our German friend had killed nothing all day and was being bantered by his companions. Suddenly, his eyes expanded, his gun came to his shoulder, both eyes were shut, the trigger pulled. "Ah, hah, who vos schunked now, I guess!" He steps forward, pulled bunny from a brush heap, holds him up and then sadly says—"By shimminy, he vas stiff already." The rabbit had been dead some days.

"Did you see the policeman get shot?" one newsboy inquired of another yesterday afternoon. "No," was the startled reply, "where did he get shot?" "Up at Vanderbeek's. He bought ten cents worth."

Somers' antidote to malaria is the only remedy approaching a specific against malarial ailments. It has cured more chills and fever, or malaria in other forms, than any known remedy. Its popularity originates from the cures it has made; not from advertising. It advertises itself. A. Field, of A. Field and Sons, 78 Chambers street, New York, writes: "It has cured my children of malaria, and me, of an obstinate dyspepsia."

Excited Thousands all over the land are going into ecstasy over Dr. King's new discovery for consumption. Their unlooked for recovery by the timely use of this great life saving remedy, causes them to go nearly wild in its praise. It is guaranteed to positively cure Severe Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Loss of Voice, or any affection of the Throat or Lungs. Trial bottles free at R. P. Reynolds drug store. Large size $1.

And so with [illegible] Plastic Corn and Bunion Plasters, if you take what they cost at any druggist's. It is only 25 cents a box, but if you take what they are worth for curing Corns and giving relief, why, it is $100.

A QUICK RECOVERY.

It gives us great pleasure to state that the merchant who was reported being at the point of death from an attack of Pneumonia, has entirely recovered by the use of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. Naturally he feels grateful for the benefits derived from using this remedy, for the lungs and throat; and in giving publicity to this statement we are actuated by motives of public benefaction, trusting that others may be benefited in a similar manner. On sale by all druggists.

While the arrangements were being made for a party in this city, a few evenings ago, a young lady present innocently inquired: "Is the invitation to embrace the young ladies?" "Oh, no," replied a young man, "the gentlemen will attend to that." And now the young lady wonders what the young man meant.

GLEANINGS.

Funeral processions are not allowed to pass through the business streets of Grand Rapids, Mich., but must use prescribed thoroughfares on the outskirts of the town.

It is stated upon good authority that the three-cent piece, which, from its size, is liable to be given as a cent or taken as a dime in change, will soon be retired from circulation altogether. Its issuance has been much restricted of late, and no one will regret its disappearance.

The following advertisement appeared in a London newspaper: "A lady wishes to recommend another lady, who through no fault of her own, has become in distressed circumstances, thinking that if 1,000 benevolent persons were each to subscribe £10 it would place her again in affluent circumstances.

In the King's Road, at Brighton, the bicycles and tricycles are getting fewer, and there is a sensible diminution among the lady cyclists, who used to show a good deal of skill and frill on Madeira Road on an afternoon. There is still one stout and courageous lady who valiantly spins along the cliff, and is a good deal cheered by the flymen.

A traveler can now go from New York to San Francisco with but a slight change of cars, instead of two or three, as formerly. Through cars are run to St. Louis, where a transfer is made to sleeping cars which go the rest of the way by the St. Louis and San Francisco route over the Atchison and Southern Pacific routes, a total run of 2,240 miles, the longest made by any cars in the world.

News of a curious invention comes from the south of France. A Frenchman, who has patented a machine for the use of concentrated solar rays as a general motive power, has set up three of his machines in Algeria for the French Government. He is now carrying on experiments at the Island of Porquerolles, near Hyeres, where he is threshing Indian corn and raising water by the action of the sun's rays.

Wm. Andrews, an old farmer living in the suburbs of Saco, Me., has in his cellar nearly fifty barrels of wine. He will not drink it, sell it, give it away, or throw it away. As he made it all himself, its sale would not only conflict with the State laws but with the National ones, and the property keeps improving in quality every year, to the exasperation of Mr. Andrews' fellow-citizens. Some of it is already more than twenty years old.

The tallest man in the country is said to be Henry Thurston, who first beheld the light of day near Jefferson City, Mo., but who now owns a cattle ranch in Texas. Mr. Thurston is seven feet seven and a half inches tall, and as he is thin and gaunt, and invariably wears a stove pipe, he never fails to produce a positively startling effect upon the beholder. Morever, he has acquired several habits of posture which add to the impression. For instance, if he happens to feel tired when walking in the streets, he is accustomed to rest himself by dropping his arms over a swinging sign and resting his chin upon it.

STATE ITEMS.

The water wheel at the Bleachery, in Millville, had not been running with its usual force for several days and about a week since it stopped entirely. An investigation showed that the united efforts of a number of eels had caused the trouble. No less than seventy-six of them, a number of which were four feet in length, were taken from the buckets of the wheel, while there doubtless had been more than that number to go through the wheel.

At Trenton, Nov. 1, Judge Nixon, of the United States Circuit Court, filed his decision from the exceptions made by counsel for William B. Dinsmore to the answer of the Reading Railroad in the suit to break the lease of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the Reading. He sustains the exceptions, and orders expunged from the records all parts of the personal answer of Mr. Gowen, except the bare allegations that the suit of Mr. Dinsmore is brought at the instigation of the Pennsylvania. This renders valueless most of the testimony which the Reading has taken.

The large seine for capturing porpoises for their oil and hides was laid out recently, on the bay side, near the steamboat landing, Cape May Point. The trial was to test the working ability of the seine. It was handled with ease and success. It was laid out in two wings or sections, one wing in each of two boats, with two other boats in attendance. The seine is 3,000 feet long and 24 feet deep from the cork line to the lead line. In the center is a wide opening 40 feet by 24, leading into a great bag 120 feet long, into which it is expected the animals will go in their efforts to escape, and this bag being so constructed that they can get in and cannot get out, it is expected they will drown, and so be captured. The test trial having been successful, it is intended to make a haul at once.

A Piscatorial Triumph.

All friends of fishermen and the piscatorial art must feel flattered by the prominent place accorded and honors awarded to American exhibitors at the London International Fisheries Exhibition. 48 gold, 47 silver and 29 bronze medals, with 24 diplomas and 7 special prizes, constitute a showing of which any people might well feel proud. The American exhibit of fishing gear and boats, models, oils and apparatus of all kinds was a perfect revelation to the Britishers, while in all departments of piscatorial industry our people were well represented. It was a great triumph for American fishermen.

DROWNED IN BEER.

Concerning this Popular Beverage Two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of [illegible] correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the there and a tendency to metaph r. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, N. Y.

Surrogate's Order to Limit Creditors

Union County Surrogate's Office, October 23d, 1883.

Chas. A. Haynes the Administrator of Edward B. Haynes, deceased.

On application of the above named Administrator it is ordered that said Administrator give public notice to the creditors of the estate of said decedent to bring in their debts, demands or claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from this date, by setting up a copy of this order, within twenty days hereafter, in five of the most public places in the county of Union, for two months, and also within the said twenty days, by advertising the same in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the same space of time; and if any creditor shall neglect to exhibit his or her debt, demand or claim, within the said period of nine months, public notice being given as aforesaid, such creditor shall be forever barred of his or her action therefor against the said Administrator.

By JAMES J. GERBER, Surrogate.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Catherine S. Vail, complainant, and Caroline T. Markly, et als., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock, p. m., of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and state of New Jersey:

Beginning at a stone in the middle of Fourth and Centre streets; thence running in a northwesterly direction along the line of the middle of Centre street, three chains and eighty-one and a half links; thence in a northeasterly direction in a line parallel with Fourth street, two chains and ninety-six links; thence in a southeasterly direction in a line parallel with Centre street, three chains and eighty-one and a half links, to the middle of Fourth street; thence in a southwesterly direction along the line of the middle of Fourth street, two chains and ninety-six links to the place of beginning. Being the same premises occupied by Stephen Vail, deceased, in his lifetime, as a homestead, and containing one and twelve one-hundredths of an acre, more or less. Excepting, however, from the above described tract so much thereof as is hereinafter particularly described, that is to say, commencing at the point where the southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's [widow] lot on Central avenue and Third street intersects the easterly line of Central avenue; thence running a westerly course and easterly line of Central avenue, sixty feet; thence easterly and parallel with the aforesaid southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's lot, one hundred and seventy [170] feet more or less to the westerly line of a lot of land belonging to Mrs. McDermott, and now occupied as a stone yard; thence a[illegible] along the said westerly line of Mrs. McDermott's lot, sixty [60] feet to the point where this westerly line of Mrs. McDermott's lot is met or intersected by the southerly line aforementioned of Margaret K. Vail's lot; thence westerly along this southerly line of Margaret K. Vail's lot one hundred and seventy [170] feet, more or less, to the place of beginning. Also, all the right, title, or interest in the roadway lying in front of the land above described tract to the middle of Central avenue, which belongs or may belong to the said Catharine S. Vail.

THOMAS FORSYTH, Sheriff.
John W. Taylor, Solicitor.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE BAD BOY AND HIS FATHER.

He Breaks His Pa of Mashing Female Clerks—The Minister Explains Daniel in the Lion's Den, With a Dog and Loses Part of His Pants.

'What is this I hear about your father creating a panic in a dry goods store,' said the groceryman to the bad boy, as he took a butter-tryer and run it into a pumpkin a few times. 'They tell me he had about a hundred female clerks treed on the shelves, and on the counters, and all of them were screaming bloody murder, and that a floor-walker hit him over the head with a roll of paper cambric, and somebody turned in a fire alarm. How was it?'

'Well, if you will keep watch for pa, at the door, I will tell you all about it,' said the boy. 'Somebody told pa I was at the bottom of the whole business, and when a man loses confidence in his boy, and rolls up a trunk strap and carries it habitually, it stands a boy in hand to keep his eye peeled. You see, pa has been in a habit lately of going to the store a good deal and lallygagging with the girl clerks. Any girl that would smile on pa, and look sweet, catches him, and he would sit on a stool in front of the counter ten hours a day, pretending to wait to buy some kind of fringe, or corsets, or something, and he would fairly talk the arm off the girls. Ma didn't like it at all, and she told pa he ought to be ashamed of himself, cause the girls was making a fool of him, and all the people in the store were laffing at him, but pa said for her to shut her yawp, and he kept on tryin' to find excuses to go to the store. Ma told me about it, and she felt sorry, and by jinks it made me mad to see an old man, old enough to have gout or paralysis, going around mashing clerks in a store, and I told ma if she would let me I would break pa up in that sort of business, and she told me to go ahead and make him jump like a box car. So 'tother day ma gave him a piece of ribbon to match and a corset to change for a larger size, and a pair of gloves to return because the thumb of one of 'em ripped off, and told him to buy four yards of baby flannel, and see how much it would cost to have her seal-skin cloak relined, and to see if her new hat was done. Pa acted as though he didn't want to go to the store, but ma and me knew he looked upon it as a picnic, and he blacked his boots, and changed ends with his cuffs, and put on his new red necktie, and shaved himself, and fixed up as though he was going to be married. I asked pa to let me go along to carry the packages, and he said he didn't mind it I did go. You have seen these injy rubber rats they have at the rubber stores, haven't you? They look so near like a natural rat that you can't tell the difference unless you offer the rubber rat some cheese. I got one of those rats and tied a fine thread to it, with a slipnoose on the end, and when we got into the store I put the slipnoose over the hind button of his coat-tail, and put the rat on the floor, and it followed him along, and I saw it looked so natural I wanted to kick it. Pa walked along smiling, and stopped at the ribbon counter, and winked at a girl and she bent over to see what he wanted, and then she saw the rat, and crawled up on the shelf where the boxes were, and put her feet under her, and said 'take it away, kill it,' and she trembled all over. Pa thought she had gone into a fit because she was paralyzed on his shape, and he turned blue, and went on cause he didn't want to kill her dead; and as he walked along, the rat followed him, and just as he bowed to four girls who were standing together, talking about the fun they had at the exposition the night before, they saw the rat, and they began to yell, and climb up things. One of them got on a stool and pulled her clothes tight around her ankles, so a live rat couldn't have got in her stocking, let alone a rubber rat, and the girls all squealed just like when you tickle them in the ribs. Pa he looked scared, as though he was afraid he was breaking them up with his shape, and he kept on, and another flock of girls saw the rat, and they jumped on the counter and sat down on their feet and yelled 'rat'. Then the others yelled 'rat', and in about a minute a hundred girls were getting up on things, and saying 'shoo,' and one of them got on a pile of blankets and the pile fell on the floor with her, and the men had to dig her out. Pa's face was a study. He looked at one girl, and then another, and wondered what was the matter, and finally the floor-walker came along and seen what it was, and he took pa by the collar and led him out doors, and told him if he came in there again he would send the police after him. I had gone by the time pa got out on the sidewalk, and he picked up the rubber rat and found it was hitched to his coat; and he went right home. Ma says he was so mad that he stuttered, and she thinks I better board around for a day or two. She tried to reason with pa that it was intended for his good, to show him that he was making a fool of himself, but he does not look at it in that light. Say, do you think it was wrong to break him up that way? He was going wrong entirely.'

'Oh, I don't know. You and your ma are the best judges. But I would like to have seen them girls climbing up the side of the store. But what's the trouble with the minister?' said the groceryman. 'He was in here this morning with the tail of his black coat sewed up, and when I asked him to set down he said he was standing up almost entirely now, and when I asked him if he had seen you he said he had, to his sorrow, but he never wanted to see you again. I hope you have not done anything you will be sorry for.'

'It wasn't me at all. It was Duffy's dog,' said the boy, as he broke out with a laugh. 'You see, the minister felt as though he had been cross with me, when I asked questions of him, and he met me on the street and apologized, and said hereafter he would answer any questions I might ask him. So I began to ask him how he thought it was that Daniel had such control over the lions, when they cast him into the den. I told him I thought Daniel had chloroform on his handkerchief, and when the lions got a sniff of it they didn't want any Daniel in theirs, but he said that wasn't it. He said it was the power of man over the brute creation and showed the efficacy of prayer. He said Daniel prayed three times every day, and then looked the lions right in the eye, and a lion wouldn't have gall enough to eat a man that looked straight in his eye. To illustrate, he said he could look a vicious dog right in the eye and the dog would turn tail and run, and just then we passed Duffy, and the dog barked, and growled, and the minister said he would demonstrate to me the power of the human eye over the brute, and he went right in to Duffy's. Well, I knew that dog, cause Duffy used to raise melons, and I went right up a tree. I didn't want the dog to think I was trying to play any Daniel business on him, because every little while Duffy has to take a file and pry pieces of pants out of the dog's teeth, so I got up on a limb. The dog looked at the minister a minute and the minister looked at the dog, and when the dog began to lick his chops I says to myself, 'Daniel, you better be getting hence,' but Daniel didn't get hence 'till it was everlastingly too late. But I guess he would have saved his coat if he hadn't tried to pull the dog over the picket fence. The minister is usually a very deliberate man, but when the dog began to tangle his teeth up in his coat tail, he felt that it was good for him to be somewhere else, and he begun to go away to look some other dog in the eye. I guess Duffy's dog is not the right kind of a dog to look in the eye. I think some dogs are different about being looked in the eye. The minister looked like a flying trapeze performer when he came over the fence. They need not tell me our minister never belonged to a gymnasium, cause he couldn't get over a fence that way, and always have been a good little boy who never stole melons. I could tell by the way he got over the fence that his neighbors used to raise melons when he was a boy. Well, Duffy was taking a nap, but he woke up and came out and called the dog off, and the minister went off with his hand over the place where his coat was tore, and when Duffy chained up the dog I came down. I am not yet convinced about the Daniel business, and until the minister demonstrates it I shall hold to the chloroform theory. And so the minister wouldn't sit down. I thought that dog's teeth had been filed.'

THE DENTIST.

We never enter a dentist's studio without feeling uneasy. Not that we have any teeth which we cannot easily remove without his aid, but still we are awe-struck in his presence. It appears that our teeth have gone into a committee of the whole and move by platoons; so we are not afraid of a sudden and unexpected attack on any stragglers, still we remember what a time we once had with the old, back-number teeth, and whose in sympathetic memory. The rooms of these artists in bicuspids and molars are no places for quiet and cozy little chats on the follies of the day or lighter and more frivolous topics of society.

The conscience of a dentist must be something like a champion butcher, who kills and strings up his victim, ready-dressed for the market, in three minutes by a stop-watch, Chicago time. A thoroughly good dentist should be a man with nerves like chilled steel and a heart like live-oak. Some of the dentists with whom we are on speaking terms are oily fellows, with hands as soft as a dude's cranium, and a seductive voice like that of a drug clerk. He will meet you at the door wrapped in a winning smile and a spotted dressing-gown, and talk to you as soothingly as could a speculator in mining stocks, and he will inveigle you into the high-back inquisitorial chair, and lie to you about the pain, and root around your sore and throbbing gums with his thumb-nail, and all the time smiling like an ox-eyed violet. The next thing you know trouble will commence. He will slip on a pair of highly-polished forceps; there will be an uncontrollable desire on your part to open wide your mouth and howl. A short, decisive jerk, your poor head will fall back on the chair, and your mouth will be full of freshly-distilled blood; your eyes will be brimming with tears, and a miscellaneous variety of bad words will be struggling for utterance in your larynx.

But it is the old-fashioned dentist, the country doctor of the cross-roads, who used to grin like a cannibal whenever he saw a victim approach his office—he is the one who used to fill the apple of our youthful eye. He was a terror. He who has never been put through the agonizing evolutions of a tooth-pulling drill in the back-room of his office, does not know what fun is. He has missed several great opportunities. This rural tooth-carpenter used to perpetrate his fiendish work in one time and two motions. If the patient could not keep his head steady, the dentist would lay his head on the floor and hold it down with his knee. If the man got home alive to his family, who had parted from him with sorrowful apprehensions, the members would meet him with congratulations, and fried biscuits that he was unable to eat.

This ancient gladiatorial dentist was as remorseless in his operations as a lynching mob. He had no sympathy at all for a patient. To him a toothache was a sardonic joke. And when he threw a man on the floor, put his knee on his chest and the turnkeys on the wrong tooth and straightened himself, it did seem as though the last end of that man had come, and a great deal worse than the first.

THUMPED BY THE CONDUCTOR.

The passengers on the Texas express on Sunday evening were regaled with a pleasant episode worth mentioning. One of the main actors in it was a great, double-fisted fellow, who claimed to have been at one time a brakeman or freight conductor. He had no money and was put off a few hundred yards beyond the Grand avenue station. He climbed aboard again on the off side, and was put off a mile further by the little fat conductor, who warned him not to return upon pain of being "thumped." Notwithstanding the warning, he climbed on again, and was about to be thrown off incontinently, when a kind-hearted passenger offered to pay his fare. Soon after the trouble had been settled the little fat conductor entered the car and was leaning up against the front door, when the big fellow arose and walked up to him.

"You said you would 'thump' me," he said, savagely.

"That's what I said," replied the little fat conductor, looking at the bad man out of the corners of his eyes.

"You did, eh?" responded the bad man. "Well, you couldn't 'thump' one side of me. I am a better railroad man than you ever dared to be. I can run a train where you couldn't pole a hand-car." Bringing his huge fist down with a bang, he screamed: "You're no good. I used to use men like you to swab grease out of hot boxes. You're a—"

The bad man discontinued his conversation at this point. The little fat conductor hit him. There was no reaching after effect with the little fat man. No sweeping the horizon with a lurid six-months-in-the-hospital swing, but a simple, unaffected tap from the shoulder which struck the bad man with a sound like a fat woman falling in the mud. He flew up toward the chandeliers and struck in the aisle on his back with a "bolang" that scared the people in the sleepers. The little fat conductor walked over to him, raised him up carefully and thumped him again. Then he repeated the operation, and picking up his lantern, remarked: "If you don't think you're hit just let me know and I'll come back and hit you."

The bad man sat down on the edge of a seat and held on to one side of his face as if he were afraid it would get away from him, while a thin, solemn-faced Virginian was telling him that "one side of yo face looks as ef hit might ha belonged to a fat man, while t'other appears as ef hit might ha belonged to you a long time ago. I reckon you has been hit."

"Yes," exclaimed the bad man wearily, "I've been hit."

LITERARY NOTES.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for December comes to us outwardly greatly improved by a new and very tasteful cover—inwardly, we think the magazine is scarcely capable of improvement; the present number brilliantly closes the fourteenth volume. "Religious Denominations in the United States" is continued, and "What is Swedenborgianism?" is explained by Rev. J. C. Ager. There are articles on "Buddhism and its Early Literature," "The Episcopal General Convention," "Sacred Musicians of the XIXth Century," "The Shapira Manuscript of Deuteronomy," "The Knights of the Temple," "Woman's Work in Germany," etc., etc. Most of these are admirably illustrated. There are sketches, essays, poems, and a rich department of fiction, with the conclusion of the serial, "Mr. Burke's Nieces," and short stories by Eben E. Rexford, E. F. Gordon Cummings, and other celebrated writers. The editor, T. De Witt Talmadge, D. D., contributes a sermon, and indeed the number abounds with interesting and edifying reading. A single number is sold for 25 cents, or $3 a year, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

The November Magazine of American History presents an exceptionally attractive table of contents. The frontispiece is an excellent engraving from Trumbull's famous painting of the "Evacuation of New York," never before reproduced. The leading article is by Judge-Advocate Asa Bird Gardner, entitled "The Last Cantonment of the main Continental Army of the Revolution;" it is ably written. The second article is a valuable epitome of events in Europe, concerning "The Treaty for which the Army Waited" by Theodore F. Dwight, Librarian of the State Department, Washington, with a fac-simile of the signatures from the original Treaty. A curious caricature of Lord North, from a rare English print, occupies one page, after which we have the conclusion of Hon. Charles Gayarre's "Historical Sketch of Pierre and Jean Lafitte, the famous Smugglers of Louisiana;" "The Journey of Madame Godin," a thrilling story by Frank D. Y. Carpenter; "General Houston's Indian Life," by Alfred M. Williams; the second chapter of the Private Intelligence Papers of Sir Henry Clinton, and some exceedingly readable sketches in the department of Minor Topics. Publication office, 30 Lafayette Place, New York City.

The November issue of Dio Lewis's Monthly is much increased in size. "Inebriety among Women," by Dr. Lucy M. Hall, Physician of the great Woman's Prison at Sherborn, Mass., is a thoughtful discussion of the causes and results of intemperance among women. Elihu Barbour, of Kansas, discusses "Young man, go West." "Employers and Employed," by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton, "Beautiful Hands," by Fanchon, "The Old-Fashioned Home," by Rev. Dr. Fulton, all display able writing. Helen M. Loster reviews "Our Young Women," by Dr. Howard Crosby. "'Dear' Sir," by President Lee, of the Agricultural College, Miss., is an attack upon an old-fashioned absurdity. Lillie Devereux Blake gives us "One Thanksgiving Eve." "On The Rights and Wrongs of Doubting," by Rev. Dr. Hopkins, President of Auburn Theological Seminary, will surprise many people. Dora Darmore gives us a new remedy for Polygamy. "Big Jack Small" is one of the best stories which has appeared in an American magazine in many years. "Fashions" are discussed. "Our Cooking School," under the management of Julia Colman, grows better and better. "Book Notices" are well done, and "What Everybody Ought to Know," by Arthur Chester, is both interesting and useful. FRANK SEAMAN, Publisher, 69-71 Bible House, New York.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

At Pittsburgh, Pa., Joseph Weber, a traveling salesman, recently made a bet that he could eat a brace of quail a day for twenty consecutive days. He has succeeded, and Thursday of last week polished the bone on the last brace at Young's Club House. He says he could make it thirty days and feel splendid over it. The bet was for $600.

Alloways Creek correspondent of Salem Standard: A strange looking fish was caught last week and brought to Hancock's Bridge by G. Green and J. Denn. The tail and half of the body was like a striped bass, and the other part of the fish was the exact counterpart of a trout. In fact, the fish had every appearance of being a cross between the two.

Theodore Ayres, son of Isaac Ayres, near Hackettstown, while out hunting Wednesday afternoon of last week in Mr. Phillip Henry's corn field, shot a bird which raised in front of him. The contents passed over the head of Mr. Henry, who was husking corn in the field, tearing out the crown of his hat, and sprinkling his neck with several shot grains.

Walter Lucas, James Farr, James Riley and Charles Gale, of Miller's Hill, Hunterdon County, went out recently to try to shoot the frisky rabbit with a seven shot revolver. Each was to take turn in shooting. It occurred to them that it would be a good idea to practice first by shooting at a penny, and Farr, who shoots left-handed, started to try his hand first, the result being that Lucas was shot in the groin.

It is reported that on the 1st of November, the day the law was up for shooting rabbits and quail, two men (not any from this city), went out with two dogs each, and shot 100 rabbits, besides a large number of birds. This is certainly slaughtering the game, and no sportsmen who have any of the true spirit about them would do such work. They would much rather let somebody else have a chance, in the first place, and, in the second they have too much respect for the fraternity to kill ruthlessly more than they can make use of themselves. This killing of game or catching of fish by the wholesale, simply because they are plenty, is coming to be regarded as anything but sportsman-like; but it will probably be a good while before the feeling is universal.—Elizabeth Journal.

Democratic Primary.

The Democratic voters of the City of Plainfield are requested to meet at the rooms of the Democratic Association, on Front street, in the following order, viz:

1st Ward, Monday, Nov. 26th inst., at 8 p. m.
2d " Tuesday, " 27th " " "
3d " Wednesday " 28th " " "
4th " Friday " 30th " " "

Each ward will place in nomination two members of the Common Council, one Judge of Election, one Inspector of Election, one Clerk of Election, two Constables, and two Justices of the Peace, and will also elect delegates to the general city convention to be held at the rooms of the Democratic Association, on Saturday, Dec. 1st, at 8 o'clock p. m., to nominate candidates to be voted for at the next Charter Election, viz: three members of the Common Council at-large, two Chosen Freeholders, one Assessor, one Collector, one Treasurer, one School Trustee, and three Commissioners of Appeal. The representation of each ward at the city convention is as follows:

1st Ward............ 6 delegates.
2d Ward............ 4 delegates.
3d Ward............ 3 delegates.
4th Ward............ 9 delegates.

By order of the Democratic Executive Com.
JAMES E. MARTINE, President.
LOUIS F. WADSWORTH, Secretary.

UNION NOT NATION.

The Democratic party has always zealously maintained that the Federal Government represents a Union of Sovereign States, and that its authority to enact and execute laws is immediately and only derived from a plainly worded Constitution, which expressly declares that all powers not specifically conferred upon the General Government by that instrument belong to the individual States and the people thereof.

That is the long upheld doctrine of Constitutional Democracy, and it stands in direct opposition to the dangerous anti-democratic assertion that this is a consolidated Nation, with unlimited power.

The Government of the United States is nothing of the kind, and there is not a word in the Constitution to warrant such a deviation from the liberty swayed intent of its framers.

The Federal Government was created by the States, it is supreme within its sphere of granted authority, but beyond that supremacy abides with coequal States, linked together for mutual strength as a Union—not a Nation.

That is the Constitution.

That is Democracy.

And that has just been emphatically endorsed by the highest tribunal in the land—the Supreme Court of the United States.

Congress, with the mistaken Sumnerish idea that anything and everything could be done nationally, some years ago passed what was termed a Civil Rights law, having special reference to colored citizens.

That law a Republican Supreme Court now decrees to be unconstitutional and of no effect.

Why?

Because Congress in passing it trespassed upon the reserved rights of the States, and undertook to legislate on a subject, as a Nation, which belonged to individual and independent States, as members of a Constitutional Union.

Therefore the Supreme Court justly referred the question of Civil Rights to the judgment and action of State Legislatures, and by so doing confirmed a fundamental principle of the Democratic party.

Colored citizens are certainly entitled to the same civil rights and privileges other citizens enjoy, and we hope the coming Legislature of New Jersey will so ordain.

Such is legally within the legislative control of New Jersey.

Congress has no right to interfere, and the Supreme Court very pointedly says to it "mind your own business."

This is not an arbitrary Nation.

The largest peach farms are in Maryland. One one estate there are 125,000 trees, and on another 120,000.

Wm. K. Vanderbilt, it is rumored, is trying to purchase Monmouth Park, in order to close it and remove its competition with Sheepshead Bay.

Governor Ludlow has ordered a special election to be held on Dec. 18, in the Second District of Bergen county, to elect an Assemblyman in place of John W. Doremus, who died a few days after being elected to that position.

A spark from a mid-day train on the Pennsylvania Railroad set fire to a dwelling in the poor quarter of Rahway Friday last. A high wind spread the flames to three houses, which were destroyed. Several families were rendered homeless before the firemen could check the flames. The loss is estimated at about $3,000.

The Essex Democrats are exultant over the fact that at the late election they polled more votes for Mr. Abbett than Hudson county gave him. The Essex vote was 15,557, and that of Hudson was 15,293. This will give Essex 78 delegates in the next Democratic convention to 76 for Hudson. In 1881 Hudson polled 1,736 more Democratic votes than Essex.

State Senator Stainsby, of Essex county, has just announced that at the opening of the next Legislature he will introduce a Civil Rights bill that will be identical with the one recently declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. Senator Stainsby said that Justice Bradley declared the bill unconstitutional because it could only be adopted by the States.

Peter Smull, the fasting horse thief, broke jail at Belvidere. A prisoner entered Smull's cell on the pretext of filling his lamp, while the Sheriff's daughter guarded the door. At a given signal the two rushed out and made good their escape. Smull had fasted thirty-eight days. It is thought that they crossed into Pennsylvania. The Sheriff offers a reward for his capture.

Miss Maggie Mitchell has given a reporter her family history and narrated in detail the disposition Providence has been pleased to make with her brothers and sisters. She says: "Our father, a Scotchman, 78 years old, lives at Long Branch; Sophia, my eldest sister, Mrs. Albaugh, my second sister, and Dr. Lomax, my brother, have been on the stage. All these were my mother's children by a former marriage. Then I have younger sisters." Miss Mitchell, or Mrs. Paddock, as she is known in private life, was forced to this statement by the publication of the foolish story of a Bloomsbury, N. J., woman, who declared that Miss Mitchell is her sister. The actress has been persecuted in the same way before, and so have other public personages. It is one of the penalties of prominence. In view of the ease with which a contradiction of the Bloomsbury story might have been obtained, its publication is comparable.

CHARTER ELECTION.

The call for Democratic primaries to elect delegates to a convention to nominate city officers, appears in this issue. The date of election is Tuesday, Dec. 4th. It is very necessary that there be competent delegates sent to the convention so that a good ticket can be nominated. Remember, too, that if you were not registered at the time of the last election, another opportunity will be given you to do so next Tuesday, Nov. 27th. You cannot vote unless you are registered.

VINDICATION.

The election of Leon Abbett to the Governorship of New Jersey, besides securing for that important office one so thoroughly qualified to discharge its responsible duties, affords the additional gratification that his triumph is the victory of truth and decency over falsehood and vulgar defamation.

It proves that straightforward truthfulness is a mightier political weapon than artfully devised falsehoods, and that personal abuse injures assailants far more than the assailed.

We hail the election of Governor Abbett as a glorious Democratic success, and a smarting rebuke to those who smirch partisanship with words and deeds they would as honest and respectable citizens blush to acknowledge.

THE OFFICIAL RETURNS

The total vote in New Jersey by counties, shows Abbett, Dem., 103,841; Dixon, Rep., 97,084; Parsons, Pro., 4,155, and Urner, Nat., 2,942. Abbett over Dixon, 6,757; combined vote of Dixon, Parsons and Urner over Abbett, 340.

The following will show the number of votes each party received in New Jersey for Governor in 1880 and 1883, and also losses and gains of each:

DEMOCRATIC VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.
Ludlow in 1880 received	121,666
Abbett in 1883 received	103,841
Democratic loss of	17,825
REPUBLICAN VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.
Potts in 1880 received	121,015
Dixon in 1883 received	97,084
Republican loss of	23,931
NATIONAL VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.
Hoxsey in 1880 received	2,759
Urner in 1883 received	2,942
National gain of	183
PROHIBITION VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.
Ransom in 1880 received	195
Parsons in 1883 received	4,155
Prohibition gain of	3,960

Jacob Seib, a farmer living near Erie, Pennsylvania, in order to foil burglars, made a depository of his parlor stove, the deposit being currency and securities amounting to $10,000. His wife arranged to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage by giving a surprise party, and, not knowing her husband's secret, lighted a fire in the stove and burned the earnings of their lifetime.

The Retail Grocers' Protective Association of Trenton is an organization to protect all the members from loss by persons who will not pay their bills. If a person owes a member of the association a bill and refuses to pay it, the member reports the name to the association, and that person is barred from getting credit from any member of the association until the bill is settled. The name is then taken from the list and its credit restored. It is now less than a year since the association was started, and the black list already contains more than a thousand names.

On Thursday evening of last week, Mr. Young, President of the First National Bank of Jersey City, gave a dinner party at his residence in Glenwood avenue, in honor of Governor-elect Leon Abbett. At the table were Judge Jonathan Dixon, the Republican candidate for the Governorship, and Mrs. Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Dodd, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Abbett; State Senator William Brinkerhoff and wife; Judge Manning M. Knapp of the Supreme Court, Mrs Knapp and others. Ex-Governor Bedle sent a letter of regret. His recent bereavement by death of his daughter forbade his attendance.

Picturesque Plainfield.

What it does not need—The water question.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The communication of G which appeared in your last issue of the 16th, is calculated to disturb the nerves of the timid, and those who have had little experience in sanitary projects. A person unbiased, and with no financial interest in new schemes and projects, will value the reasoning of your correspondent for what it is worth.

For the information of the uninitiated in the water scheme, I will state that the following is the process used for a successful accomplishment of the project: An individual, or a few men who are always ready for a good investment, or speculation, hunt out some beautiful and attractive town. They then commence by laying their wires and getting ready for manipulation. Two or three persons are selected to talk the matter up as it is called. They speak in the highest terms of the place. They extol its beauty, and unsurpassed advantages. But with great solemnity they will inform you, that you have a great deal to fear from the water. These men do not let the grass grow under their feet. They disseminate their startling information most industriously. The consequence is, those to whom they talk, are impressed with their seemingly plausible reasonings, and reiterate the same arguments to their friends and neighbors.

Thus the little leven begins to permeate the population and the people grow nervous. Their next move is to interest the City Council. They do not expect to meet with favor there immediately. But agitation will eventually tell in their favor. A proposition will then be made in due time, to furnish water, without expense to the city, for digging up streets and laying pipe. Their offer seems very liberal, and finally their object is attained, when permission is given to furnish it. For this they have labored, and nothing short of this would have satisfied them. Individuals are amassing great wealth by furnishing towns with water, and it is for their own benefit, and not for that of the town, that they come from far to labor in their midst.

Now a word in regard to the water and wells in Plainfield: We are wonderfully favored here in having excellent water. It cannot be surpassed anywhere. Nature has done a great deal for us. In a few hours a well can be sunk to a great depth. There are several veins of water running underneath our soil, and several stratas of earth between them. Any person can have a secure well, impervious to any contamination, provided he takes proper care. If he is satisfied on reaching the first vein of water, I grant that such a well is liable to become impure. It is impossible to infect a well sunk to the proper depth. The stratas of earth are a protection and will filter all impurities. A driven well may be sunk through a cess-pool, and the water will be pure and wholesome, provided you sink your pipe to the proper depth. I believe it has been tried in Plainfield with success. The people of this place have nothing to fear from their wells. When this town becomes unhealthy, then will be time enough to discuss sanitary methods. But that day is far distant if we are only content to leave well enough alone. Our City can show an excellent record. Few towns are so free from epidemics and disease as this.

There are some towns that were noted for their healthy record until the introduction of water, and their decline in this respect dates from such introgression. Water and sewers, are the cause. I have now in mind a city of about fifteen thousand inhabitants. The drinking water was unsurpassed, as well as its record for health. After the usual amount of manipulation, the waterworks were successful. The streets were dug up; sewers and pipes were introduced. There was no large stream of flowing water near, but an insignificant one was found, and a reservoir built. A resident of that place informed me that last year he paid a tax of between sixty or seventy dollars for the water they supplied. Previously it had cost him nothing. Besides it is very inferior for drinking. They are obliged to have strainers attached to the faucets, to prevent the nondescript small creatures—worms, etc.—the water contains, from interfering with drinking and cooking purposes. The supply is not copious enough to thoroughly cleanse the sewers. Those sewers are just so many elongated cesspools emitting very noxious gases. The pipes of the houses from necessity lead into this so called sewer; in consequence, evils are multiplied. A person can control his own cesspool and keep it in good condition; but one used by a large proportion of the town with an imperfect outlet, and a scanty supply of water, is a hundred fold more dangerous. The germs of typhoid fever or diphtheria may enter a sewer and impregnate a dwelling several blocks distant, through the medium of the pipes of the house entering it. The city to which I referred was formerly free from disease; it has now its full share, and scarlet fever and diphtheria have been epidemic. In addition to this the reservoir produces clouds of mosquitoes; and the streets being constantly saturated by water, aids in the distribution of them. They are now plagued with these little torments, almost to the same extent, as our neighboring city of Elizabeth—formerly they were free from them. We could also mention a town, once exceedingly healthy, but since the introduction of water, has suffered frightfully from epidemics. The mortality has been frightful. These two places are merely exponents of scores of others. There are two sides to this water question. Let the City Council and the people study the subject thoroughly; and they will come to the wise conclusion that we are far better off in our present condition.

If we thought there was any probability of an introduction of water into our beautiful city, we would go more elaborately into a discussion of the subject; but these few hints may not be out of place, after the writing up of the water question by your correspondent G.

OBSERVER.

"Adopted—All Aye."

The following resolutions in full, presented by Mr. Serrell, were crowded out of our Council Proceedings of last week:

Whereas, it appears that the books and accounts of Lewis E. Clark show that he has received school warrants $50,038 60
Other school taxes.......... 114,809 77

Total..........		$164,847 37
Paid school No. 12	$1,961 19
" " 12	146 38
Board of Ed. No. 1	157,145.45	159,253 02
School money deficient......		$5,674 35
Apparently due city.........		657 49
Reported deficient by court...		$6,331 84

And whereas, the Board of Education claims that the sum of about $4700 and interest is due said Board on taxes prior to 1881; and

Whereas, before the year 1878 it was customary for said Lewis E. Clark, collector of taxes, to receive warrants for state school money and to pay them over to the county collector, as so much cash on account of taxes due the county, instead of paying them to the Board of Education, and thereafter to pay to the Board of Education the ordinary taxes as he received them, to liquidate the amounts of the warrants, thus mixing up the accounts that should have been kept separate; and

Whereas, the Board of Education has obtained judgment against the county collector on one of the said school warrants, illegally passed over to him on account of taxes, and the county has sued the city treasurer for the sum, so as to reimburse the county collector; and

Whereas, there are other suits pending in relation to the amount claimed by said Board of Education, thus involving extended legal expenses to the Board of Education, the county and the city; and

Whereas, neither the city nor the county has been benefitted by the amount of the deficiency to the Board of Education, as shown by the aforesaid statement; and

Whereas, the trouble arises from the fact that taxes to the amount of $6,331.84 still remain in the hands of Mr. Clark and Mr. Coward, which should have been paid over to the Board of Education in settlement of its claim, and the balance to the city; therefore

Resolved, that the corporation counsel and the committee be directed to confer with the proper authorities and with the Board of Education, with a view, first, to obtaining a stay of proceedings which will stop the expenditure of the people's money in law expenses; and, second, to obtaining the payment of the amount of money due from Clark and Coward for the liquidation of the just claim of the Board of Education and the city; and that the committee be requested to report to this council at its next meeting.

Resolved, that it is the opinion of this council that as said Clark was the agent of the Board of Education in the collection of school moneys, and that as the city has had nothing to do with the collection or payment of school moneys, it is the province of said Board of Education to enforce the settlement of the deficiency in the accounts of the said Clark and Coward at its own expense; and also that the said Board should bear a proper proportion of the expenses incurred in ascertaining where the deficiency of school moneys had arisen.

Thoroughbred Cattle.

Under the above heading an article appeared in last Sunday's New York Sun which paid the following deserved compliment to a well-known resident of this section:

"Another famous stock farm is that of Mr. Jno. I. Holly of New York. It is about three miles from Plainfield, N. J., and consists of 713 acres. There are accommodations for about eighty head of Jersey Cattle. The arrangements of silos, grist mills, grain carriers, water, gas, toilets, ventilation, and various labor-saving apparatus are on an extensive and expensive scale. The dairy house, for instance, is supplied with air through a deeply sunken subterranean duct which has an outlet in an adjoining field. There is a contrivance by which the gentle breeze sends a current of fresh pure air into the dairy. A peculiar feature of it is that the temperature of the air admitted never varies more than from 57 degrees to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. This is considered the perfection of a device for raising cream by shallow setting.

"In Mr. Holly's herd was the bull Pofomba, worth $4,000, and a son of Gilderoy. Among his cows are Dandelion, Madge Gray, Favorine of the Elms, Emily Hampton, and Rene Nolse. He won the Breeders' Cup in 1881 for the best six or more animals in the sale of P. C. Kellogg & Co., at the American Institute Rink. His two-year-old heifers, Favorine's May and Petronella sold for $1,800 and $2,000 respectively. His average for the six was $1,266 26. His farm is valued at $150,000."

Resolutions.

At a joint meeting of the Board of Trustees and Executive Committee of the Washington Association of New Jersey, held at Washington Headquarters on the tenth day of November, 1883, at which the decease of the Honorable Theodore F. Randolph was announced as having occurred on the 7th inst., the following resolutions were adopted, ordered to be entered on the minutes of the association, and a copy of the same transmitted to his family and sent to the newspapers for publication.

Resolved, That the Washington Association of New Jersey, with great sorrow, records the death of the Honorable Theodore F. Randolph. He was one of its founders and its most earnest friend, giving largely of his means toward the acquisition of its sacred property. Through his efforts a liberal charter was procured for the Association from the Legislature of the State, and means provided for its permanent support. He was its first and only President, and already, during his administration, the growing appreciation of Washington Headquarters seemed to be fulfilling his own prophecy "that this old mansion will become a Mecca, toward which all patriotic Jerseymen will from time to time turn their steps, finding in times of peace a grateful repose from life's turmoil; and in time of danger to the country's peace of welfare obtain, as from a pure fountain, inspiration to patriotic purpose."

Resolved, That his fellow members of the Board of Trustees and Executive Committee hereby express their appreciation of his true friendship, sound judgment, courteous manner and kindly humor, and will always hold him in most honorable and affectionate remembrance.

BAD, BAD, BAD BLOOD. 3

Some blood is bad because it is poor and weak. Some is bad because it contains impurities. Some men have such bad blood that the wonder is it does not poison the mosquitoes who come to bite them.

The rich red color of good blood is owing to the iron which is present. Blood which has not enough iron in it is always unsatisfactory. The persons in whose veins it circulates cannot be said to enjoy good health.

The efforts of expert chemists to produce a preparation of iron which can be assimilated with the blood have resulted in that perfect preparation which is an important part of Brown's Iron Bitters. It is the only one which freely enters into the blood. It is the only one which accomplishes the desired good.

Weak, poor, thin blood may be made rich and strong, and impure blood may be purified by the use of that Great Iron Medicine, Brown's Iron Bitters.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER IN UNION COUNTY.

OH, for a North Plainfield Lock-up!

HAVE you engaged your turkey, yet?

NEXT week city politics will begin to boom.

THE Common Council meets next Tuesday evening.

TWO "runs" by the Department Tuesday evening, is the record for the week.

WHAT is so rare as a day in November that can equal last Sunday, Monday or Tuesday?

THE Union Club has an entertainment this (Thursday) evening, in which the Hatton Glee Club will take a prominent part.

THE Rev. Dr. Gillespie of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth, will preach in the Crescent avenue church, next Sunday.

THE Rev. J. L. Hurlbut of this city, will preach in the Netherwood Union Chapel, next Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock. All are invited.

IF you are not already registered, register next Tuesday, the 27th inst. If you neglect this you cannot vote for city officers, Tuesday, Dec. 4th.

THE dressing of the windows of Mr. S. C. Lilienstern, the Clothier, is a work of art. We seldom see so much taste displayed, nor such perfection of arrangement surpassed.

OWING to the illness of the Rev. A. H. Tuttle, Dr. Lewis occupied the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church, last Sunday morning and evening, and preached two of his unexcelled sermons.

AT the Annual Convention of the Union County Sunday School Association, held at Rahway last Friday, George A. Chapman, Esq., of this city, was elected Vice-President for the coming year.

THE success of the Park House under its new management is really phenomenal. Sixty-five guests, almost all of whom are permanently located there for the Winter, is this week's quota.

THE next Y. M. C. A. Course entertainment will take place Thursday evening, Dec. 6th, in the Park avenue Baptist Church, when Mr. Locke Richardson will recite Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

AT Laing's Hall, this (Thursday) evening. The (resurrected) Jolly Two will give a grand Ball for which Prof. Frazee will furnish the music and French horns will be used for the first time in this city.

THE Turn Verein will give its Fourth Annual Ball and Show Turning, at Van Deventer Hall, the night before Christmas. Other Societies are invited and will take part in the Turning. Music by Prof. Voss.

A GRADUATE of Bonn University, Prussia, advertises elsewhere that he will give lessons in English, French and German. Terms and other particulars may be obtained by addressing post-office box 707, Plainfield.

"THE RAJAH"—one of the most successful plays under the management of the Messrs. Frohman—is approaching its two hundredth performance at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, and still draws crowded houses.

FARMERS who have fine droves of chickens, geese and turkeys, are now sharply scanning the market quotations. The indications are that there will be a trifling advance in price from that recorded last year.

THE Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., will lecture on Cardinal Wolsey, at the Park avenue church, Thursday evening, Dec. 13th, the occasion being the second of the entertainments given by the Young People's Association.

THE time has come for tramps to seek prison quarters by committing some petty crime. In Summer they are content to rove the country over, but county jails are their preference when the chill blasts of Winter set in.

THE establishment of Mr. John Dalbert, at No. 24 North avenue, has been purchased by Mr. Edward Ramonetti who possesses both the experience and ability necessary to continue the business in the most satisfactory manner.

THE Grove street bridge is at last completed. Holes are to be cut into the planking on either end of the structure, so that by lifting a trap door the suction of a steam fire engine can be dropped to the water below in case of fire occuring in the vicinity.

THE conductors on the P. & R. railroad trains came out with bran new uniforms on Monday last. The conductor's suits are double-breasted frock coats, brass buttons, pants to match, and little straight front caps. The other train hands have double-breasted, short dress coats, with the same kind of caps.

THE sociable of the Young People's Association of the Crescent avenue church, last Friday evening, was made unusually entertaining by the reading by Mr. W. W. Rowland of his first impressions as an European tourist. The Misses Dewey and Newman, also, contributed some of the most intense and least pleasing of classical music.

THE North Plainfield constables have recently been compelled quite often to intrust their prisoners to the safe keeping of our City Jail. Last week alone they numbered three. The inhabitants over-the-brook should provide a lock-up of their own, or expect a big bill from this city for the storage of their disorderly characters.

THE report appearing in New York papers that diptheria was prevalent in New Brunswick to an alarming extent, is denied by Dr. Shannon of New Brunswick, who states that he does not believe there has been twenty-five cases of genuine diphtheria in that city in three months and not over ten cases that have resulted fatally.

THE Mercer county authorities have leased a vacant lot in Trenton, and on Monday they will set all the tramps in the county jail at work digging post-holes and building fences around it. When this is done the vagrants will be chained together in the lot, furnished with a quantity of blue stone and hammers, and compelled to crack up enough stone, at $3 a ton, to pay the county's expense in keeping them. Tramps who refuse to work will be put on light diet.

THE elegant suite of rooms on the second floor of Van Deventer's new building on Front street, opposite Park ave., has been leased as law offices by Messrs. Geo. P. Suydam and Wm. P. Wilson, who will form a co-partnership and engage in the law profession. Mr. Wilson comes from Elizabeth and is the ex-partner of Judge Robert Green. Both Mr. Suydam and Mr. Wilson have had considerable experience in their profession and those wishing to consult any one in their line of business will find them courteous and capable.

SOME neighbors found Samuel J. Pooley dead in his house on the road between Liberty Corner and Mount Horeb, in Somerset county, this state, on Nov. 9. He was born in New York, in 1804, and was one of the original members of the Tammany Hall Association. In his prime he was an eloquent stump speaker. At one time he was considered to be worth over $1,000,000, but he died comparatively poor. The inventory of his personal effects amounted to about $20,000. His nephew, who has recently been a car driver in New York city, was summoned, and now has charge of the property under the administrators appointed.

SKATING, last Saturday and—Sunday.

ONLY six weeks to the 'January thaw.'

IT'S about time the Fire Board met and settled some of its bills.

REV. W. W. MCLANE, D. D., will preach in the Congregational Chapel, 7th street, next Sunday morning.

AN effort is being made to remedy the acoustic evils of the auditorium of the Park avenue Baptist church.

CHRISTMAS four weeks from Tuesday, and already the Sunday schools show a large increase of membership.

THE Grove street bridge should be painted white, that its space may be more distinguishable during a dark night.

THE Republicans hold their respective ward primaries to-morrow evening, and their city convention, Tuesday evening next.

Mr. Fred. Caspar has recently leased the Blatz Hotel, on Somerset street, North Plainfield, for four years from January next.

THERE are some very dangerous sidewalks on Somerset street, North Plainfield, and a number of lamps are needed along that much traveled thoroughfare.

AND now the Congregationalists must pass through the exciting experience of selecting a new pastor—the Rev. Mr. Manchee having tendered his resignation.

PROFESSOR THOS. WARD, a well-known ventriloquist and magician, has been engaged to give a performance at the St. Mary's Fair, to-morrow afternoon and evening.

A PACKAGE dropped from some passing carriage, on North avenue, Friday evening last, has been left at this office for identification by its owner. It can be had upon payment of notice.

THE Times is right in its inference that councilmen-at-large are hereafter elected for two years. The law says: "the terms of office of members of the Common Council shall be for as many years as there are Councilmen elected from each ward."

IT is reported that the iron pillars each side of the entrance to the new store erected by Mr. Van Deventer at the head of Park avenue on Front street, are to be taken away. If so, the only blemish to the beauty of the building will be removed.

MR. GEO. W. KIMBALL, the proprietor of the celebrated L. & B. lager beer, is offering a handsome bone-handled carving knife and fork to every purchaser of two boxes of the same. His address is P. O. Box 937, and the beer is superior for family use.

A NUMBER of visiting members of the masonic fraternity enjoyed the hospitality of Miller's Hotel last Tuesday evening, a bounteous supper being served up to them. The lucky participants were profuse in their comments on the excellency of the menu.

THE Fifth Annual Ball of Plainfield Hose Co., No. 2, will be held at Blatz's Hall, next Wednesday evening, Thanksgiving Eve. The best of music will be furnished. Stages will run from the corner of Front and Somerset streets during the evening.

THE morning mail train to New York was a little late, Wednesday, and a torpedo was placed on the track after leaving Plainfield station. The fast express passing just behind was thereby loudly signalled, and slowed up to give the mail an opportunity to switch off.

IN accordance with the new standard, the P. & R. R. R. issued a time table last Sunday changing most of the trains of the N. J. Central division a few minutes either in departure or arrival.—Messrs. Miller & Wiberley, with their usual enterprise, were the first to publish the new tables, which THE CONSTITUTIONALIST'S steam presses printed in advance of the change.

"WHITE Bronze" is now being extensively used as a material for monuments, headstones, etc., and those desiring anything of the kind will be pleased to see the beautiful models now on exhibition in the windows of H. S. Barnes' Painters Supply Store. H. S. Bilyeu will furnish all information in response to a postal addressed to him at the post-office, Plainfield.

Adjust Your Taxes.

The Board of Appeals of this city in cases of taxation, sits in the Common Council room, next Tuesday, from four to seven o'clock p. m. If there is anything wrong in your tax bill, attend this sitting and have the matter corrected. The North Plainfield Board sits in Warren Engine House, the same afternoon, at two o'clock.

St. Mary's Fair.

The great attractions displayed in St. Mary's Hall at the Fair now in progress, draw large gatherings every evening. It will be continued during the week, with an "extra performance" Saturday afternoon. A large assortment of Christmas presents are offered, and many beautiful articles of use and ornament. The contest for the diamond ring, which has become so exciting, will be decided tomorrow evening.

Personalia.

John H. Carney of Carney Bros., wears a long smile. Mother and girl baby doing exceedingly well.

Mr. Wm. Flanders, formerly of this city, has been visiting at the residence of Mr. Thos. C. Aldrich on West Second street where he was taken seriously ill with pneumonia, last Friday. A consultation was held by Drs. Probasco and Field; it is believed if the patient's constitution will carry him through to-day, he will recover. His mother and sister, who were sent for, are with him.

Sunday School Children in New Jersey.

At the meeting of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, the corresponding Secretary reported that the total number of schools is 1,885: number of scholars, 190,443; teachers, 21,083; officers, 8,530; total membership, 220,617; average attendance, 145,917. In Sunday School libraries there are 293,168 volumes. There are 71 temperance organizations connected with the Sunday Schools of the State. During the year the schools have raised $54,606 05 for benevolent purposes and $3,794 51 for state and county work.

The Law On Libel.

The following is a summary of a portion of Justice Magie's opinion in the libel suit against Lawrence Mott of the Trenton Times:

An indictment for libel, setting out a publication of words libellous per se, the innuendo to which, however, points a meaning not general but restricted, which restricted meaning would not naturally be attributed to the words, except by reference to intrinsic facts, not averred in a prefatory statement, will yet be objectionable if the facts necessary to show such meaning appear in the publication itself, so that the restricted meaning attributed to the words may be naturally discovered therein when read in connection with the preceding matter of the publication.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Bible study this week, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

The meeting for Monday evening of next week will be a "praise and promise" meeting. All young men are urged to attend.

The song meeting commences Sunday evening at 8.30 o'clock and lasts three-quarters of an hour. All young men who may be in the street at the above time are cordially invited to attend.

The reception committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary are arranging a fine programme for the reception to be held next Tuesday evening. Young men are invited to attend. Will members invite some of their young gentlemen friends and come with them?

Costly.

Lawrence L. Walsh convicted of selling liquor without a license at Summit, was, on Wednesday last, sentenced to pay $300 and costs of prosecution.

Adjourned Again.

The meeting of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department (adjourned until Tuesday last) was again adjourned for want of a quorum until the next regular meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 11th. President Van Winkle and Messrs. Jones and Morris were present.

New Officers.

The New Jersey Sunday School Association elected at Trenton, Nov. 15th, the following officers: President, Jessie L. Hurlbut of Plainfield; Corresponding Secretary, S. W. Clark of Jersey City; Recording Secretary, W. L. Plumer of Brick Church, Orange; Treasurer, W. M. Patton of Camden. An Executive Committee of one from each county was appointed.

A Thanksgiving Appeal.

The members of the Relief Association would be very glad to receive donations of food to be distributed among the beneficiaries of the Society for Thanksgiving. Meats, vegetables, fruits and provisions of all kinds will be acceptable. Contributions may be sent to the rooms of the Association on Second street, corner of Madison avenue, on Tuesday Nov. 27th, and they will be distributed by a committee of ladies on the following day.

JULIA H. ACLY, Secretary.

Charged With Theft.

Last Saturday Chief of Police Jenkins, of Elizabeth and detective Stackhouse of the P. & R. railroad came to Plainfield and arrested a man for stealing brasses from the railroad cars, principally from Bound Brook, Somerville and Raritan. In his possession was found 204 pounds of brasses, which had been put up in small packages so as to not attract particular attention. He claims to live in Bound Brook. Capt. Chase delivered the prisoner to the officials at the Somerville jail to await his trial.

Abolishing The Bell Rope.

The bell rope is to go. Its days of usefulness are over. Efforts have been made in the past to remove it, but no improvement could be found until recently. The Pennsylvania Railroad has just turned out several large engines, so constructed that the old bell rope and gong are dispensed with. The new arrangement is a small cord, connected with the air brake, with a small air whistle attachment in the cab near the engineer. The conductor pulls his cord, and the small whistle notifies the engineer. The new arrangement is simpler, cheaper, more durable and more reliable than the old plan, and less liable to get out of order.

The Hotel Netherwood.

During the late cold spell it was possible to prove by experiment and experience the practicability of heating the Hotel Netherwood. Having thus assured himself of his ability to afford his guests every comfort during winter, Mr. Woodruff is offering rooms in the most pleasing locations, with the best of service and a table second to no other, at greatly reduced rates. The Hotel contains 200 rooms—40 of which are in suites with private bath—all furnished in a style seldom seen outside the larger cities. Electric bells, gas, steam elevator, pure water from artesian wells, and telephone and telegraph connection are but a few of the conveniences available.

Another Journalist Gone.

There was married at the Reformed Episcopal Church, Rahway, Wednesday morning, by Rev. Mr. McFadden, Mr. R. D. Gibby, of the Rahway Advocate and Miss Kate Stratton, ex-vice principal of Columbia school of that city. After the marriage ceremony was performed the bride and groom and their many relatives and friends adjourned to the residence of the bride's mother where a bountiful repast awaited them. After all had done ample justice to the occasion the happy couple took the two p. m., train for Philadelphia and Washington. The wedding presents were numerous and costly. May they live to enjoy many anniversaries of the happy event.

Those Lectures.

Those who have secured tickets for the course of lectures in the Methodist church have in store a very great treat. Dr. Vincent comes to us with a new lecture on a subject which he is well qualified to discuss. Dr. Fowler has been heard here once, and he will be warmly welcomed with his great lecture on the "Great Deeds of Great Men." Mr. Bain, the Kentucky Orator, though well-known in the West has been heard but little in the East; but his fame precedes him everywhere; we hear the most glowing account of his power to entertain and instruct. Western papers almost exhaust the list of adjectives in describing his platform style and power. We learn that Dr. Vincent is to have him at Chautauqua next Summer. Tickets with reserved seats can now be obtained to Dr. Vincent's lecture. Course tickets are going off rapidly.

Masonic.

About two hundred of the masonic fraternity gathered together in the rooms of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & M., this city, on Tuesday evening last, to witness and participate in the conferring of the M. M. degree by the Worshipful Masters of different Lodges in the Fifth Masonic District of this State, by direction of District Deputy Grand Master Hamilton. That official, however, being unfortunately confined to his home in consequence of sickness, P. D. G. M. Tillou, of Essex Lodge, Elizabeth, officiated in his stead. Among the Grand Officers present were M. W. G. M. Henry Vehslage, S. G. W. James A. Norton, J. G. W. Henry S. Haines, Grand Instructor Heber Wells. A number of the District Deputy Grand Masters of the State were also present. Delegations were present from Elizabeth, Rahway, Westfield, Somerville, Metuchen, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, and other Lodges. The exemplification of the work was highly commended by the Grand and District officers.

District Messenger Service.

We last week gave the names of the officers of the Plainfield District Messenger Company, an organized company of capitalists who propose furnishing a useful and important service to our citizens. On Tuesday last, two uniformed messenger boys from New York city passed through our streets delivering circulars explanatory of the system. As stated in it the Company propose furnishing a Messenger, Police, Fire and Burglar Alarm Service. The police service is to be employed and paid by the Company, for the protection of subscribers, in case of necessity, and when signalled for, a special policeman will be sent at once to the residence of a subscriber requiring the services of such an officer, at any hour of the day or night. Intelligent and reliable messengers will be selected and neatly uniformed, to answer calls of subscribers. One's family physician can be signalled for by this service, and a messenger at once despatched to obey the instructions given. Also the Fire Department can be signalled, or a carriage summoned. The service is in successful operation in many cities and there is no reason why it should not succeed in Plainfield. Charles Wana, of North Plainfield, is President of the Company, and Mr. Chas. W. Kimball, of this city, one of the Board of Directors.

Beautiful Goods.

At Rand's, No. 21 West Front street, may be found one of the finest assortments of fancy stationery, toys, books, etc., to be found in this city. The goods are all fresh and new. Those interested in Flower Painting should call and examine the beautiful flower studies by Augusta Bisbett.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Ever since the commencement of the incendiary fires in Dunellen, which have occurred for months past, suspicion has pointed to one Frank Conover, a young man recently released from prison, and of very respectable parentage, as being the instigator of them, and the officials have for some time been on the alert to arrest him. Last Sunday evening information was received that Conover was seen to enter a certain building in Dunellen. A posse of men, headed by Constable Huff, surrounded the building, and as Conover attempted to run from the back door, a shot was fired by one of the party, which induced the wanted person to stop and surrender himself. He was committed to the County Jail, at New Brunswick for safe keeping. It is claimed that there is strong circumstantial evidence that Conover has been concerned in the starting of the recent incendiary fires in Dunellen.

Sentence Day.

Last Friday was sentence day in the Union County Courts, Judge McCormick presiding.

John Dwyer, for manslaughter, sentenced to six months less one day in the County Jail and costs.

John Quigley, breaking with intent, County Jail two months and costs.

Charles J. Murphy, larceny, County Jail two months and costs.

Robert Roddick, sentence suspended.

Frank Smith, petit larceny, County Jail thirty days and costs.

Felix Sullivan, breaking, etc., plead not guilty.

Isaac N. Taylor, petit larceny, County Jail three months and costs.

Robert Rody, petit larceny, fined $20.

In the matter of the Summit cases, the untried ones were set down for Tuesday following, and the sentences were deferred until next Saturday.

First Anniversary.

The Young People's Association of the Park avenue Baptist church, celebrated the first anniversary of its formation, in the chapel during Monday evening, upon which occasion a large attendance thoroughly enjoyed the excellence of a varied programme. The address of the Rev. Robert Lowry reviewed the year's existence of the Association—its great success in the past and its promise of greater in the future. This was preceded by an instrumental solo by Miss Van Name, and followed by a duett in which the voices of Mrs. Mosher and Miss A. Runyon combined. Other features of the programme were the singing of Miss Kinsey, the playing of Miss Huntington, Miss Wyckoff and Miss M. Runyon, and the reading of Mr. Appleton and Mrs. Alberti. The latter lady though mentioned last, secured the honors of the evening. At the close of the programme, and at the invitation of the Association expressed by Mr. Fish, the gathering adjourned to refreshments in the parlors above.

Telephone Troubles.

The citizens of Morristown are complaining about the action of the Telephone company raising the rates for service in that town. The Banner thus explains the difficulty:

"The trouble at present existing between the Company and the subscribers is as we understand it about as follows: 'When the telephones were put in it was understood that the prices would be $30 per year on a circuit wire, and $40 for a private wire, and that connections with Dover and Madison were embraced in those prices without extra charge. Subscribers have, however, been charged extra for connection with those two places as well as with the larger and more distant cities, and the tolls for the succeeding year have been increased to $4 on a circuit wire for residences, $50 for stores and $60 for a private wire. Against this increase the subscribers 'kick' and the company then make a concession saying, we will charge you these prices but give you rebate tickets to the amount of $10, $15 and $20 respectively, good for calls only, and not then for connection with Newark. The rebate tickets will not be received for rent of phones, but only for tolls.'"

The same trouble occurred in Plainfield, the Telephone company advancing the rates after they had secured a goodly number of subscribers. Many of the latter at once ordered out their phones and discontinued the service.

Opening The Course.

To thoroughly gratify a Plainfield audience with an entire musical programme, is a consummation seldom secured; consequently, when we record that complete and individual satisfaction resulted among the audience gathered at the opening entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Course, Thursday evening of last week, we highly commend the talents of those who took part in the programme, and deservingly compliment the Committee which so wisely arranged so auspicious an opening of the Season. The Eichberg String Quartette of young ladies, heard for the first time in this city, secured an amount of favor seldom accorded by Plainfielders. Their harmony and execution together were perfect, while as soloists Miss Lettie Launder and Miss Laura Webster disclosed remarkable talent. The Dudley Buck quartette of male voices has never failed to please, and did not fail upon this occasion. Miss Perle Dudley, the soprano soloist, unluckily suffered from the vocalist's greatest bane, a severe cold, besides which her selections were injudicious. We hope, however, to hear the artist again under more favorable circumstances.

Black Bass in Captivity.

Mr. Thomas Rinek of Easton, Pa., has fitted up a tank with a perpetual flow of water, and has placed in it a number of bass which he was fortunate enough to capture from the Delaware. The two largest weigh respectively 3 pounds and 7 ounces and 4 pounds 2 ounces. The latter's fins and tail are very ragged and torn, owing to a fierce attack made on him shortly after he was put in by the former. But the relations between all of them have since been amicable.

The largest one, after a few days' confinement, made a determined effort to escape, and jumped with such persistency and force that he loosened the wire gauze over the tank from it fastenings, and damaged his mouth to such an extent that he carried it open three-fourths of an inch for over two weeks, and it interfered materially with the comfort of his feeding. They feed very deliberately, and their favorite food seems to be young catfish. When one of these is put into the tank they will sort of point it, following its movements rather with their eyes, but never remitting this deliberate pursuit, and it is often a long while before they make an assault. The catfish instinctively recognize their danger, and immediately begin their tactics of defence. These are limited to turning tail to their enemy and keeping their heads in the bottom corners of the tank and under favoring stones. As long as they can hold this position they are comparatively safe, as the bass will rarely touch them except head first.

Recently a catfish somewhat over three inches long, by his skirmishing, evaded the largest bass for several minutes, and finally got his head well sheltered under a favoring stone. The bass, after several futile efforts to dislodge it, at last took it by the tail, drew it out, and swam leisurely around the tank several times with it, when, giving it a sudden toss, he caught it by the head.—American Field.

Suicide.

Ezekiel A. Pope, aged 63 years, a resident of Summit, in this county, committed suicide on Tuesday night last.

The deceased was born in Plainfield, and lived in this State all his life, except the time he served in the war. He was a private in the 2d Pennsylvania heavy artillery. He was wounded in the war, and has been more or less sick ever since 1865. For the past seven years he has not been able to do anything. He was a pensioner for gun-shot wounds in the face and right forearm, and suffered from rheumatism and asthma. The latter was the scourge of his life. He received six dollars a month on certificate No. 183,-866, granted on August 27th, 1881, and covering all the prior period from Jan. 20th, 1866. He has been attended by Dr. Lawrence, his family physician, to whom he has said several times that he would take his own life if he did not get relieved from his asthma. He did not want to live in such continual suffering. He was in such a condition that medical aid could do nothing for him except to palliate his condition.

He had deliberately taken a small penknife, and with the small blade had cut deeply into his left arm, just below the elbow, severing an artery. The knife was subsequently found on a window sill, some five or six feet away from the bed. It was two bladed, with imitation tortoise shell handle.

Our Old Residents.

A correspondent gives us the following as the ages of some of Plainfield's oldest residents. We suspect the author, and give the figures as he gives them to us. However, if there are any errors, we shall be glad to correct them.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Some of the oldest men in the City of Plainfield are:

Jack Cuff, (colored)	113	years
Jessie Thorn	99	"
Rev. Lewis Bond	87	"
M. Stelle	82	"
Peter Wooden	92	"
Daniel VanWinkle	82	"
Manning Vermeule	80	"
Wm. M. Jennings	81	"
H. S. Latemer	84	"
James Ayres	86	"
T. S. Morse	82	"
Miller Cole	84	"
Mrs. Miller Cole	81	"
Mrs Anna P. Thorn	80	"
Mrs. Frazee Whitehead	81	"
Frazee Whitehead	93	"

The latter named is the oldest citizen and has lived in Plainfield the longest—so he is the oldest man in this city. The total age of the 16 figures up 1381 years.

We would state that the first named—Jack Cuff—died recently, and, as it was stated in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, claimed to be 113 years of age. Jesse Thorn now resides in New Market and is hale and hearty, and undoubtedly of the age claimed. He has a habit of walking several miles a day and takes his occasional drink of apple John, the same as our old friends Frazee Whitehead or Manning Jennings do if they want it. Mr. and Mrs. Cole reside in North Plainfield.

The trustees of Public School No. 10, have placed a number of new seats in the school building, it having become necessary from the increased number of children in attendance at the commencement of the new school year. Prof. Johnson, the Principal, has established a system of Kindergarten instructions in the Primary department.

A topic of great apparent interest for many months past has been the estate left by the late Gideon Ross, a life-long resident of Westfield. Mr. Ross left lands in Westfield, about 250 acres, besides real estate in Plainfield, Linden, N. J., and Savanna, Ga., and also considerable personal property invested and otherwise. He left a last will and testament, which was admitted to probate twenty-two years ago, shortly after his death, which occurred in 1862. Mr. Ross left surviving him a widow and one child, a daughter, the only persons who took under his will, as they understood it, Mrs. Ross, the widow, acting as executrix. In 1868 the will was submitted to Joseph P. Bradley, then a distinguished lawyer of Newark, and for many years past a Judge of the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Bradley wrote an opinion discussing all these questions which in his judgment could arise and concluded that under the will of her father and the Statutes of the State, the daughter, Mrs. Chauncey B. Ripley, was seized of an estate in fee simple of all the real estate he left subject to the use of the Essex county lands by her mother during widowhood. Mr. Ross died in 1862; Mrs. Ripley died in March last, leaving her real and personal property to her husband; one-half of the income, however, in trust to him for the use of her mother.

In September last Mrs. Ross died and then many claimants asserted rights to the property as next of kin to Mr. and Mrs. Ross. Actions at law, suits in equity, petitions and injunctions were gravely suggested, and great changes were generally expected. The claimants employed and consulted many eminent lawyers, among whom were ex-Governor Bedle, Mr. Muirhead and Mr. McGee, of Jersey City, ex-Chancellor Williamson, of Elizabeth, and ex-Judge Hopper, of Patterson.

Chauncey B. Ripley, who has resided on the premises for nearly twenty years, submitted the whole matter to ex-Senator John W. Taylor, of Newark, with the wills of Mr. Ross, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Ripley, including the opinion of Judge Joseph P. Bradley, written by him in 1869. Mr. Taylor adopted the law of Judge Bradley and advised his client, Mr. Ripley, to assert his right to both the real and personal property and facilitate a speedy adjudication of the courts, if the claimants were disposed to bring suit, or, if they were not prompt, to bring a suit in Chancery himself to quiet the title.

Mr. Taylor made the same statement to his adversaries, and after an examination of the wills and the law governing the case the claimants were advised by their own counsel that the opinion of Judge Bradley given in 1869 was good law. Mr. Ripley had been living on the premises for nearly twenty years, and spared neither money nor pains in bringing the lands to a high state of cultivation, and in beautifying them. During this period he has planted 1,500 shade trees, mostly in the streets and avenues, graded miles of roads at his own expense and fenced the entire premises, treating it as the property of his wife and as he treated his own lands. It is generally conceded that the improvements cost much more than the original value of the land. Among those interested on behalf of the claimants were James R. Baker and Ichabod Ross, of Westfield, N. J.; James R. Radford and Edward Radford, of New York city; Wm. Baker, of Chicago, and Jeremiah Baker, of Madison.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Mr. Pierre Lorillard has recently purchased several hundred pair of live quails and liberated them on his preserve at Jobstown, Burlington county.

There will be a shooting match at Hopkins (formerly Campbell's) Club House, the morning of Thanksgiving, at 10 a. m., with plenty of birds. Also a raffle in the evening.

The success attending the efforts of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society" to re-stock certain sections of the State with quail last Fall, having resulted favorably, the Society will purchase a larger number this winter, to be kept over until the proper time for liberating them in the spring. The Westfield Game Society have also purchased quail for the same purpose.

The recent mild weather has been death to a large amount of game. Every one capable of handling a gun, and having nothing else to do have been hunting, and as a consequence quail and rabbits have been pretty well exterminated in many sections. But few ruffed grouse have been killed on the mountains back of North Plainfield. There was a large flight of woodcock the past Fall, and large numbers of them have been killed. The late cold snap has sent them on their journey South, and it will be only an occasional "whistler" that will be found in these parts during the balance of the year's shooting.

Somers' antidote to malaria is the only remedy approaching a specific against malarial ailments. It has cured more chills and fever, or malaria in other forms, than any known remedy. Its popularity originates from the cures it has made; not from advertising. It advertises itself. A. A CASE NOT BEYOND HELP.

Dr. M. H. Hinsdale, Kewanee, Ill., advises us of a remarkable cure of consumption. He says: "A neighbor's wife was attacked with violent lung disease, and pronounced beyond help from Quick Consumption. As a last resort the family was persuaded to try DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. To the astonishment of all, by the time she had used one half dozen bottles she was about the house doing her own work. I saw her at her worst and had no idea she could recover."

FREEHOLDER'S PROCEEDINGS

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 1, 1883.

Regular meeting of the Board held Thursday, Nov. 1st, 1883.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Belmer, Donahue, Hubbard, Husbands, Isemann, Newbury, Oliver, Pierson, Smith, Thompson—12.

Absent—Freeholder Doty, Dobbie, Halliday, Vanderbeek—4.

The minutes of the last meeting were read (excepting list of bills ordered paid,) and on motion approved as read.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The Committee on Insurance, etc., presented a report stating that they had renewed the insurance on the public buildings in the same companies, and at the same rates as last year.

On motion report received and placed on file.

From Committee on Line Bridge, New Providence.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Morris County Line Bridge over the Passaic River, called "Littell's Bridge," beg leave to report that the same has been completed with new abutments, walls and new iron superstructure seventy-five feet in length at a cost to this county of $1,365.29, the appropriation being $1,700.

All of which is respectfully submitted:

WM. H. BRIANT.
WM. J. THOMPSON,
C. W. L. MARTINE,

Elizabeth, Nov. 1, 1883. Committee.

On motion received and placed on file.

From Committee on Line Bridge, Summit.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Morris county line bridge over the Passaic River at "Franklin Mills," beg leave to report that the same has been completed with new stone abutments, and iron superstructure 70 feet in length, costing this county $1,257 55, the appropriation being $1,800.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. H. BRIANT,
JAS. T. PIERSON,
C. W. L. MARTINE,
SAMUEL C. SMITH,
Committee.

On motion, received and placed on file.

RESOLUTIONS.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the Collector advance to the Sheriff $1,000 on October term of Court.

On motion, adopted; 12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the bridge in Fanwood on Terrill Road, near A. Farley's, be repaired at an expense not to exceed $5 from moneys already authorized to be expended.

On motion adopted, 12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By the Director:

Whereas, To meet current expenses, interest and bonds falling due, the county has to make temporary loans until the taxes are due and paid, and

Whereas, The City of Elizabeth and Township of Summit have paid tax monies before the same were due, which monies were needed and used by the County, thus avoiding the making of temporary loans to that amount, and

Whereas, The officials paying the same ask that interest be allowed them on all such payments to the date that their taxes fall due, therefore be it

Resolved, That the County Collector pay the Treasurer of the City of Elizabeth interests on $10,000 from September 21st, on $5,000 from October 21 on $13,000 from October 16th, on $10,000 from October 15th to Oct. 22d, amounting in all to $106, and to the Collector of the Township of Summit interest on $508 from October 10th to December 22d, amounting to $6 10.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the Freeholder from Westfield be authorized to make temporary repairs on bridge near L. W. Thies, at a cost not to exceed $50, and protect wing wall on bridge near Mr. I. Brown, at a cost not to exceed $5 00.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the Freeholder from Cranford be authorized to repair bridge near Mr Jacontaux, and near post office, at a cost not to exceed $15.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By Freeholder Briant:

Resolved, That the bill of James E. Burton, amounting to fifteen dollars, be paid when properly approved by the Coroner.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the Freeholders of Plainfield be authorized to repair the bridge across Green Brook, near Cadmus Mill, Plainfield, in connection with the county of Somerset, at a cost to this county of not more than fifteen dollars.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the bills of J. F. Sisco, for masonry at the Franklin Mill and Littell bridges over the Passaic River, amounting to $435 37 and $209 38, as per contract, be paid when sworn to.

On motion adopted—12 affirmative votes, no negative votes.

Freeholder Hubbard moved that when this Board adjourns it be to meet on Thursday, Nov. 22d next at 2 p. m.

On motion adopted.

DROWNED IN BEER.

Concerning this Popular Beverage Two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is, sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic temperance man the other day into the ear of your [illegible] correspondent. "That German drink has come to stay. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer drinking business is that it sets up kidney troubles as a heavy wind ruffles the waters," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to [illegible]. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once alleviates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, N. Y.

NEW YORK.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK. 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. $1 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

WALTER L. HETFIELD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 22, 1883.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Footways and Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The tenant, occupant, or any person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square or public place within the city, where there is any footway or sidewalk, and in case there may be no tenant, occupant, or other person having the care of the whole of any such building or lot, the owner shall put, maintain and keep such footway or sidewalk in good and sufficient repair, even on the surface, and so constructed as freely to shed water, and for the width of at least three feet, if said footway or sidewalk be that wide; if not, then for the whole width thereof, shall make and keep it free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other foreign substances; and in all cases in which at any time any footway or sidewalk is not in the condition required by this section, such tenant, occupant, owner, or other person, as aforesaid, shall forthwith cause the same to be repaired or put in above condition in conformity herewith.

Sec. 2. The street Commissioner is hereby authorized to notify and order persons liable under the preceding section to comply with the requirements thereof; and every such person neglecting or refusing to comply therewith within one week after such notification and order of the street commissioner shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to a fine not exceeding ten dollars, and for each and every week thereafter that such neglect or refusal shall continue any further sum not exceeding ten dollars; and in case such neglect or refusal shall continue for the space of nine days after such notification and order of the street commissioner, the street commissioner may cause the necessary repairs to be made, and the person or persons convicted under this or the preceding section shall be liable for the costs incurred in making such repairs in addition to the fine.

Assignee's Notice to Creditors!

NOTICE is hereby given to the creditors of Mulford Cole, of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, that all claims against his estate must be exhibited to the subscriber, his assignee, at his office, No. 14 East Front street, in the city of Plainfield, aforesaid, under oath or affirmation, on or before the second day of January next, being three months from the date of the assignment, or be forever barred from coming in for a dividend of the estate; and said creditors are further notified that a list of the claims against the said Mulford Cole will be filed with the Surrogate of the County of Union at the expiration of said three months when exceptions thereto may be filed by any person interested.

POETRY.

AN EPISODE OF FARMER CHITTY.

To the city
Farmer Chitty,
Plain, but gritty,
Came one day,
And he wandered,
And he pondered,
On his way.

Then while gazing
At amazing
Sights and praising
All he saw
He was taken—
Hand was taken
By mistaken
Mr. Snaw.

Who to right it,
And requite it,
Him invited
To a smile;
And the farmer
To the former Grew a warmer
Friend the while.

Soon, seated,
And ingated
Chitty waited
For the deal;
When some aces
Showed their faces—
Two hard dases
Made him squeal.

In the city
Stood the gritty
Farmer Chitty
Cursing all;
Not a penny
Of the many
Had he, any
Any more to call.

Home returning
Through the burning
Sand, and learning
How to tramp.
Spouse she took him

And she shook him,
Grit forsook him,
And she wouldn't believe a blamed word he said in explanation.

THE LOVED ONES GONE BEFORE.

I have listened to many sermons,
And heard the story told
Of Heaven and all its glories,
By preachers young and old.

The gates of pearly whiteness
And shining streets of gold,
Of the joys that there await us,
All the happiness untold.

They tell of blooming flowers,
That no touch of time can blight;
The long, long golden hours
Of that day that knows no night.

But tell me this, ye wise men,
Who are learned in Bible lore,
Shall we see again those loved ones
That have early gone before?

Will they give me back my darlings
Unto my fond embrace?
Shall I feel their loving kisses
Rain on my neck and face?

Will the little hands I folded,
With the lilies clasped between,
Be stretched again to meet me
As I see them in my dream?

I hear your vague conjectures,
And wait with hungry ears,
To catch one hope to cling to,
Amid these doubts and fears.

I do not doubt your wisdom,
But the Heaven you preach to-day
With all its promised glories
Seems very far away.

You call me weak and wicked,
And tell me have a care;
I only see a little mound,
That hides my darlings there.

BROTHER AND SISTER.

'What is your name?'

'Clip.'

'Rather appropriate, I fancy,' observed Jack Cranford, eyeing the dwarfish figure of the lad before him. 'Who do you belong to?'

'Nobody.'

'Well, where on earth did you come from?'

'Clipper Gap.'

Cranford indulged in a hearty laugh.

'You want to know if you can stay here eh? Yes, you may, but I warn you that you won't get either fat or rich very soon unless you have better luck than the rest of us.'

'Can Clipper come too?' inquired the boy, with an upward glance of his sharp black eyes.

'Who in the name of all the gods is Clipper? Your dog, eh?'

'No, she ain't a dog, she's a gal, my sister.'

'Where is she now?'

'Down by the gully washin' her feet 'cause they hurt.

'How old is she?'

'Don't know; bigger'n me, though.'

'Concise and explicit,' remarked Cranford, with an amused smile. 'You had better run along and bring her up to camp. It is growing dark and you may get lost.'

'Clipper never gets lost, she can go anywhere,' he asserted in a tone which bespoke the utmost confidence in his sister.

Cranford watched the boy as he bounded nimbly down the hillside. 'Hi-eh-hi eh,' he sang at the top of his voice. A musical 'Ho - eh - ho - eh - ho' resounded through the hills and the next moment a slim girl darted forward, caught Clip in her arms, kissed him and then gave him a sharp slap on the cheek.

'Ye hateful little toad, I thought ye was lost,' she said by way of explaining the dual reception she had given him. 'Where ye bin?'

Clip rubbed his face and muttered:

'Up there, found a camp, the man wants ye to come too.'

'Oh, Clip,' she cried, not heeding his answer, 'I was scared—I thought they'd caught ye—I wish ye wouldn't run off like that.' The exclamations were uttered in a breathless sort of way, and she placed her arms protectingly around him. A very pretty picture she made as she stood there. The golden red rays of the setting sun glimmering athwart the live oak boughs, threw fantastic shadows over her gypsy-like face. Her scant costume, consisting of a brown petticoat and sack, and a gay colored Mexican shawl draped Spanish fashion around her head and shoulders, gave her a quaintly picturesque air. Jack Cranford, who had strolled leisurely after the boy, appeared in view on a declivity a couple of yards above them. Catching a glimpse of him, she started back a few steps, then lifted her dark, half-terrified eyes to his face.

"It's only the miner," whispered Clip, in an assuring tone.

Hand to hand they advanced to within a short distance from where he stood.—Just then a group of men appeared on the other side of the camp clearing.—The girl's sharp eyes discovered them, and in an instant she was at Cranford's side, grasping his arm.

"Don't let them hurt him!" she cried, her dusky face growing almost white.

"Nobody shall harm either of you," said Cranford, laying his hand on her shoulder.

"Hello, Jack!" called out one of the party, "who are your visitors?"

'Clipper and Clid, of Clipper Gap,' he responded. Then to the girl, 'You needn't be afraid; they all belong to our camp.'

'You were afraid of me, eh?' queried the newcomer, Dick Emory, 'what dreadful crime have you been perpetrating?'

'I didn't do nothing bad,' she replied, with a touch of her childish dignity, 'but he,' indicating her brother, 'stole. He hain't got no one but me to look after him, and they were going to put him in the refuge, so we run away.'

'Poor little creatures,' said Dick, his pleasant-toned voice full of tender pity. 'So you thought we were ogres sent to capture you.'

Meantime the other miners had gathered around the children, for the girl was a child in years, although a hard experience had left little of the child nature in her.

'I'm not scared now,' she announced, glancing toward the group of rough men. 'If ye'll let us stay I'll work for ye. Can cook an' wash, can't I, Clip?'

The youngster screwed up one eye and nodded his head in an impish sort of way, which caused the miners to laugh heartily, and they all expressed a desire to keep them for awhile a least. Later on they learned that the children were orphans. They never saw their father, but had been told that he had died before Clip was born. Some three years before their mother, when on her death-bed, had charged the girl to take care of her brother, who had proved the torment of her life, but whom, nevertheless, she loved passionately.

'I tried to make him good,' she asserted, with a pathetic sigh, but he'd steal every chance he'd get.'

Her real name, she told Dick Emory, was Carrita, and her brother's Ignatio, but they were called Clip and Clipper, because they were born in Clipper Gap.

Dick Emory was young and handsome, even in his rough miner's dress. There was something contagious about the mirth that sparkled in the dark-blue eyes and spread itself over his frank boyish face. His courtesy and good-nature rendered him a general favorite with his companions; consequently they were not marked preference for his society. She seemed to anticipate his slightest wish, and whenever he rewarded her with a smile a crimson flush would steal into her brown cheeks and her beautiful dark eyes would glow with pleasure. The girl was so young and childish in many ways that no one dreamed she was capable of loving. And she, herself, was too simple and ignorant to comprehend the meaning of the joy his presence afforded her. She only knew she was happy—happier than ever before—and that was enough. Past sorrows were forgotten; she was satisfied—infinitely so—with the present, and never gave a thought to the future. Did Emory know, was he conscious of the love he had inspired in the breast of this child-woman? No; the sentiment was shrouded in such exquisite purity that even he was not aware of its existence. All womanhood was sacred to him, even this embryo woman, who was touching his life with her love, and he treated her with a deferential tenderness, not for the purpose of winning her regard, but because he could not do otherwise. But, alas! for the peace of poor, ignorant little Clipper! Every touch of his hand, every soft inflection of his voice, drew the meshes closer around her.

After the children had been in the camp several months the rainy season set in, and with it a low fever, which attacked even the most robust miner. It was then Clipper proved herself a ministering angel. She refused to sleep, or even to rest, when she fancied any of the sick men required her care. Emory had a slight attack, but recovered in a few days. When all thought the disease had spent itself the faithful young nurse was stricken down, but in her case it assumed a far more serious form; the remedies that had proved beneficial to the others gave her no relief. Finally, a physician was summoned from the nearest town, but his skill was of no avail.

One evening Emory was sitting near the camp-bed upon which the girl was tossing restlessly.

'Poor little Clipper?' he murmured, tenderly stroking the dark hair back from her burning forehead. 'You must try to get well, for I want to take you to 'Frisco next week. I am going to tell you a secret,' he went on, hoping to interest her. A slight movement of her head indicated her desire to hear it. 'You see, when I came up here, about two years ago, I left one of the sweetest little girls in the universe in San Francisco. She promised to be my wife as soon as—'

A low moan broke from the fever-parched lips.

'What is it dear? Are you in pain?' he questioned in a gentle, almost womanly voice. 'I have tired you with my nonsensical talk. There,' bending over as a mother might over a sick child, 'let me bathe your head awhile. I will keep very quiet and perhaps you can sleep.'

'No, tell me all about it,' she pleaded, laying her hot hand in his. 'I like to hear ye talkin'.'

'There isn't much to tell,' he resumed, anxious to please her, 'except that I love her better than any one in the whole world and hope to make her my wife next week.'

'Better'n me?' she questioned, in a strange, surprised voice. Her dark eyes were looking out yearningly from beneath their heavy lids, and Emory grew embarrassed under the searching gaze.

'My—my love for you is—something different—like a father's for a child—a brother's for a sister's,' he stammered.

'An' ye like her better'n me—better'n me?' she repeated the words in a far away voice. Then with a sudden move she threw her arms around his neck, drew his face down and kissed it, saying:

'I like you better'n Clip—better'n the whole world.'

'You are making her talk too much, Emory, you remember the doctor said she must be kept quiet.'

It was Jack Cranford who spoke. The younger man arose.

'Yes,' he assented, huskily, 'she cannot bear agitation. Perhaps you can soothe her to sleep.'

He turned away and the next moment was striding up the mountain as if hoping to escape the torture that filled his heart.

'Good God, is it possible that that child has learned to care for me,' he asked himself. 'And have I done aught to win her love. No, God knows I never dreamed of such a thing. I looked upon her as a child—a guileless child to whom the sentiment of love was unknown.'

Dave Poole was the first man he met when he returned to camp an hour later.

'How is Clipper?' he asked, glad that it was too dark for the man to observe his agitated air.

'On the home stretch, I reckon, poor little gal! She's been asking for you,' he responded, blowing his nose vigorously, hoping thereby to keep the tears from his eyes.

Emory stepped softly into the tent where she lay. Death was dealing gently with her—aye, even more gently than life had. A drawn look about the mouth was the only visible trace of his presence. Seeing her lips move, he drew near.

'Bury me—out on the hill—where we went one day—to git flowers. It is nigher heaven up there,' was what she said.

The day that she was laid to rest on the hill that was nearest heaven the miners gathered around the grave and sang 'The Sweet By and By' for her requiem. It was the only sacred song they knew, and they sang it with fervor as if each hoped to meet poor little Clipper again 'on that beautiful shore.'

Clip rather enjoyed the excitement, probably for the reason that he did not comprehend his loss. The miners spoke more gently to him. The best of everything in the way of food was given him, and taking it all together he had a very good time.

In the years which followed, Emory tried, for Clipper's sake, to make an honest man of her brother, but, as the poor child expressed it, 'he'd steal every chance he got,' and at last reports Clip was serving, gratuitously, the state of California.

POSTAL PERPLEXITIES!

If one virtue more than another is required by the clerk who dispenses stamps at the post-office it is patience. Day after day questions are fired at him by men, women and children, some of them of a business like character, but the majority of them show most profound ignorance on the part of the interrogators. Clerk Runyon kept a record of the more nonsensical questions asked in a single day, in compliance with a request made by us. The list has been culled somewhat, and here is what is left:

'Do postal cards go without a stamp?'

'Does the mail go East at 5 o'clock tonight?'

'Will this paper binder take this letter to Chicago?'

'Is this the kind of stamp you put on letters now?' asked a young lady who handed the stamp clerk two cents.

'Can't I get trusted for a stamp? I want to write to my father at Pittsburgh for some money and will pay you when I hear from home,' said a young man who had evidently seen better days, but whose appetite for strong drink told visibly upon his face.

'Will a two cent stamp take a letter to New York?'

'Are the old two cent stamps as good as the new fashion ones?'

'What time does the last New York mail close to-day?'

'What time does the next mail close for Caxenovia?'

Have they changed the postage yet? asked a young lady. 'They have,' was the reply. 'How much is it now?' 'Only two cents,' said the clerk smilingly. 'Oh, I thought it was going to be one cent!'

'Is this letter in time for the Easton train g

'Is there any mail here for ——?'

'When will this letter go out?' 'Where is it going?' asked the clerk. 'Out of town, I guess,' said the young man.

'Are the old two cent stamps good on letters now?'

'When is the next eastern mail distributed?'

'Is my letter in time for the Elizabeth train?'

'What does it cost to send a letter to Canada now?'

'What time will this letter get to the Old Country?'

'Where is the post office? I want to get a post office note.'

'What time does the New York mail close?'

'Is my letter in time for the New York mail?'

'Will a three-cent stamp carry a letter now?'

'What's the postage for a drop letter?'

'Can I send a pair of boots by mail?'

'How much does a postal note cost?'

'Will the Postmaster pay for this parcel if it gets lost?'

These are but specimens of a thousand questions which the clerk has to answer, and does answer good-naturedly. Another long list might be made at the window of the 'general delivery,' and also in the business department, where money-orders and postal notes are issued and paid and registered matter attended to.

QUEER VIANDS.

Although many whales have no teeth, the spermaceti whale, for example, has a most formidable set. With these it sometimes does terrible execution among the pursuing boats.

As may be supposed, such whales as have no teeth are properly provided for in some other way. Many of them subsist entirely upon the countless millions of jelly-fish, molluscs, and other kindred animals with which the ocean is plentifully stocked; and as they are soft and yielding, teeth are not needed either to capture or masticate them.

A net is what is needed, and this the toothless whales have. Depending from the upper jaw, which may be sixteen or seventeen feet long, is a hedge of baleen, or whale-bone, as it is commonly called. This is about ten feet long, and consists of a number of plates, solid in the upper end. There are about six hundred of these plates on each side of the jaw, and in a large whale their weight will be some two thousand pounds.

When the hungry giant wishes a meal, he opens wide his cavernous mouth, and letting his enormous lower lips drop down, drives through the water with all the force of his powerful tail. Millions upon millions of the tiny creatures upon which he feeds are thus taken into the gaping mouth which, when full, shuts tight.

The plates of baleen close down on the lower jaw and the prey is secure. A large volume of water has been taken in, too, however, and this must be gotten rid of in some way. The way is simple. The whale merely forces the water out through the interstices in the baleen, and the hapless fish remain to be swallowed at leisure down the throat, which is not more that two inches in diameter.

Occasionally this habit of the whale produces a very curious and beautiful effect. Many of the soft, jelly-like creatures in which the ocean abounds shine at night with a bright, phosphorescent light; and the water, too, dashed into spray by the vigorous sweep of the monster's tail, becomes charged with the same phosphorescent glow, and lights up the sea like drops of melted silver.

Under such circumstances, when the dark giant surges through the waves with distended maw, he seems a monstrous submarine fire-eater swallowing lumps of flame and defying the wet element with showers of flaming drops, which he leaves behind him in a weird, shining wake.—From "A Submarine Fire-eater," by John R. Coryell, in the Christmas ST. NICHOLAS

LITERARY NOTES.

The Pansy is one of the most delightful publications for small children published. It is issued weekly by D. Lothrop & Co., 31 Franklin street, Boston, Massachusetts, for seventy-five cents a year. It contains short, delightful and instructive stories by some of the best writers for children, and should be in every family where there are children under a dozen years of age. Let your newsman get it for you, or send seventy-five cents direct to the publishers.

The Wheelman for December is a fresh illustration of the marvelous hold of the bicycle and tricycle in public favor. The leading article describes a vacation spent near Mt. Agamenticus, on the coast of Maine. It is beautifully illustrated and intensely interesting. President Bates contributes another of his inimitable tales. Mr. Bates has consented to write a story or sketch for every issue for a year. "Pixie and I" is the title of a travel in Wales. S. Conant Foster, "The Wheelman Poet," appears in a very comical poem illustrated by seven silhouettes, by Stull. It is the finest piece of bicycling verse we have read for a long time. "Paris and Vicinity" is a timely article by Mr. Griffiths, of the Massachusetts Club. Karl Kron describes very fully all the roads leading to Springfield. Mrs. Catherwood contributes the second part of "Castle Trou-lie." "Boston to Buffalo and Beyond" is the description of a trip taken by a Phillips Academy boy. P. Devillier furnishes some french 'cycling history. "The Other Wheel" is the somewhat humorous title of an article on the tricycle, by Dr. Blackham. "H. H. M." contributes an intensely interesting and timely article on "Greek vs. Modern Physical Culture." "Modern Canoeing," by Kirk Munroe, is a very complete exposition of this subject. Editorials and Wheel news add much to the issue. The Book Notices would be creditable to a critical journal. The January number will contain contributions from John Borroughs, John Sanborn Phillips, Maurice Thompson, Harriet Hurd McClore, Mrs. M. H. Catherwood, C. E. S. Wood, and others. It will be lavishly illustrated by Henry Sandham, F. Childe Hassam and other artists. The Wheelman has combined with Outing, and "OUTING and THE WHEELMAN," the name of the new magazine, will cover the entire field of out-door recreations and travel. Address, "OUTING & THE WHEELMAN," 608 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

A REMARKABLE CAVE IN DEVONSHIRE.

The opening illustrated article in the December CENTURY is a description of Devonshire, entitled, "The Fairest County in England," by Francis George Heath. Of Kent's Cavern, in the vicinity of Torquay, a remarkable cave consisting of a great excavation in the Devonian limestone, the writer says: "It is entered by a narrow passage some 7 feet wide and only 5 feet in height. The central cavern, which is almost 600 feet long, has a number of smaller caverns or corridors leading out from it. Its farther extremity is terminated by a deep pool of water. In the bed of this cavern modern research has been rewarded by some deeply interesting discoveries. Over the original earth-bottom of the cave is a bed or layer of considerable thickness, in which are contained strange mixtures of human bones with the bones of the elephant and the rhinoceros, the hyena, the bear, and the wolf, intermingled with stone and flint tools, arrow and spear heads, and fragments of coarse pottery. The animal remains testify to the presence in the ancient forests of Britain of beasts of prey which long since have become extinct. Speculation may be exhausted in the endeavor to account for the curious intermingling in this cavern of the remains of human beings and of wild animals. The place may have been used for shelter successively by man and by the lords of the forest; or, as the presence of the rude weapons of man might seem to indicate, the beasts of the field may have been brought into this natural recess as trophies of the chase, and their flesh and skins used for purposes of food and clothing. Nothing less than the most persevering and enthusiastic search could have discovered the interesting remains which, for a vast period of time, had been buried in this retreat: for the fossils were covered by a thick floor of stalagmite which had been formed, there can be no doubt, by great blocks of limestone which had fallen from time to time, extending over a very lengthened period, from the roof of the cavern, and had become cemented into one mass by the perpetual percolations of lime-water from above."

WHAT IS LOVE?

One hundred letters were written to as many well-known "thinkers" of Vincennes, requesting answers to the question "What is love?" The result of the editor's labors indicates a confusing variety of opinion among the people of Vincennes as to what love is. Following are the answers from sixteen different persons:

An egotism of two.

One of the worst diseases of the heart.

A sweet and delusive imagination only.

A mere delusion that has ruined many men.

Don't know anything about it; I never was there.

True bliss—void of fancy—of happiest happiness.

The most interesting and pardonable of human weaknesses.

I don't know anything about it; don't thing it amounts to much.

It is something no fellow can find out, yet all feel its power, more or less.

A feeling of such exquisite tenderness that it is too sweet for comparison.

A feeling that takes root in the heart, and is only made perfect when it enters the soul.

A dormant passion of the mind aroused by beauty or intellectual qualities of some one woman.

An undefinable principle which all beings possess, and which lies at the foundation of all happiness.

A noble passion that envelopes our whole being, and shows itself in every thought, word and action.

The sweetest and most passionate excitement known to man—binding together, by the strongest cords, sex, kindred and nations.

A latent faculty of the mind that, when aroused, glows with a radiance that illuminates the gloomiest mind, and wields a power of influence that is unequaled.—Indianapolis Times.

THANKSGIVING.

By appointment of both President and Governor, Thursday of this week was set apart as a day of Thanksgiving.

It well becomes all people bearing the proud title of American to render sincere thanks, not formal, but heartfelt thanks, to the Divine Ruler for his countless mercies and blessings extended unto them, individually and nationally.

Thanks for the abundant fruits of earth.

For unity and unclouded peace.

For exemption from the blight of pestilence.

For the means of worldly prosperity.

For the extent and grandeur of country.

For the wealth of liberal institutions.

For the promises of eternal happiness.

May universal thanks arise as sweet incense to Him who gave the Fathers of the Republic favor and protection, and who will never desert their obedient descendants.

1800—1883.

Eighty-three years ago, before political conventions had come into existence, and when national candidates were named by a Congressional Caucus, the following platform of principles was adopted and Thomas Jefferson thereon nominated for President by the Democratic party:

1. An inviolable preservation of the Federal Constitution according to the true sense in which it was adopted by the States, that in which it was advocated by its friends, and not what its enemies apprehended, who therefore became its enemies.

2. Opposition to monarchizing its features by the forms of its administration, with a view to conciliate a transition, first to a President and Senate for life, and secondly, to a hereditary tenure of those offices, and thus to worm out the elective principle.

3. Preservation to the States of the powers not yielded by them to the Union, and to the Legislature of the Union its constitutional share in division of powers; and resistance, therefore, to existing movements for transferring all the powers of the States to the General Government, and all of those of that Government to the executive branch.

4. A rigorous, frugal administration of the Government, and the application of all the possible savings of the public revenue to the liquidation of the public debt; and resistance, therefore, to all measures looking to a multiplication of officers and salaries merely to create partisans, and to augment the public debt on the principle of its being a public blessing.

5. Reliance for internal defence solely upon the militia till actual invasion; and for such naval force only as may be sufficient to protect our coasts and harbors from depredations; and opposition, therefore, to the policy of a standing army in the time of peace, which may overawe the public sentiment, and to a navy, which by its own expenses and the wars in which it will implicate us, will grind us with public burdens, and sink us under them.

6. Free commerce with all nations; political connections with none, and little or no diplomatic establishment.

7. Opposition to linking ourselves, by new treaties, with the quarrels of Europe, entering their fields of slaughter to preserve their balance, or joining in the confederacy of kings to war against the principles of liberty.

8. Freedom of religion and opposition to all maneuvers to bring about a legal establishment of one sect over another.

9. Freedom of speech and of the press; and opposition, therefore, to all violations of the Constitution, to silence by force, and not by reason, the complaints of criticisms, just or unjust, of our citizens against the conduct of their public agents.

10. Liberal naturalization laws under which the well-disposed of all nations who may desire to embark their fortunes with us and share with us the public burdens, may have that opportunity, under moderate restrictions, for the development of honest intentions, and severe ones to guard against the usurpation of our flag.

11. Encouragement of science and the arts in all their branches, to the end that the American people may perfect their independence of all foreign monopolies, institutions and influences.

So spake the Democratic party in 1800, only thirteen years after the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and so it speaks to-day.

It is a striking illustration of political consistency.

The same principles of government openly espoused by the Democracy of 1800 animates the Democracy of 1883, and shows clearly why that grand old party of Jefferson has withstood all manner of opposition, lived to witness the birth and death of numerous organized enemies, passed unscathed through the fires of partisan hostility, and now stands throughout the entire Union a mighty bulwark for the preservation of the liberties of the people.

The glory and strength of the Democratic party is its steadfast loyalty to the principles of the Constitution.

For that it sprang into being, for that it has striven more than four score years, and for that it will fearlessly and forever fight.

The President has pardoned Sergeant Mason, who has been confined in prison for twenty months for attempting to shoot Guiteau, the murderer of President Garfield, and Mason has gone home to Betty and the baby.

Sharks are already reported at Washington, not swimming in the Potomac river, but prowling through the City in search of public land steals and other corrupt jobs, wherewith to appease their ravenous appetites. May the strong arm of Congressional integrity destroy the whole pestiferous breed.

THE CHARTER ELECTION.

The Republicans of Plainfield completed their labors of nominating a ticket for city officers, at a convention held Tuesday evening last. The names of the candidates will be found in another column. It will be seen at a glance, by those conversant with the proclivities of the nominees for Council, that there is not a majority of them in favor of granting licenses to sell spirituous and fermented liquors in the city. Neither is the ticket a strong one, if the Democrats will but do their duty and finish their uncompleted labors in their convention next Saturday evening by nominating good men for Councilmen, who have only the city's best interests at heart. A ticket with such men on it can win against one, like the Republican ticket just nominated, which means only to elect a majority to office to legislate on one subject—the rum traffic.

HONORABLE MENTION.

President Gowen and the Directors of the Reading Railroad Company deserve public thanks for the emphatic order issued by them, prior to the November election, forbidding any interference with the votes of men in their employ.

That was strictly in accordance with justice and freedom, and contrasts honorably with the disgraceful tyranny so often exercised by corporations and large establishments, when forcing employees to vote against their own individual judgments or be thrown out of work.

Every legally qualified citizen has the Constitution given right of voting as he pleases, unseduced by bribes and unawed by mercenary power. To place any obstruction in the way of that free privilege is an insult to citizenship and an outrage upon representative institutions.

The Reading Company has set an example worthy of general imitation.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The N. Y. World of Nov. 22d, continues the true work of the Democratic party in Congress, without reference to, and beyond, the election of a Speaker, as follows:

"All the Democratic branch of the next Congress has to do to help the Democratic cause in 1884 is to eschew platitudes and phrases, to be earnest and true in the effort to promote practical reforms and to show the country the difference between Democracy and Republicanism. This is not a difficult task. The Democratic House can enforce economy in expenditure. It can stop subsidies, check the silent, secret powers of moneyed corporations, drive out the lobby, drag to light hidden official dishonesty by thorough investigation, bring public robbers to the punishment they have hitherto escaped, enforce tax reform, make railroads return forfeited land grants and drive the republican branch of Congress to accept or reject laws for the effective punishment of the purchasers of elections and of seats in the United States Senate. With a Republican Senate and a Protectionist President in the way, any attempt at elaborate tariff legislation would be a waste of time. But there are reforms the Democratic House can enforce and abuses it can eradicate. Let it do this work in simple good faith, and the Democratic party will reap the benefit in the Presidential election on both sides of Mason and Dixon's line, without reference to the Speakership."

The Newark Advertiser says the Speakership contest in the Assembly lies between Messrs. Flynn, Chapman and Stoney, although Messrs. Neighbour and Chattle are candidates.

Notice is given that an application will be made at the next session of the Legislature for the division of Monmouth county, the portion set off to consist of the townships of Raritan, Holmdel, Middletown, Shrewsbury, Ocean, Neptune and Wall, and to be called the county of Shrewsbury, the county seat to be Red Bank.

The centennial celebration of the evacuation of New York city by the British troops, on Monday last, was something immense. Dr. Edwin Tomlinson, who was declared elected City Physician of Gloucester City at a recent meeting of the City Council, entered upon the duties of that office. District Attorney John McKeon, of New York, died suddenly on Thursday last. Mr. John Vincent has been appointed to act in his stead ad interim. Upon assuming office, District Attorney Vincent's first official act was to direct Clerk Dunphy to write the commission of Deputy Assistant District Attorney Brady, the son of James M. Brady, one of the most intimate friends of Mr. McKeon, as Assistant District Attorney. A vacancy was created by his advancement that will be filled by District Attorney Vincent. Mr. Brady is a son-in-law of the late Silas D. Herring, and is well known in this city, he having resided here some years previous to his appointment.

Reasons Why You Feel Badly. 4
Because your stomach is not doing its work properly.
Because your liver is out of order, and wants righting.
Because your blood is thin, and wants iron in it.
Because you are troubled with nervous aches and pains.
Because you are vexed with languor and debility.
All these Reasons Can be Set Aside by the Use of Brown's Iron Bitters, which will Tone up your enfeebled stomach, and help to digest.
Refresh your wearied liver, and put it in splendid order.
Enrich your watery blood, and give it a rich red color.
Calm your worried nerves, and give them restful peace.
Strengthen your whole system and drive debility and languor out.
Considering that any man who has a dollar may buy of the nearest druggist a bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, there is no reason why people should continue to feel badly, just for the fun of it.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER IN UNION COUNTY.

ALMANACS for 1884 are ripe.

OH, for a North Plainfield Lock-up!!

MORE trouble next Tuesday in politics.

REGULAR meeting of the Common Council next Monday evening.

THE turkey has ceased to wonder why it was receiving so much corn.

"LICENSE" or "no license" is again to be the war cry at the approaching city election.

THE Democrats of Plainfield have now a chance to vote a straight party ticket in a city election.

DR. VINCENT'S lecture on the "Power of the Parlor," Thanksgiving evening, will be largely attended.

THE young people long for a good old-fashioned frosty, sleigh-bell, skating, feasting, jovial holiday season.

THERE are 190,443 Sunday school scholars in this State. Of this number 6,073 professed conversion last year.

Go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for the city officers on the Democratic ticket. They constitute good and capable men.

REMEMBER in voting for Councilmen that the successful candidates will cast lots to see who shall remain in office for two years.

READ the holiday announcements of several of our advertisers in this issue. They have an elegant line of new holiday novelties.

IT cost the city a good deal of money last Tuesday, to keep twelve members and four clerks of the Board of Registry doing nothing.

BOSTON women of culture call fish balls "piscatorial globes." They taste just the same as when they are called by their primitive name.

DON'T forget the auction sale by T. J. Gillies, at No. 19 Plainfield avenue, on Friday afternoon, Nov. 30th. See advertisement in another column.

THE Jeweler's Circular, of New York, says an organized band of thieves have left that city for a raid on country jewelers, and warns them to be on guard.

"UNCLE JOHN" SIMPSON and Tell A. Beguelin have been re-nominated in the first ward for members of the Council. They have made good and reliable officials and should be returned to the Council.

WHAT does this mean? The Ocean County Democrat says: "Now that the gunning season has so far advanced, we shall give a space to heavy weight hogs."

THEY have got a boys-and-girls' society in England pledged never to kill birds or rob birds' nests. And it has over 80,000 members. Could not catch the average American boy in any such trap as that.

WEATHER prophets are foretelling a very mild winter. Stick this up for reference the coming season and see how little they know about it. November has already given us some very good winter weather.

How personal interest doth make prophets of us all is strikingly shown in the fact that the ice men predict a mild winter and raise their prices, while the coal men predict a hard winter and do likewise.

LARGE plate glass have been put in the show windows of Bachman Bros'. Dry Goods Store, which naturally add to the attractiveness of the building and better displays the large stock of goods which the firm are offering at such low figures.

A COMMON brick, if very dry, will absorb a quart of water. The perfect brick of the human variety, however, although he is always very dry, wouldn't absorb a quart of water in a year's drinking. Herein is seen the superiority of mind over matter.

SENATOR RANDOLPH'S will provides that the net income of $150,000 shall be given his wife in lieu of dower together with his personal property. He also provides that the net income of $200,000 be divided among his children and makes a numbers of bequests to friends and servants.

A NORTH avenue merchant threw a small stone at a dog one evening last week, as the animal was passing his store. The stone missed the dog, but bounding against one of the plate glass windows of Megie's jewelry store, broke a small round hole in the glass, the same as a rifle ball would make.

THE first twenty-four hour clock, which is of a kind soon to be adopted by several of the railroads, has recently been completed by a Wilmington manufacturer. The figures on the dial are in Roman numerals and the spaces between are one-half as large as on the ordinary clock. The minute hand makes twenty-four revolutions instead of twelve, while the hour hand revolves once. The face of time is becoming wondrous strange.

PHYSICIANS now attribute much of the diphtheria now prevailing to the custom of using night lamps. In turning them down low they smoke and smell even worse than when burning at full head, and from the fact that cooler weather compels the closing of windows, shutting off the supply of pure air, the custom is much worse at this season than during the summer weather. Turn out the lamps and accustom the children to sleep in the dark.

THE State Grand Council of New Jersey of the American Legion of Honor met last week in Paterson and elected the following officers: Joseph Coult, Newark, Grand Commander; Gilbert Collins, Jersey City, Grand Vice Commander; R. L. Hill, Passaic, Grand Orator; C. M. E. Shroeder, Newark, Grand Treasurer; H. T. A. Hoss, Hoboken, Grand Chaplain; George Teague, Newark, Grand Guide; S. Pierson Cook, Hackettstown, Grand Warden; Thomas G. Bunnell, Newton, Grand Sentry. In the evening there was a banquet and speeches.

NOTICE is given that application will be made to the next Legislature to have the boundary line between Union and Middlesex counties so changed as to set off from Union into Middlesex all that part lying between Rock avenue and Jefferson ave., at Dunellen. The latter avenue is now the legal boundary line. The property owners urging the change say that they are compelled to pay Plainfield city taxes and receive no benefits from school, fire, lamp or police service, as they are so far away from the centre of the city. They send their children to Dunellen schools, nearer by and consider that place their residence.

APPLICATIONS for the District Messenger, Police and Fire Service, are reaching Mr. Wann daily by mail. In looking over the list we find the names of well-known and prominent citizens, who evidently appreciate what a great convenience the service will be. Some of our leading physicians seem to recognize the importance of the system, as they also are subscribing. One prominent druggist is a subscriber, and others are likely to follow. The coal trade is represented, as also the Grocery. The company certainly have every reason to feel encouraged. They predict at least 500 subscribers in time, but will commence operations with half that number. Mr. Chas. Wann, the President, desires it known that it will afford him much pleasure to call upon any of our citizens who wish to see him regarding the working of the system, or to give information as to the service. A postal card addressed to P. O. Box 804, this city, will reach him.

DON'T forget No. 2 Hose Co's ball at Stitz's Hall, Thanksgiving evening.

ENGINE Co. No. 2 ran up Front street to put out the sun, Tuesday evening.

PATRICK BOYLE was sentenced at Elizabeth, Wednesday, to 15 years in State Prison for highway robbery.

IT cost about $3 a name to register those who were added to the list, last Tuesday. Repeal the law so far as it effects this city.

THE subscribers to the Vocal Society can secure their concert tickets at Shaw's drug store, on and after December 10, upon presentation of the Treasurer's receipt.

AMONG our new advertisements will be noticed that of the Plainfield Central Book Agency, which presents a new departure in the sale of books for Holiday gifts.

JOHN W. MORRIS, the veteran horse dealer of New Brunswick, announces in this issue the opening of his stables at that place with one hundred horses and mules.

OUR thanks are due and cheerfully accorded Architect Charles E. Jacques, for the use of one of the windows of his office at the corner of Pearl street and Broadway, during the great procession of Monday last.

THE Opera House rapidly progresses. Car loads of iron girders, columns and other material arrive daily. The contractors are faithfully using all their power to accomplish the earliest completion possible.

THE annual meeting for the choice of officers of the Children's Home Association will be held on Monday, Dec. 3d, at 2½ p. m. in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. A punctual attendance of all members and friends interested is requested.

THE Young People's Association of the Park avenue church has secured the Valincia Orchestra of 22 pieces for the fourth entertainment in their course, to be given February 7th. This will be as fine a concert as has been given in this city.

LAST Monday morning as our esteemed fellow citizen, John W. Laing, was about to board a moving train at the depot, he was then thrown violently to the ground, and, while fortunately receiving no serious injury, was considerably shaken up.

THE Anniversary Services of the Children's Home Association will be held on Monday evening, Dec. 3d, at 8 o'clock in the M. E. church. Brief addresses will be made by Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D. The annual reports will be read. Good music may be expected under the leadership of Mr. Daniel Davis.

A LARGE audience attended the first performance at this theatre of the musical extravaganza of "Our Goblins." It comprises the usual melange of light and respectable music; it is replete with puns, jokes and local hits, to which are added some clever imitations of well-known artists. Taken in all, Our Goblins makes an audience laugh heartily for over two hours, and a piece that can accomplish this in summer may be accounted a positive success.—New York World.

IT is rumored that in the event of the Plainfield District Messenger Company securing the required number of subscribers with which to commence business, a very formidable opposition Telegraph Company to the Western Union Company will run a loop into Plainfield, and arrange with the District Company to deliver and collect their telegrams. This would insure prompt service and a great benefit to those who use the public telegraph. The fact that a messenger could be called at any hour to carry telegrams for subscribers to the Telegraph office free of charge, would be a great convenience. A movement of this kind should be encouraged.

The Courts.

In the Courts on Friday last the two juries that had been out so long, one two days and two nights, in the Flood case, and the other a day and night, in the Wilcox case, were discharged, as they were unable to agree upon a verdict.

Thanksgiving Service.

The usual union service of the Protestant churches of this city will be held in the Trinity Reformed church, on Second street, Thanksgiving morning. The Rev. A. H. Tuttle, who was to preach the sermon, being still ill, Dr. Yerkes will officiate.

St. Mary's Fair.

The Fair of St. Mary's closed last Saturday evening after a most successful existence—netting between $1,500 and $2,000. Miss Maggie Flynn was the fortunate winner of the diamond ring, Mrs. Patrick Day the silver pitcher, and Miss Harkins the gold watch.

Partisan.

It has been the custom for the Board of Appeals in this city to include as one of its number the highest candidate for such position on the Democratic ticket. This year, however, the three Republicans took their positions and the Democrats were allowed no representation.

Band of Hope.

The first monthly meeting of the Band of Hope will be held at 3:45 p. m., on Wednesday, Dec. 5th, in Cutter's Hall—third floor over store—Front street. All the members are particularly requested to attend. The weekly meetings of the Band have been discontinued for the present—it being thought best by those having it in charge, to hold a meeting the first Wednesday in every month.

At The Netherwood.

A gay party of Plainfielders took possession of the Hotel Netherwood, Saturday evening, and with bowling, dancing and a late supper, passed the hours until Sunday morning in a very satisfactory manner. So entirely pleasing was the affair that the same party, with a few additional favored ones, intend a repetition of the same programme, Thanksgiving eve. There were Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Barnes, the Misses Pinkerton, Ranney, Anthony, Hickling and Demarest, and Messrs Everitt and Ross.

The Registration Law.

The Rahway Democrat forestalls us in recommending the repeal of the Registry law, as it now affects our city. It is an unnecessary expense to the tax payers, and is apt to disfranchise a man of his vote, because he forgets to register his name. The Democrat says:

"The first bill to be introduced in the next Legislature by Dr. Hough should be an act to repeal the unnecessary and expensive registration law for cities like Rahway and Plainfield. It has cost each city $400 or $500 this year. We believe any registration law is unconstitutional. The constitution provides what shall be required to constitute a voter, and we don't believe any law can disfranchise a voter under the constitution."

Good News for Next Summer.

Probably as enterprising a project as this city has witnessed in some time, has recently been achieved by the building of a beautiful lake of about two acres on the property of John I. Holly, Esq., near Avon Park. The spot selected was one fed with continuously running springs of perfectly pure water, and a lease of the premises was secured by Councilman John Ross of La Grande avenue. A large dam was erected, and the waters retained thereby in a beautiful lake as clear as crystal. Upon its edge has already been constructed an ice-house capable of holding 1500 tons, and additional buildings with a total capacity of of 4,000 tons, will follow. It is the intention of Mr. Ross to supply ice during the next summer purer in quality than ever before and at one-half the present price.

Mayor Manson's Opinion.

From last week's Central Times we learn that following the temperance address delivered by Mr. Aaron M. Powell, before Howell Division Sons of Temperance, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 13th.

"Mayor Manson was called upon, and he made a short address in which he denounced the saloons as the great curse of the country which ought to be stamped ought."

Gone But Not Forgotten.

Mr. Joel Manning and family, residing just outside the city on the road to New Brooklyn, left their home last Sunday evening to make a call on a brother of Mr. Manning's, living in Plainfield. Upon their return the absence was discovered of a servant girl, lately employed by the family, and with her had disappeared about $400 in cash and a valuable seal skin sack belonging to Miss Manning. No trace of the missing girl nor the missing property, has yet been discovered.

What Makes a Majority.

In reference to the question as to what constituted a majority. Webster in his dictionary says: "In election he has a plurality who has more votes than any other candidate; he has a majority who has more than half the votes given for all candidates." A bet on a majority would then probably be won when the successful candidate has more than half the votes given for all the candidates; but it is generally understood to be the number that the leading candidate has over the next one.

Declared Elected.

The State Board of Canvassers, consisting of Gov. Ludlow and Senators Smith, Schenck, Carpenter and Merritt, with Deputy Secretary of State Hall as clerk, met at the State Capitol, Trenton, Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and canvassed the vote for Governor cast at the recent election. There were 208,016 votes cast in the State, of which Mr. Abbett (Dem.) received 103,856 and Judge Dixon (Rep.) 97,047. Urner (Grbk.) had 2,960, and Parsons, the Prohibition candidate 4,153. Abbett's plurality is, therefore, 6,809. The board declared him elected Governor for three years from Jan. 1884.

Personalia.

John Ball, Esq., of Somerville, father of Mrs. James S. Vosseller, died on Saturday morning last.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Holly are at their Lexington avenue residence, New York city, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith are the naturally happy parents of another boy. May he live long and prosper.

Miss Ranney, daughter of Henry C. Ranney, Esq., of Cleveland, Ohio, is visiting Mrs. M. D. Barnes of LaGrande ave.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. David D. Smalley deeply sympathise with them in their great loss by the death of their youngest daughter, Tuesday last.

Serious Accident.

Mr. George Demeza, proprietor of the kindling wood factory on Somerset street, met with a serious accident at his establishment on Saturday last. He was engaged in sawing a piece of cord wood with a circular saw, which striking a knot turned the piece of wood over on the saw. Mr. Demeza's right hand came in contact with the teeth, and a deep cut was made between the second and third fingers, extending to the middle of the back of the hand. Medical assistance was speedily obtained, and the wound closed up. There are hopes that the hand may be saved to be hereafter useful, although at present it is difficult to tell the exact nature of the injury received. Mr. Demeza has the sympathy of a great many friends in his affliction.

Highway Robbery.

A well-known visitor at many houses in this city and the surrounding country, is Mr. Peter Collins, of Plainfield avenue, who has built up a large trade in coffees and teas which he delivers to a large list of customers. Last Thursday evening at about 10:30 o'clock, while driving along the road between Ten Mile Run and Keyport, his horses were stopped by three burly men who demanded his money or his life. Almost before he could realize the situation, Collins was seized and a revolver and $169 in money was taken from his person. After subsequently helping themselves to some packages of tea and coffee, the highwaymen disappeared as silently as they had appeared, in the darkness. Peter has sworn off traveling at night.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Bible study at 8 o'clock Saturday evening. Subject "The wine from water," Jno. 2:1-11. Every young man in Plainfield may consider himself invited to attend.

Special efforts are being made to make the "praise and promise meeting to be held on Monday night, of great interest. The singing will be under the charge of an efficient leader—Mr. H. O. Newman will have charge. All young men are requested to attend.

The reception held Tuesday evening was a marked success and well attended. Much credit is due the ladies who used their efforts to make the evening one of especial interest. The next monthly reception will be held Tuesday evening Dec. 25th. All young men are invited.

Democratic Primaries.

The Democrats of the First Ward held their primary meeting last Monday evening to nominate two candidates for Council, other minor city officers, and to elect delegates to attend the city convention to be held next Saturday evening. The following named gentlemen were nominated:

Councilmen—Tell A. Beguelin, John Simpson.
Justices—Louis F. Wadesworth, Andrew Love, Jr.
Constables—Samuel F. Randolph, Thos. Callahan.
Judge of Election—Vincent L. Franze.
Inspector—L. F. Wadesworth.
Clerk—Walter L. Hetfield.
Delegates to City Convention—Vincent L. Franze, John Rafferty, Andrew Love, Jr., Thomas Callahan, E. P. Thorn, Louis F. Wadesworth.

The Democrats of the Second Ward held their primary Tuesday evening last, and placed in nomination the following named:

Council—Gilford Mayer, Jasper G. Cadmus.
Judge of Election—Richard Merritt.
Inspector—L. M. Stover.
Clerk—Charles McGinley.
Constable—W. S. Chase, Jr.
Justice of the Peace—C. S. A. Davis.
Delegates to City Convention—R. J. Livingston, J. E. Martine, J. G. Miller and G. Mayer.

Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey began its fiftieth annual session in Trenton Wednesday of last week. Grand Master Rockhill presided, and between three and four hundred members were present. Seventy-seven Junior Past Grands were welcomed and instructed in the Grand Lodge degree. A resolution to make the per capita twenty cents prevailed. At the evening session the Unwritten Work of the Order was exemplified by the Grand Representatives to the Sovereign Grand Lodge. After this addresses were made by John M. Jones, Grand Secretary and Grand Scribe of Maryland; also George Coburn, P. G., of Baltimore, and Theodore A. Ross, Grand Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. Despite the strong opposition manifested recently against the election of August Grassman, of Hoboken, as Grand Master, he was chosen to fill the position. William T. Brewer, of Camden, was elected Deputy Grand Master; George W. Hammell, of Trenton, Grand Warden; Lewis Parker, of Trenton, Grand Secretary; Julius L. Lamb, of Julietown, Grand Treasurer, and James S. Kiger, of Trenton, Grand Representative. There were three sessions of the Lodge, and another was held the next morning.

The Hyde Musicale.

On Thursday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hyde gave a most enjoyable musicale at their residence on E. Front street. The features of the evening were the quartette singing by the Misses Myers of Poughkeepsie, and the difficult duet playing by Messrs. Hyde and Evans. Mr. Dorsey Hyde also played several pretty airs on the guitar. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Wadesworth, the Misses Myers, Miss Knowland, Miss Clarkson, Miss Coles, Messrs. W. M. Stillman, Clark Evans, W. S. Humbert, E. R. Ackerman and Dr. Coles.

The Myers German.

Monday evening of last week a German was given at the residence of Mr. J. K. Myers, which was the most successful of any held thus far this year. The early part of the evening was devoted to general dancing, and about ten o'clock the German was begun. It was led by Mr. W. H. Cooper of New York, and Miss Knowland of this city. At 12 o'clock refreshments were served, and dancing was continued until considerably later. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, the Misses Myers of Poughkeepsie, Miss Knowland, Miss Florence White, the Misses Marsh, Miss Roome, Miss Miller, Messrs. W. H. Cooper, D. M. White, Alex. Hudnut, W. S. Humbert and L. Harberger.

Governor Randolph's Ancestors.

J. S. Randolph, of Bound Brook, says the late ex-Governor Randolph descended from Elizabeth Blossom and Edward Fitz Randolph. Elizabeth Blossom was one of the 107 who landed at Plymouth in 1620. Edward Fitz Randolph came in 1630. They were married at Barnestable, Mass., May 10th, 1646. About 1666 they removed to and settled in Piscataway, Middlesex county, N. J., two miles east of New Brunswick. They had eight children. From them descended the New England and Northern Randolphs. William, son of Robert and brother of Thomas, the poet, emigrated to Virginia in 1660, thirty years later than Edward came to Plymouth. From him descended the Southern Randolphs, who inter-married in the families of the Jeffersons, the Rowlands, the Pleasants, the descendants of Pocahontas, etc. Both of the Randolphs came from Nottingham, England.

At The Union Club.

The parlors, reception room and halls of the Union Club House on Broadway, were crowded with a most brilliant gathering from Plainfield's upper circles, during Thursday evening of last week, the occasion being one of the Club's invitation receptions. The Hatton Quartette, that had before appeared at a similar affair, began the evening's entertainment with a rather conventional rendition of a well selected programme of solos and part songs. The opening number was an unfortunate choice—having been sung in this city the week previous so acceptably by the Dudley Buck quartet, comparison cast no creditable reflection on the Hattons. Messrs Barnes, tenor, and Church, bass, were the soloists, the latter doing rather better work than the former whose efforts was too apparent. Dancing and refreshments followed, and terminated a very gratifying evening.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. West, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Moses D. Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Bowers. Also Mrs. M. W. Tyler, Mrs. Joseph W. Yates, and the Misses Acly, Cock, Schipper and Murray; the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond and Messrs Dumont, Chapman, Clark, Goddard, Potts, Tracy, Erickson, Whiton, Fleming, Murray and Moore.

A Fighting Editor.

John Cheeseman, editor and proprietor of the Patriot, the leading Democratic weekly newspaper of Cumberland county, was shot Friday last by J. L. Van Syckle, a Democratic politician. After being shot, Cheeseman grabbed Van Syckle by the throat, bore him to the floor, and beat his face to a pulp. Cheeseman is not seriously wounded. Van Syckle is not expected to survive. Cheeseman has published a paper in Bridgeton for many years, and many of his utterances have been personal and aggressive. The two men have been acquainted for a long time, and it is only recently there has been any ill feeling between them. Tuesday of last week the Patriot contained an attack on Van Syckle. The latter promptly armed himself with a cowhide and a revolver and went to Cheeseman's office. Van Syckle first attempted to cowhide Cheeseman, who is a man of twice the physical power of his opponent. Cheeseman only laughed at Van Syckle, who then threw away his whip, and drawing a small pistol fired, the bullet passing through Cheeseman's coat sleeve, and striking him in the breast ten inches above the heart. Cheeseman then sprung upon VanSyckle, and bearing him to the floor, beat him terribly. Cheeseman afterward made the remark that he thought he was fatally wounded, and he meant to kill Van Syckle if his strength lasted. The affair has created the greatest excitement in the town and county, where both men are well known.

Suspension of the Rahway Bank.

Rahway was aroused from its quiet on Thursday of last week by the rumor spreading abroad that its national bank had failed, and that the depositors were to be deprived of their money until the authorities should deem it advisable to make settlements; but when the first of a long line of depositors appeared at the paying teller's window in the morning he was informed, not that there had been a failure, but that the refusal to cash checks meant simply a suspension. For a number of years the bank has been controlled by a family named Shotwell, and at present the father, Abram F. Shotwell, is president and a member of the board of four directors, and the son, Townsend Shotwell, is the cashier. The two men are the working officers of the institution.

Last Friday week, bank examiner Shelly of Rochester, N. Y., called at the bank and made an investigation. Of the result of the examination he did not inform the bank officials. On Tuesday last, Cashier Shotwell noticed that the depositors in drawing checks were a trifle more eager than usual to get their money and drew for large amounts. On Wednesday morning a number of German depositors whose deposits were in sums ranging from $10 to $100 came in crowds and demanded their money. The bank had in its vaults between $30,000 and $40,000 in cash and the cashier paid out over $20,000 of this, much to the satisfaction of the Germans. When demands were made Friday, however, the bank authorities gave notice that they would suspend payment for a time. Although there were crowds about the bank throughout the day, there was little excitement manifested.

The institution is an old one, having been founded as the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, in 1820, and reorganized in 1865 as a Federal bank, with $60,000 of its $100,000 capital deposited in bonds in the National Treasury.

The officers and directors of the bank are as follows: President, Abram S. Shotwell; Cashier, Townsend Shotwell; Directors, A. S. Shotwell, Lines High, Mayor of Rahway, State Senator Vail and C. H. Oliver.

Crescent Avenue Supplies.

The pulpit of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian Church will be supplied during the month of December as follows: December 2d, Rev. A. H. Bradford, Congregational Church, Montclair, N. J.; December 9th, Rev. Henry M. Booth, D. D., Presbyterian Church, Englewood, N. J.; December 16th, Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, Trinity Reformed Church, Plainfield; December 23d, Rev. James A. Worden, D.D., Sec'y of S. S. Work of Presbyterian Church; Dec. 30, Rev. A. H. Burlingham, D.D., Sec'y of Mission Work of Baptist Church. Services at 10:30 A. M. and 7:45 P. M. Rev. W. W. Moffett, who preached on Sunday, November 11th, is expected to supply the pulpit on January 13th.

Honors to Plainfielders.

The following, taken from the Evening News, of Moorhead, Minn., evidences that the party honored is a favorite in that portion of the Western country. Miss Cadmus is the daughter of Mr. Abraham L. Cadmus, of this city, while Mrs. Shotwell is granddaughter of Freeholder Andrew Vanderbeek. Mr. Shotwell is a son of Edmond Shotwell, ex Councilman of this city.

FAREWELL.

Light, as though illuminated by the smiles of the gods were the hearts of a pleasant company of guests who had been invited to partake of the delightful hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Shotwell, at their beautiful Island Park home last evening to bid farewell to Miss Emma Cadmus, who has been their guest for some months past and who leaves for her home in Plainfield, New Jersey, soon. Music was the order of the evening, and the care and attention of the lovely hostess was amply rewarded by its being made one of the most intensely pleasant occasions which mortals are permitted to enjoy. The only shade of sorrow was produced by the thought of the good bye that must be said to the beautiful young lady who is soon to leave, and who has grown into the hearts of her many friends here that the parting must be sad; but even this, though, was swallowed up in the general animation of the scene. Mrs. A. A. White, of Moorhead, charmed the company with difficult and beautiful songs; and what made them even more enjoyable was the fact that it was her first experience as a soloist. Miss Belle Hendricks and Mrs. Shotwell also favored the company with vocal selections, as did Mr. Deayer, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Hague and Miss Stella Shotwell, the five-year-old prima donna, captivated the hearts of all, with her sweet voice and pretty songs. Miss Cadmus performed instrumental selections in a manner which made it almost impossible to keep sympathetic feet still, so strong was the temptation to dance. The refreshments were delicious, and indicated, as did every other detail of the affair, perfection in the art of entertaining, in which Mr. and Mrs. Shotwell have no superiors. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. White, of Moorhead, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Shotwell, Rev. C. F. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Clement, Mrs. W. A. Kindred, Miss Platt, and Miss Mittie Platt, Miss Belle Hendricks, of Moorhead, Miss Thomson, Mr. Follett, Mr. Thomson, Mr. Hague, Mr. Deayer and C. E. Foote. It was nearly midnight when the good-byes were regretfully said, and the guests departed, conscious that such superlative pleasure as that enjoyed during the evening just passed was rarely within their reach.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

TUESDAY EVENING, Nov. 27th.

The Council met in adjourned meeting. Present—Pres. Livingston and Messrs. Beguelin, Gardner, Ross, Serrell, Jones, J. Simpson, Marsh, Coriell—9.

Absent—Messrs. Polak, R. Simpson—2.

On motion the reading of the minutes was dispensed with and the order of business suspended.

Mr. Marsh presented the petition of residents on and in the vicinity of Arlington avenue, for four street lamps.

On motion referred to the Lamps Com., with power to locate three lamps.

The President presented a communication from His Honor, the Mayor, calling attention to a case of malignant scarlet fever now in the Children's Home, and suggesting that the city appropriate three dollars a week towards the expense of the treatment of the patient at the Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mr. Beguelin moved the reference of the matter to the Alms Com., with power, providing it was found to be the case of a resident of the city. Carried, all aye.

The following claims were presented and ref'd to proper Com's: P. Hoagland, $20; J. B. Miller, 20; Runyon & Leonard, 24.45; F. A. Dunham, 8; C. A. Marsh, 39.05; E. S. Atwater, 18.20; C. Petersen 12; Ford & Stiles, 15; Jos. Newman, 4.50; Muhlenberg Hospital, 28.71, and 42.14.

Mr. Beguelin, from Alms Com., reported the following as correct: Plainfield Relief Asso., $58.25; A. M. Runyon & Son, 28; J. O. Nodyne, 57.05; Mrs. K. Hartpence, 24; Jos. Newman, 4.50; M. Bird, 12.08; Mrs. S. Vermeule, 10; W. S. Vroom 5. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

A recess of ten minutes was here taken.

Upon reassembling Mr. Serrell stated that the proceedings in the Clark matter and the obtaining of the moneys due, were progressing. "Something definite" was promised by the next meeting of the Council. Also that in the suit against the city by the county, that the Court had reserved its decision. Report received and accepted.

The same also stated that some time ago an assessment of $24.20 was made on a piece of property at Richmond street and Front, and the present owner desired to pay the same but without interest. On motion, the matter was ref'd to Finance Com., to consult with the Corporation Counsel, and with power to settle.

Mr. Marsh presented a resolution requesting the Police Com. to consult with the Mayor to discover what action could be taken to enforce the laws and protect the city from the tramp. Adopted.

On motion the Alms Com. was requested to confer with the Corporation Counsel and report at the next meeting on the petition of the Children's Home for an appropriation of funds for its use.

Mr. J. Simpson, from the Aud. Com., reported as correct the claims on the Poor Fund in its hands; for which warrants were ordered drawn in settlement.

On motion the Council adjourned.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

William Barnes shot a yellow rabbit near Jamesburg, a few days ago.

J. K. Switchback and J. L. Toothpick are the names of Keyport's champion shots.

A white crow was seen on the road from Mount Holly to Smithville last Sunday by Joel Rossell. It was in a flock of black crows and they were fighting it.

Gloucester county farmers are beginning to protest against Philadelphia gunners, and a co-operative movement is in progress for the purpose of stopping the fall invasion.

The parties who were accused of aiding one Silk in taking black bass from Greenwood Lake, in an illegal manner, have been discharged, as the evidence failed to criminate them.

In some parts of Salem county the farmers set apart one day in the season on which they have their annual rabbit hunt. Gunners are not allowed on their lands on any other day, and consequently game is not as scarce as in some parts of the country.

The remarkable time of a mile in 2:08¾ was trotted by the bay gelding, Frank, with a running mate, at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds, Thursday. The best previous time, 2:10½, was made by Maud S. without a running mate. Frank's time is the best on record.

Persons who desecrate the Sabbath day by gunning should read the following extract from the game law of this State: "There shall be no shooting, hunting or trapping on the first day of the week called Sunday; and any person offending against the provisions of this act shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $25 or less than $5; or be imprisoned in the county jail where the offense was committed not less than ten days, nor more than twenty-five days for each offense."

A TRAMP ON COLD WEATHER SIGNS.

It having occurred to us that, if the groundhog, woodchuck, muskrat, wild goose, and others of the furry and feathered tribe know so much about the signs of Winter, the experienced tramp, who lives mostly out-doors, ought to have some ideas worth recording on the question, a representative tackled one, who said he was just in by the overland route from Kalamazoo, in the far Northwest, when the following dialogue ensued:

"You seem to have a wry face. Is the frost on the wry?"

"I should say so! Why, the ground is going to freeze four feet deep this winter."

"How so?"

"It has frozen down to the turnips in the field and the potatoes in hills already."

"Encroaching on your commissary department, eh?"

"Yes, and on my lodgings, too. Haystacks, sir, are getting mighty cool resorts, and have airy ways I have never experienced before this season."

"You will have to eat ice for hunger and walk for warmth, then."

"But there it is again—the walking is promising bad with railroad ties already a-humping themselves."

"Bad outlook."

"True it is, sir; and I can tell you if folks don't stop burning up scraps from the table, quit putting barrels under lock and key, and cease the pernicious practice of weather-stripping doors and windows, so that no heat can get out, they'll rue it."

"In what way?"

"Blest if there'll be a single tramp left in the whole country before Spring; then what'll they do with the old clothes nobody else won't wear?"

And he stepped over to a friendly peddler's wagon and got the privilege of taking a banana peel for breakfast, which otherwise, as he afterwards said, might be thrown under the feet of men, be trodden on, and break someone's neck.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries." The reference to the wide resources in art and letters, commanded by ST. NICHOLAS was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

"H. H.,"
E. S. Brooks,
C. P. Cranch,
Celia Thaxter,
Joaquin Miller,
Louisa M. Alcott,
Julian Hawthorne,
Mary Mapes Dodge,
Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,
Charles Dudley Warner,
Rose Hawthorne Lathrop,
Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka,
Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Susan Fenimore Cooper,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps,
Captain Mayne Reid,
Maurice Thompson,
Frank R. Stockton,
J. T. Trowbridge,
John G. Whittier,
George W. Cable,
W. O. Stoddard,
C. G. Leland,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of ST. NICHOLAS is for the boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

"A LIBERAL EDUCATION"

The price is $3.00 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express-order, bank check, draft or in registered letter.

1884!

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Magazine begins its sixty-eighth volume with the December Number. It is the most popular illustrated periodical in America and England, always fully abreast of the times in its treatment of subjects of current social and industrial interest, and always advancing its standard of literary, artistic, and mechanical excellence. Among its attractions for 1884 are: a new serial novel by WILLIAM BLACK, illustrated by ABBEY; a new novel by E. P. ROE, illustrated by GIBSON and DIELMAN; descriptive illustrated papers by GEORGE H. BOUGHTON, FRANK D. MILLET, C. H. FARNHAM and others; important historical and biographical papers; short stories by W. D. HOWELLS, CHARLES READE, &c.

DROWNED IN BEER.

Concerning this Popular Beverage Two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is, sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your cell-famed correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphor. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, N. Y.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear or consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. $1 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D. 1883.

At two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that certain piece, tract and plot of land and premises, with the improvements thereon, situate in the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, particularly bounded and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point where the southerly side of Park avenue, in Plainfield, is intersected by the north-westerly side of Eighth street; thence along the said northwesterly side of Eighth street south forty eight degrees sixteen minutes west one hundred and eighty three (183) feet more or less to a point in the middle of Dunham street, as delineated on map entitled, "Map of building lots in Plainfield, N. J.," owned by T. S. Stillman and others, and on file in the Register's office of the county of Essex; thence along the center line of said Dunham street north forty one degrees fifty minutes west, five hundred (500) feet to the southeasterly side of Seventh street; thence northeasterly along the southeasterly side of Seventh street one hundred and eight (108) more or less to the south-west corner of Ann L. Spencer's land; thence along the line of her land south fifty-one degrees fifty-seven minutes east, three hundred and sixty-two (362) feet more or less to a stone in a corner of said Spencer's land; thence still along her line north forty degrees thirty-eight minutes east three feet and a tenth of a foot (3 1-10 ft) to the southerly side of Park avenue; thence along the said southerly side of Park avenue, south forty-five degrees twenty-six minutes, east one hundred and forty-four feet and sixty nine one hundredths of a foot (144 69-100 ft.) more or less to the point of beginning, together with Evan Jones' right and title in the land adjoining said plot to the middle of Seventh street, Eighth street and Park avenue.

Also, all those certain lots of land and premises situate in Plainfield aforesaid, which on a map entitled, "map of villa sites belonging to Evan Jones, Plainfield, N. J.," are known and designated as lots numbered one (1) two (2) three (3) twenty-two (22), and part of twenty-three (23) in block numbered five (5) as laid down on said map which taken together are particularly bounded as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the easterly line of Carlton avenue, with the northerly line of Putnam street; thence running northerly along the said line of Carlton avenue two hundred and fifty (250) feet; thence easterly parallel with Putnam street three hundred and seventy-five (375) feet to the westerly line of Kensington avenue; thence southerly along the said line of Kensington avenue seventy-five (75) feet; thence westerly parallel with Putnam street one hundred (100) feet; thence southerly parallel with Kensington avenue one hundred and seventy-five (175) feet to the northerly line of Putnam street; thence westerly along the said line of Putnam street two hundred and seventy-five (275) feet to Carlton avenue, the point of beginning.

Together with the land in front of said plot to the middle of the streets adjoining the same.

Also, all those sixteen lots which on said last named map are known and designated as lots numbered five (5), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12) thirteen (13), fourteen (14), fifteen (15), sixteen (16), seventeen (17), eighteen (18), nineteen (19) and twenty (20), in block numbered five (5), as laid down on said map, bounded northwesterly by La Grand avenue; easterly by Kensington avenue; southeasterly by lots four and twenty-one, and westerly by Carlton avenue.

Together with the land to the center of said avenue, where they adjoin said lots and plots.

Also, lots numbered one (1) to eighteen (18), inclusive, in block numbered one (1), as laid down on said last named map, which lots taken together form a plot bounded on the north by Putnam street; on the east by Carlton ave.; on the south by Broadway; and on the west by Tenth street.

Together with the land adjoining said block to the center of said street and avenue bounding said block.

Also, all that plot of land situate in Plainfield, and which on said last named map is laid down and designated as block numbered four (4), as shown on said map; except such part thereof as heretofore conveyed to the New Jersey Land Improvement Company. Said block is bounded northerly in part by La Grand avenue and in part by land conveyed as aforesaid; easterly by Carlton avenue, southerly by Putnam street and westerly by Tenth street.

Together with the land adjoining the same to the middle of the said avenue and streets bounding the same.

Also, all those twenty-one lots in Plainfield, to wit: Lots one (1) to twenty-one (21) both inclusive in block six (6) as designated on said last named map, entitled "map of villa sites," etc., as aforesaid.

Together with the land to the middle of the streets adjoining said lots, excepting thereout so much of lots one (1), two (2) and (3), as heretofore altered and conveyed by Evan Jones.

Also, lots numbered three (3), four (4), five (5) six (6) and seven (7), in block numbered nine (9) as laid down and designated on said last named map.

Together with the land adjoining said lots to the middle of Berckman street.

Also, all that irregular piece of land in Plainfield described as follows: Beginning at the easterly corner of lot eighteen (18), in block six (6), as laid down on said last-named map and in the westerly line of Berckman street; thence southerly along the easterly boundary of lots 18, 19, 20 and 21 in said block 6, three hundred and forty seven feet and thirty-nine one hundredths of a foot (347 39-100 ft.); thence easterly in continuation of the southerly line of said lot 21 seventy-six feet and nine-tenths of a foot (76 9-10 ft.) to the southeast corner of E. Jones' land; thence northerly along his line one hundred and forty-five feet and four-tenths of a foot (145 4-10 ft.) to a corner; thence north forty-four degrees fifteen minutes east along said Jones' line to the westerly line of Berckman street; thence northwesterly along said westerly line of Berckman street to the point or place of beginning.

Together with the land adjoining the north-east to the middle of Berckman street.

Also, all those lots which on said last-named map, are designated as lots number two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11) and twelve (12), in block numbered ten (10) as laid down on said map, and so much of lot numbered one (1) in said block ten (10) as not conveyed by Evan Jones.

Together with the land adjacent to said lots and part of a lot to the center of the street adjoining said lots.

Also all that certain tract of land and premises in Plainfield aforesaid, which on said last named map, entitled "Map of villa sites," &c., aforesaid, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly line of Putnam street, with the westerly line of Tenth street; thence running (1) southerly along Tenth street to the middle of Broadway, as laid down on said map; thence (2) westerly along the center line of Broadway seventy seven feet and six-tenths of a foot (77 6-10 ft.) to the line of lands of the estate of Vail; thence (3) northerly along the line of lands of the estate of Vail, on a course north two degrees, eleven minutes east two hundred and thirty-three (233) feet to a corner; thence (4) north thirteen degrees fifty-six minutes east and still along the line of lands of the estate of Vail, three hundred and seventy-six feet and sixty-one one hundredths of a foot (376 61-100 ft.) to Putnam street; thence (5) easterly along Putnam street, two hundred and twenty-five (225) feet more or less to the place of beginning.

Together with the land adjacent to Tenth and Putnam streets to the center of said street.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.—To the Vineland National Bank of Vineland:—By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Robert A. Reed is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, and plead, demur or answer to the complainant's bill on, or before the second day of January next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you. The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Eliza Barton to Robert A. Reed, dated June 1st, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, on lands in the city of Elizabeth, and you are made defendants, because you recovered a judgment against Charles W. Barton, in the Union County Circuit Court and therefore claim to have some lien on said mortgaged premises.

POETRY.

SELECTED.

Long ago in stately Rome,
Where the weary Pilgrims come,
Stood a stair case steep and high,
Leading upward to the sky;
"Pilate's stair-case" it was named,
And its virtues all proclaimed,
For the story all received,
By both rich and poor believed,
Was that it had come to them,
From far away Jerusalem,
By a miracle transported,
To the place where all resorted.
Up these steep and weary stairs,
Muttering oft-repeated prayers,
Climbing slowly on his knees,
Scaring thus his soul to ease,
Toiled a Monk with downcast face,
Much he longed for light and grace.
Oh! to reach the topmost stair,
For his load of guilt and care,
Hoped then would roll away;
Thus he hoped his debt to pay!
All was dark his heart within,
And the burden of his sin
Weighed like lead upon his soul,
As he slowly neared the goal,
Hark! A sound the stillness broke
As a voice in thunder spoke
In the word of God it saith:
Lo! the just shall live by faith.
Starting to his feet in shame,
Conscious as though called by name,
Feeling his vain penance ended,
Swift the Saxon Monk descended,
And those words divine and dear
Ever ringing in his ear,
Urged him on, until at length
Martin Luther in his strength,
Standing firm on holy ground,
Freed the souls in fetters bound.
Words of light and consolation
Key note of the reformation.
Centuries have passed away,
Yet we hail with joy the day,
Hail the great Reformer's birth,
Sent by God to bless the earth;
Let us also still abide
In the truth which was his guide.
Not by deeds which we have done
Are our souls redeemed from death
God receives us through his Son.
We are saved alone by faith.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A STRANGE CONFESSION.

At last they have given me pen, ink and paper. At last I can write out my story and send it forth into the world—the world that shall judge me, and whose judgment I do not fear.

I glanced up just now from my busy writing. What did I see? A room scrupulously clean and neat, with two or three good pictures on the walls, and containing some few handsome articles of furniture. But there is something odd—something wanting. What is it?

Oh, I see! There is not a piece of china, a piece of glass, a single article of bric-a-brac which lends to any apartment that graceful air of living. And why? Because china might be broken, and sharp edges cut. Glass also is dangerous. It severs arteries. They do not even leave me an ivory paper knife to cut the leaves of the magazines, which lie uncut upon my table.

The view from my two windows is on a large and noble park, but I turn from it shuddering. Ah, it is cruel! cruel! Between me and it is grated iron. Yet I have committed no crime. I am not in a prison, though a prisoner.

Perhaps you have guessed the secret I am about to tell you. I am in a madhouse, and they call me mad. I had to lay down my pen here and laugh. How strangely my laugh sounds in this quiet room.

But let me tell you why they brought me here. Three years ago my beautiful Italian mother died. You see it is her foreign blood in my veins which makes me so unlike those cold people, who, because they cannot understand me, say that I am mad.

I look like her, too. My eyes are large and dark; my hair, which, unbound, falls to my feet, is black as midnight. My lips are red, and through them my white teeth fairly glisten. My figure is tall and willowy, and slight.

I was eighteen when my uncle, my father's brother, brought me to his home. He had but one daughter, a year younger than myself. She was still at school. It was her finishing year. Would that she had never lived. Would that I had never seen her fair, false face! I should have been Donald's wife then and now. But I have not told you of Donald.

He was my uncle's partner. Though a very young man for so important a position, his services had been so valuable to the firm that they had won him this recognition of them. To my uncle he was almost a son.

Indeed, always I think it has been his cherished hope that one day he would sustain to him this relation; but be this as it may, he was constantly at our house.

I shall never forget the first day I saw Donald Craig. I loved him then; I love him now. I shall love him in my grave. I was sitting alone in the library, gazing dreamily into the fire, when he and uncle Frank entered together.

'Lola, dear,' said my uncle, 'Mr. Craig dines with us to-day. Let me present him to you.'

I lifted my eyes then from the fire to his face—the face which haunts me now—the face, with its wonderful eyes and wonderful smile. He came forward and held out his hand with a frank, cordial grace which belonged so peculiarly to him. I saw his glance rest on me.

The blood mounted to his temples. I knew that he was amazed at my beauty, and for the first time in my life I gloried in its possession. Heretofore I had known no gratitude for its fatal gift; now I could have thanked God that I was as I was.

We went to dinner later, but I could eat nothing, nor did I converse much. He talked and I listened; but after dinner, of my own accord, I went over to the piano, opened it, and sat down. First I let my fingers wander over the keys, then I struck a prelude and began to sing.

The two men ceased talking. I saw the amazed look in my uncle's eyes. I had told him nothing of my wonderful voice—the voice over which the great masters had raved and well nigh wept, because I had money in abundance, and needed not with it coin gold from the public; but I was not singing to him—I was singing to Donald.

Before my song was finished he had risen and crossed to my side. I knew that he would; I knew that I had begun to exercise my power—the power which I made oath to myself should usurp his life.

No one spoke when I finished; no one said anything for an hour, when I rose from the piano. Then my uncle kissed me, and I fancied I felt a tear fall on my face.

Donald drew a long sigh, as of one surfeited with ecstacy. I talked with him then. Uncle Frank left us alone together, and I told him of my life abroad—of my mother, whom I had left sleeping in my native land—of myself, and the air here which chill'ed me.

'You think, then, that we have no heart, no warmth?' he said.

'I do not stop to ask the question,' I answered. 'I only know that I shiver and am cold.'

'Poor child! poor little girl!' he murmured tenderly.

He came very often after that evening. Oh, how I looked forward to his visits! how I hungered for his presence! how I thirsted for his voice! Yet I knew he did not love me. I fascinated him, I bewildered him, but I could not touch his heart.

To every sense I appealed except the sense of loving. In vain I strove to disguise the truth from myself. It was always before me. Yet he could not stay away from me. There were times when he made the effort. He always failed, and I could see his anger at his failure.

No matter where he was, what he was doing, I could wish and will him to my side. Of this secret control he had no idea; but all the same it fretted and galled him.

So the months flitted by, until the summer came, and brought with it, with its sunshine and its birds, of which she seemed so fitting a part, the return of my cousin to her home.

I was, as I have said, but a year her senior, but she seemed to be a veritable child—a doll, a plaything. She was like a lovely, unfolded bud, in her pink-and-white loveliness, for she was pretty, with her laughing blue eyes and hair of molten gold.

Oh, how I should have liked to have twisted one of its glittering strands about her slender throat, until—

But what am I writing? To you this may sound like madness. You do not yet know any provocation.

Of course we had met before—she had been home from time to time on her holidays; but then I had seen nothing, suspected nothing. It remained for the long summer days and moonlight nights to reveal to me the truth—Donald loved her. Yes, my uncle's dream bade fair to be fulfilled. Should it? To my own heart, I swore never!

Day by day I saw it coming, the terrible wave of desolation, which would soon sweep over me—day by day, with all my feeble strength I fought it back. Sometimes I had my moments of triumph—sometimes I exercised over him my old, fatal fascination, when she was utterly powerless.

One evening she was ill, confined to her home with a severe nervous headache. He came as usual, and, when told he could not see her, was about to leave.

'Will you not stay?' I said.

'I think not,' he said.

But when he stopped for a few moments' conversation with my uncle, I crossed to the piano and began to sing.

In ten minutes he was by my side. I burst into an impassioned love song—my heart's misery and longing found vent. I let the last notes die in a sob, then I arose and slipped my hand through his arm.

'Take me into the air,' I whispered. 'I am stifling.'

Together we crossed to the window opening upon the verandah; but, as he walked, he staggered like a man intoxicated.

The moon was at its full. Its rays fell upon our faces. It revealed the ghastly pallor of his; I, too, was pale.

'Donald,' I whispered.

'Hush!' he said. 'You are a witch,' and turned to leave me.

But I clung with both hands to his arm.

'Donald,' I cried, again. 'If I were a witch I could make you love me. Look at me. Am I hideous in your sight?'

His glance then rested on me, and his eyes deepened and grew dark. I was dressed in purest white, a crimson rose at my throat, a great mass of them at my belt.

What was this child's prettiness compared to my beauty? He saw, he recognized it. I drew a step nearer. His breath came short and quick. The color rushed to his face.

'Donald,' I said, again—but now my voice had sunk to a whisper, so low that even the night winds failed to catch it—'kiss me, just once.'

This time he did not start away. My words enthralled him. He bent his handsome head. In another moment his lips would have touched mine, when a little hand swept away the curtains from the window.

Pale and wondering, Rita looked out at us from the shadows of the room. In an instant Donald had sprung to her side. I had forever lost him. Neither missed me as I passed in and away from them, though I heard her say:

'I felt better, and there was something so strange about Lola's song it startled me, and I came down to see.'

Before she slept that night, she knocked at my door.

'I want to tell you how happy I am,' she whispered, as she kissed me. 'To-night, Donald asked me to be his wife—to-night; yet only a while ago, as I stood in the window, Lola, and saw you both together, I was almost jealous; but I never shall be jealous again, Donald says. It is so strange, too. He is so eager for our marriage. He begs that it may take place almost at once. He is going abroad, he says, and wants to take me with him.'

I don't know how I answered her; but at last she left me alone. My blood, like molten lead, coursed through my veins. The days that followed were days of torture. Everything was hurried preparation for the wedding.

I laughed as I watched it all. I alone knew that it should never take place. I did not even longer strive to exercise my power him. I fancied sometimes that people watched me strangely, but I was very guarded. Only, in my own room, I talked and told it over in whispers to myself.

Well, it was the night before the wedding. I had said 'Good-night,' and gone early to my room. It opened into Rita's, with a communication door. When she came up stairs I pretended to be asleep, but she bent over and kissed me.

An hour after, I got up and crossed over to my table. There I took up a pretty little Venitian dagger—a toy which had belonged to my mother. I smiled as I felt it's sharp blade.

'It will not hurt,' I whispered; 'but she will sleep the sounder.'

Then I softly opened the door and entered her room. She lay on the bed asleep. One white, rounded arm was thrown above her head, and her lips were smiling. The lace at her throat was not whiter than her skin.

Why did I not strike at once? I do not know. Better—far better—if I had. I felt no pity, no remorse. Why should I? I should give her no pain.

I only stopped to look at her, and think how lovely she would be dressed in her coffin in her wedding dress. Yet I was far more lovely than my rival. My rival! Yes, that was the secret. It was for this she must die. He dared to scorn me and to love her.

Where was her heart? There, and there only, must I strike. Ah, I could see it beat. I raised my arm.

Another minute and it would have fallen but in that instant some one seized it from behind and wrenched the weapon from my grasp. I turned, to look into my uncle's white, stern face.

From that moment, and for long weeks and months, I remember nothing more. When I regained consciousness I found myself here, behind grated bars, and with human eyes always upon me.

Rita is married—married, they tell me, but I do not believe them. Some day Donald will give me love for love. Yet it was he who first called me mad—he who begged my uncle to sleep that night in Rita's room—begged it so earnestly that he could not refuse.

Ah, he did not know how I could love, when he turned from me to her! Cold and passionless, what can she teach him of the heart's true fire! One of these days he will come to claim his bride. Why should I try to take my life? He is coming. I am content to wait—yes, quite content, and so I smile and let them call me mad.

NEW JERSEY AND HER EDUCATION.

The following interesting statistics relative to the educational interests of this State are gleaned from the, as yet, uncomplete report of Prof. E. A. Apgar, State superintendent of public instruction: "The school age in New Jersey is between the years 5 and 18, and it is a strange thing when the census taker goes to a house to ascertain the number of persons between that age, to have the mistress of the house, the mother of the family, small though it be, declare that she, according to law, is still but a school girl. In that way a portion of the difference between the number of children and the average attendance at the Public Schools may be accounted for. The whole number of children within the school age—5 and 18 years—is 349,242; of which number but 211,905 are enrolled in the Public Schools, while the average attendance is but 119,513. Of those in attendance the length of time given to scholastic duty during the year varies considerably. 12,562 attended for ten months or over; 51,730 attended for eight months, but less than ten; 38,690 attended six months, but less than eight; 34,699 four months, but less than six, and the largest number, 74,214 less than four months. Considering that the average number of months during which the schools have been kept open during the year is nine months, this appears to be a large number to be credited with so small an attendance, if it were not that so many are employed in various positions, on farms, in factories or at domestic duties. Taking this into consideration, and the fact that the law as to apprentices only provides an attendance for three months, the showing is a good one indeed. There are also, as nearly as can be estimated, 48,707 attending private schools, while 90,074 attended no school at all. The total amount of apportionment, including the State School Tax and the 100,000 appropriation, is $1,475,599 20. The total apportionment for Township Tax is $24,855 72. The amount for surplus revenue $33,904.49. District Tax for teachers' salaries $74,560.39. For buildings, repairs, etc., $506,752 81. District School Taxes for all purposes $783,313 20. Making a total from all sources of $2,316,6?2 61. The report says: "The law changing the mode of ascertaining the amount of tax to be raised for school purposes, has now been in operation two years. During that time the average salary, per month, paid to male teachers has increased $10.05. The average yearly salary paid them has risen from $490 27 to $586 75, an increase of $96 48. The salaries paid to female teachers show a corresponding increase. The increase in average monthly salary is $2 16, and in the yearly salary $20 74. The average yearly salary paid them this year is $333 96, against an average of $313 26 paid two years ago. This makes a net gain to the teachers in the State of nearly $150,000. While this gratifying result has been reached, another of nearly equal importance has been obtained, viz.: releasing the districts from the necessity of raising such a large special tax. The amount raised by district tax for teachers' salaries and fuel bills the last year the old law was in force was $367,412 32. This year the amount is $247,560 39, a decrease of $92,851 93. The number of districts compelled to raise special tax this year for these purposes is 238 against 304 two years ago, a decrease of 66. Under the present law the tendency is towards increased salaries to teachers and a decrease in the amount raised by district tax for the current expenses of the schools; while under the old law the effect was exactly opposite. During the two years preceding the change in the law, the average salary per month, paid to male teachers, decreased $5 87; the average yearly salary falling from $546.62 to $490 29, a decrease of $56 35. The salaries paid to female teachers decreased in about the same proportion. The average salary per month paid to them decreased $1.10. The average yearly salary fell from $323.80 to $313.24, a decrease of $10.56. The net loss to teachers in the State during that period was about $80,000. The amount of district tax raised for teachers' salaries and fuel rose during the same period from $302,630 59 to $367,412 32, an increase of $64,781 85, and the number of districts raising this special tax from 246 to 304, an increase of 58.

ON NEWSPAPER LIBELS.

Chief Justice Durfee, of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, in a recent libel suit gave such a clear and just statement of the law relating to the rights of newspapers in the matter of discussing and criticising public officials that a portion of his opinion is well worth publishing:

"I think that a public newspaper has a right to comment upon and criticise the conduct of a public officer in the discharge of public duties. I think that if the publishers of a newspaper discover what they consider to be defects in the performance of public duties, they have the right to point them out. If a public officer is in fault, and there are facts which suggest fault on his part, I think that the public press has a right to criticise and censure him. If the publishers of newspapers have this freedom of comment, they must, of course, being fallible men, sometimes give utterance to criticisms which are unjust and unfair, and which wiser men, unexcited and calm, might not approve. But, gentlemen, if in the exercise of this freedom of comment they act fairly and honestly, and meaning to do what is right, they cannot be held accountable. To hold them to account because they made an error of that kind would be to shackle the public press. It is of great importance to the public that the newspapers should have this liberty. If public officers commit faults in the execution of their public duties, and there should be none to censure or to criticise, the faults would grow more and more intolerable, to the manifest peril of the public welfare, and therefore you can see that the public have a great interest in maintaining unshackled the right of the public press to freely criticise the acts of public officials."

WHAT SCHOOL GIRLS WEAR.

'What are the prevailing fashions for young ladies who attend school?' asked a Journalier of one of a dozen pretty Normal School girls yesterday.

'Take out your note book,' said she quickly, 'and I will tell you. You must excuse our bluntness, because we never met a real, live author before.

'Jerseys are the most fashionable bodices, and easy to do gymnastic exercises in.

'Velvet hats, trimmed with birds' wings and breasts, are the most popular, as rain takes the curl out of the ostrich tips.

'Jersey cloth gloves, coming far up on the arm, are nicest, because they are warmest and don't take you until the last bell strikes to take them off.

'Woolen stockings are the wisest, because they keep your feet warm and you don't get ten demerits from the algebra professor for standing on one foot.

'Long Havelock or ulster cloaks, with side pockets, are the most fashionable, you can keep candy in the pockets and the inkspots on the front of your dress won't show.

'Handkerchiefs with colored borders are the best, as they look pretty put in the belt.

'And wear all the natural flowers you can, because that shows you have a beau.'

AN OPEN WINTER.

As the mild winter days come and go, the old weather predictors express their sentiments as to the prospects of the coming winter. All sorts of conjectures are made, and illustrations given in regard to winter, all of our local astronomers come to one conclusion, however, and that is "we are going to have an open winter." Of course there will be days when six inches of ice will cover the ponds and brooks, and again other days will be warm enough to melt the ice. The muskrats have settled one predictor, and others have begun to weaken on his theory. According to tradition the muskrat commences early to build his house if a severe winter is at hand, but so far they have decided on a mild winter or either have forgotten or neglected to build. The astronomers have turned their gaze downward and have discovered that the ground hogs have not dug their burrows very deep, this they say is a sure sign of a mild winter. The best sign and the one that can be depended on is the fact that more slate is being sold for coal than for some years past. If it was to be a severe winter the dealers would raise the price and give less slate.

A hard winter has also been predicted, this the people will find out sooner or later. The store-keepers will keep them posted from time to time. Turkeys and chickens will roost so high that their breast bones will not be felt for less than twenty-two cents per pound. Vegetables and canned goods will be plentiful to those who can get them. Meats will be advanced in price beyond the reach of empty pocket-books, and rye bread will be in great demand.

Too much caution cannot be exercised to keep up with the times. The winter of 1883 will come up fully to any other winter. Landlords will be as frequently seen mild or cold, and well watered milk will bring the usual cold weather price. Bad whiskey will be plenty, and is to be sold at the same price as a loaf of bread, which a great many familys know too well.

MR. AND MRS. SPOOPENDYKE.

'My dear,' whimpered Mr. Spoopendyke, hobbling into his wife's room and throwing himself into a chair with a desolate expression of despair on his visage. 'My dear, there is something the matter with my foot, and I can't make out what the trouble is.'

'Maybe it's a stone bruise,' suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'That's all you know about it,' grunted Mr. Spoopendyke, who was not to be put off with so small a disaster as a stone bruise. 'I tell you, that I have got some trouble with my foot that threatens my life, and you stand around there like a cork in a bottle, and talk about it as though I hadn't got one leg in my coffin as far as my hip.'

'Are you sure it isn't a corn?' hazarded Mrs. Spoopendyke, timidly. 'Sometimes corns hurt worse that anything else; but I never heard of people dying of them.'

'No, it isn't a corn!' howled Mr. Spoopendyke, nursing his foot and glaring at his wife with a mingled expression of rage and pain. 'When did you ever hear of a corn that reached from the heel to the knee? Which of your friends ever had a corn that hurt clear to the ear?' and Mr. Spoopendyke touched his foot care*fully to the floor and eyed his wife nar*rowly to see if she noticed the expression of agony on his face.

'If it acts that way it must be a bunion!' exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke triumphantly. 'All you have got to do is to take your boot off and put your slippers on.'

'That's it,' yelled Mr. Spoopendyke hauling off his boot and firing it across the *room. 'When a man is dying of in*flammatory rheumatism, it's a bunion! You've got it! A pain that starts in the toe, runs to the back of the neck and ties in a hard knot over the spine, is a bunion! Show me the bunion!' he continued, sticking his leg out straight and pointing his finger at the offending foot. 'Take this digit in your lily white hand and place it tenderly on the dod gasted bunion before I die and forget what killed me! Pick it out of the surrounding anatomy!' he yelled, wriggling his foot and bouncing up and down in his chair in a delirium of rage. 'Pluck the bunion from its mountain fastness on the hoof of Spoopendyke and hold it up to the gaze of the same!'

'Does it hurt—?' commenced Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly.

'Hurt,' roared Mr. Spoopendyke, spring*ing from his chair and dancing around* the room like a fiend. 'Of course it don't. It tickles. Hurt! It's a picnic. Say, my dear,' and his voice was low and tender. 'Say, my dear,' instead of going to the country next summer, we'll lay in a stock of bunions and wear 'em around for our health and recreation! 'Hurt! It feels like a band of music! That's what it is, a bunion? It took you to hit it. When I get time to fit you up with a full beard and a bottle of whiskey I'm going to start a dispensary with you. If you only improve your mind until you reach the standard of intelligence of a moderate donkey you'll only need a stolen corpse and a bad smell to be a first-class medical college.'

'Say, dear,' observed Mrs. Spoopendyke, who had been exploring carefully her husband's boot, 'say, dear, I think I have found out what the trouble is. It isn't a bunion after all. Here's a peg sticking out here about a quarter of an inch. If you will have that taken out I don't believe you will suffer any more.'

Mr. Spoopendyke jammed his hat over his eyes, shoved his feet into his slippers, grabbed the obnoxious boot and started for the door with a withering look at his wife as he went out.

'I don't care,' murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, as the front door slammed vindictively; 'I don't care if he has it out, he has to admit that I was right, and if he doesn't it will hurt him till he dies. I I dont know which will be the worse for him, but he will have to do one or the other.'

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

DEMOCRACY.

Many aristocratically disposed gentlemen give vent to their animosity by denouncing the Democratic party as "common," because around its standard rally the toiling masses, the farmers, mechanics and laboring men of this country.

Were such political dudes capable of understanding and valuing the principles of free government, they would honor rather than defame Democracy.

The brightest glory of the Democratic party is its genuine fraternity with all the people.

That is the very life blood of Democracy.

From thence comes its vitality, strength and influence.

Democracy knows no distinction as to creed, class or condition.

It contends that all men are equal in the eyes of American law and subject to its impartial enforcement. That the poorest and humblest citizen is fully as much entitled to protection and encouragement as the richest and loftiest.

Democracy does not treat poverty with cruel disregard, neither does it fawn and bend the knee to pompous wealth.

It would grant an opportunity for all to prosper and enjoy happiness.

It holds that integrity of character makes the honorable and useful man, not pride, position or possessions, and that real worth may as surely abide in the lowly cottage as in the princely palace.

It esteems honest labor as the source of legitimate riches, and the horny hand of toil as an evidence of distinction, not a mark of reproach.

Democracy is of the people, and for them, not for any privileged part, but on behalf of all the people it boldly challenges opposition, come from whence it may.

A HUNDRED YEARS.

The Centennial of the Evacuation of New York by the British troops, celebrated on Monday of last week, not only brought into thoughtful review a memorable event in the early history of our country, but attested the sturdy loyalty of the American people, thousands of whom unmurmuringly braved rain and mud to appropriately honor the day.

It was the anniversary of an event worthy of grand and joyous popular demonstration.

One hundred years ago, November 27, 1783, the military representatives of England's Third George, cowed by defeat, hurried aboard their master's ships and sped homeward from a land whose aroused people, appealing to Heaven for the rectitude of their cause, had nobly resolved to own no King but God.

For that they had bravely battled and the victory won.

One hundred years ago, the last British transport faded from view on ocean's blue expanse, and the land of Washington, Greene, Marion and Putnam, of Hancock, Adams, Franklin, Morris, Jefferson and Patrick Henry was free, free from the tread of the Invader, free from the tyranny riveted chains of Monarchy.

To remember and perpetuate forever that glorious result is the highest and purest of patriotism.

Four years thereafter was framed and adopted in Convention that matchless charter of civil and religious liberty, the Constitution of the United States.

Starting from that point of time, what a patriotic and profitable study is unfolded? Then our country, sparsely populated, and impoverished by years of Revolutionary struggle for national existence, merely skirted the Atlantic seaboard from Massachusetts Bay to the Savannah River, while but a short distance inland lay a dark and almost untrodden wilderness, a continent unknown to civilization.

A hundred years have rolled away.

What is our country now?

The question is freighted with interest.

Stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, over giant mountain peaks and blooming cultured plains, from the Eastern river boundary of Maine to the South Western Rio Grande of Texas, and from ice crowned Alaska to the warm sunny waters of the Floridian gulf, the starry flag floats in peaceful sovereignty over fifty million of freemen, occupying a realm of unequalled natural beauty and material riches, and blessed with a system of government such as no people on the broad face of earth ever before enjoyed.

To study their own country, its origin and growth, its founders and defenders, its laws, institutions and resources, should be the earnest aim of the youth of America. It is of far more importance than the annals of ancient Greece and Rome, because it treats of living questions, of their own immediate heritage, to preserve which they must soon become actors in the arena of life.

No more profitable task can be given to the pupils in our Public Schools than the studious investigation and frequent rehearsal of United States history for the past hundred years.

It will intensify American loyalty.

Imparting practical knowledge, it will make them patriots in action.

Let America be the theme.

CONGRESS ASSEMBLED.

Both Houses of Congress met promptly at noon on Monday last, at the Capitol, Washington, D. C., and went through the preliminaries of organization. The Senate, after being called to order, swore in the new Senators, Messrs. Pike, of New Hampshire, Kenna, of West Virginia, Gibson, of Louisiana, Colquitt, of Georgia, Wilson, of Iowa, Riddleberger, of Virginia, Sabine, of Minnesota, Palmer, of Michigan, Cullom, of Illinois, Manderson, of Nebraska, Dolph, of Oregon, and Bowen, of Colorado. After which, without the transaction of any other business, the Senate adjourned.

In the House, the roll call disclosed the presence of 316 members. The certificates of Manning, of Mississippi, and the successor of Peel, of North Carolina, had not been received.

On the vote for Speaker, John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, received 191 votes, and J. W. Keifer, of Ohio, 112, with 5 votes scattering. New Jersey's 3 votes were cast for Randall. The Clerk thereupon declared Mr. Carlisle elected, and Messrs. Randall, of Pennsylvania, and Keifer, of Ohio, escorted him to the chair. His entrance into the chamber was the signal for loud applause, and the oath of office was then administered. Both he and Mr. Randall made short speeches. The latter thanked his friends, the minority, for their efforts in his behalf, and pledged the successful Speaker his honest support.

THE CITY ELECTION.

Five Democrats and Six Republicans elected Councilmen. A gain of one Democrat. A License Council secured. The Democrats carry two Wards.

The result of the charter election in this city last Tuesday was gratifying to the Democrats and satisfactory to the citizens generally. There were enough tickets in the field to satisfy any ordinary voter. Besides the regular Democratic, Republican and Citizen's tickets, there were "splits" innumerable, gotten up principally in the interest of the candidate for Collector on the latter ticket, Mr. John Johnson. Mr. Johnson was elected last year on the Republican ticket and made a very satisfactory officer. In the Republican convention held last week, he was beaten for a renomination by Mr. F. A. Dunham. The Democrats then nominated Mr. Joseph S. Cutter on their ticket, making all the rest of it Democratic, excepting the offices of Assessor, Treasurer, School Trustee and one Freeholder. These were left blank. The friends of Mr. Johnson then put in the field a "Citizen's" ticket with his name for Collector, and filled it up with the names of Democrats and Republicans from the other two tickets. A large number of Democrats bolted their regular nominee and voted for Johnson as did many Republicans, the result being the election of Johnson. The cause to be assigned for this movement was sympathy for Mr. Johnson, who is crippled and in needy circumstances. Had the Democrats stood by their ticket, Mr. Cutter, who is very popular, would undoubtedly have been elected, and possibly another Councilman, Mr. Rockfellow, which would have made the Council Democratic. For the first time the First and Fourth Wards went straight Democratic on all officers. The gentlemen who were elected Councilmen are all good men and will satisfactorily conduct the affairs of the city. There is a majority of them in favor of granting licenses.

A Card.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I am informed that at the late charter election I was defeated for the common council, and I desire through the medium of your valued paper to thank the "Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield" who, at said election assembled so declared. I am pleased to be exempt from fighting the people's battles for them and to be rid of the responsibility of a member of the council, and the anxiety which attaches to the office. I would say one word to the members elect, and that is, look out for subtle jobbers and would-be flowery politicians.

E. L. MORRIS.

A Card.

To the many who so successfully supported me at the recent election, I desire to earnestly express my sincere thanks; and also take this opportunity of pledging myself to further fulfil the duties of my office in such a manner as shall be for the best interests of the community, so far as is in my power.

Very Respectfully,
JOHN JOHNSON.

WESTFIELD WISPS

Mr. Philips, from Jersey Shore, Penn., is on a visit to his friends in our town.

The ladies connected with the Methodist Church gave a supper last evening in the lecture room connected with the church. It was well attended. The proceeds were for church purposes.

George Lyons has purchased a lot on corner of Kimball and Mountain avenues on which he intends erecting a dwelling house the present season.

Warren Ackerman, Esq., of Scotch Plains, purchased the homestead farm of the late N. Bursmith, deceased, on Wednesday, Dec. 5th. It was sold under a Guardian sale by order of the Court of Chancery.

Ex-Freeholder Mapes is seriously ill at his residence on Prospect street. He took a heavy cold on Friday last and it developed in a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia. Drs. T. V. Smith of Westfield and Sprague of Elizabeth are his attending physicians.

Mrs. Ann B. Nicholls has purchased the house and lot on Elmer street of Conrad Werp. She intends improving the property considerably.

A fair is to be held in the Presbyterian Church lecture room under the auspices of the Good Will Mission Band connected with the church.

The commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation met at the town rooms last week to hear any complaint in regard to the valuation of property. There were but few persons before them. The decrease in amount of tax was about fifty dollars.

Prof. Frank Gottshalk is considered a billiard expert and is now engaged in giving lessons. He has several pupils already secured. Exhibition games every once in a while.

John J. Willis has purchased the property on South avenue formerly owned by Mr. Gessell. He intends making a decided improvement in the same.

E. M. Dolbier has moved in the dwelling house on Broad street formerly occupied by Mrs. Waters, who has moved to Brooklyn, N. Y.

John Darsh has purchased the property known as Woodruff's market on Broad street from the Washington Life Insurance Company.

The anniversary of the Sunday School connected with the M. E. Church was held on Thanksgiving evening in the main audience room of the church. Long before the hour for the exercises to commence the room was filled with parents and friends of the children. The infant class which consists of about sixty children occupied the platform. The rest of the scholars connected with the school were seated in the front seats which had been reserved for them. The exercises were varied and very interesting, consisting of singing, recitations, cornet and piano solo. The Japanese hymn by Herbert Hoagland and recitation by Mary A. Lockey, children connected with the infant class, were received with applause, as was also the song sung by one of the small children connected with the Zion Mission School. The report of the officers of the school show it to be in a good condition financially and the average attendance large.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Porpoise fishing so far has not proved a financial success at Cape May and it is probable that the project will now be abandoned until next spring, when those claiming to know say that the porpoises are more plentiful.

The shooting match at the Club House, (formerly Campbell's) on Park avenue, this city, on Thanksgiving Day, was largely attended by local sportsmen. Everything passed off pleasantly and considerable sport was enjoyed.

The Hunterdon County Game Society, of which George Gaddis, the Bound Brook Hotel proprietor, is President, have secured two hundred live quail, which the members will care for until the proper time comes for releasing the birds within that county for breeding purposes.

The "New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society" have purchased two hundred live Tennessee quail which will be kept until Spring and then turned loose in the State for breeding purposes. This is the first lot of a large installment to be procured by this society for the above mentioned purpose.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

We are happy to state that Mr. Myers is convalescing from his severe attack of pneumonia, which was causing much alarm among his relatives and numerous friends, he being a man well liked by all.

The Baptist church gave a fair and festival in their lecture room on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week, which was largely and profitably attended. The members of the church are worthy of the greatest praise for their unceasing endeavors to make up a beautiful collection of useful and ornamental articles that were readily purchased and netted the sum of $456 for the benefit of the church. A beautiful lamp, one of the many presents that was given out, was secured by Miss Lizzie Faff, she receiving the most votes as being the most popular young lady among the competitors for this prize. The whole affair was a complete success and afforded every one a pleasant time that attended it.

The home talent of Scotch Plains gave a dramatic entertainment at the new Excelsior Hall on the evening of Dec. 1, the proceeds of which are to be applied for the completion of the above Hall. The performance drew a large and most respectable audience, filling the Hall to its utmost capacity. The first piece rendered was one of John Howard Payne's amusing dramatic stories, entitled "Chas. the Second or the Merrie Monarch," which was very creditably executed, especially the parts taken by Mr. T. A. Gere and his interesting daughter Hattie. The exhibition was concluded with a comical afterpiece entitled "A Regular Fix," in which Mr. D. P. Hall kept the audience convulsed with laughter. Those that were fortunate enough to witness this entertainment were well satisfied and hope soon to be able to again have the opportunity to witness the same actors in another of their most meritorious performances.

As one of our most distinguished citizens, Mr. Boston Campbell, the boss mason, was going to his palatial residence, called Cole's Castle, he noticed two very suspicious looking characters moping around the entrance to his grounds. Upon asking them what might be their business, they gave him an evasive and surly answer and acted very suspiciously. Boston's wife being away on a prolonged visit to some of her friends on Fifth avenue, he thereby having to abide alone in his residence, determined to sit up that night and watch for any demonstration that might be of a burglarious nature, as he had a considerable sum of money in the house, besides jewels left by his long tarrying wife. At about the hour of midnight he was rewarded for his long vigil by hearing loud raps at his vestibule door and voices demanding admittance. He immediately grasped his trusty single barrel muzzle loader and discharged it out of the window, thereby causing a stampede of these most audacious miscreants.

The official canvass of the vote of New Jersey shows Governor Abbett's plurality to be 6 809.

ALL FOR NOTHING
Why the Doctor was Disgusted, and what might have been done without him.

"Well, wife," said Dr. E——, as he entered his house, which was situated in a cosy village in central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man would n't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the simpleton had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, swallowing the steaming tea which his wife had just poured for him.

Doctor E—— was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are fortunate to be relieved much of their needless toil. In all diseases capable of being affected by a plaster Benson's acts efficiently and at once. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents. SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey.—Between John L. Brewster and Charles J. Howell, complainants and Evan Jones, et ux., et als., defendants. Fi. fa., for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Court House in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on WEDNESDAY, THE NINTH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1884.

At 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a point where the northerly line of Putnam street intersects the easterly line of Kensington avenue; thence along said southeasterly line of Kensington avenue in a northerly direction eleven hundred and sixty-four and sixty-seven one-hundredths feet to the southeasterly line of La Grand avenue; thence along said southeasterly line of La Grand avenue northeasterly two hundred and thirty-one and twotenths feet to the southwesterly line of Berckman street; thence along the southwesterly line of Berckman street in a southeasterly course one hundred and eighty-four and four one-hundredths feet to the westerly line of Park Place, thence running in a southerly course along the westerly line of Park Place three hundred and forty seven and thirty-nine one hundredths feet to a stake and corner of Freeman's land; thence running in a southwesterly course at right angles to Park Place one hundred and fifty feet to the rear line of Kensington avenue lots; thence running in a southerly course along the rear line of said lots eight hundred and twenty five feet, more or less, to the northerly line of Putnam street; thence along said northerly line of Putnam street westerly one hundred and seventy-five feet to the place of beginning.

Granting also the lands in front of said plots on Kensington avenue, La Grand avenue, Berckman street, Park Place and Putnam street, to the centre thereof, to be used as public street.

Being a part of the premises conveyed to the party of the first part by deed of Jacob G. Laing and wife, dated August 11, 1869, recorded in Book 19 of Deeds for Union County, pages 204, 5 and 6; also a small piece purchased of Elizabeth Freeman and husband, dated January 8, 1870, recorded in Book 41 of Deeds for Union county, pages 499 and 500.

Excepting and reserving from the above described tract of land so much thereof as is described in a certain release of mortgage made by John L. Brewster to Evan Jones, dated March 7, 1877, and recorded in Book 115 of Deeds for Union county, page one hundred and eighty-nine, reference being thereunto had will more fully appear.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Footways and Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The tenant, occupant, or any person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square or public place within the city, where there is any footway or sidewalk, and in case there may be no tenant, occupant, or other person having the care of the whole of any such building or lot, the owner shall put, maintain and keep such footway or sidewalk in good and sufficient repair, even to the surface, and so constructed as freely to shed water, and for the width of at least three feet, if said footway or sidewalk be that wide, if not, then for the whole width thereof, shall make and keep it free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other [illegible] substances; and in all cases in which at any time any footway or sidewalk is not in the condition required by this section, such tenant, occupant, owner, or other person, as aforesaid, shall forthwith cause the same to be repaired or put in the above condition in conformity herewith.

Sec. 2. The street Commissioner is hereby authorized to notify and order persons liable under the preceding section to comply with the requirements thereof; and every such person neglecting or refusing to comply therewith within one week after such notification and order of the street commissioner shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to a fine not exceeding ten dollars, and for each and every week thereafter that such neglect or refusal shall continue any further sum not exceeding ten dollars; and in case such neglect or refusal shall continue for the space of [illegible] days after such notification and order of the street commissioner, the street commissioner may cause the necessary repairs to be made, and the person or persons [illegible] under this or the preceding section shall be liable for the costs incurred in making such repairs in addition to the fine.

Approved Dec. 4th, 1883.

THE MINISTER WHO FAILS to interest his congregation and build up his church is generally accused of being a poor preacher, or of not studying hard enough. That is not always where the trouble comes from. Dyspepsia and liver disorders are responsible for many a dull sermon and many a vacant pulpit. When the Dominie's digestive apparatus is working wrong and his nerves are giving him pain, and his brain refuses to do its duty, it is almost impossible to make or to preach a good sermon. Give your suffering minister a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. You will see its effect on next Sunday's preaching. The Rev. Mr. Zehring, of Codoras, Pa., was paralyzed, and could not walk except with crutches, until Brown's Iron Bitters made a new man of him. The Rev. Mr. White, of Rock Hill, S. C., says: "It restored me to strength and vigor." Brown's Iron Bitters is not only for the minister, but for all people. 5

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER IN UNION COUNTY.

Corporation Notice.

The duly elected members of the common council, and all other officers elected at the charter election Dec. 4, are requested to meet in the City Clerk's office, next Saturday evening, Dec. 8, at 7½ o'clock, in order to take the official oaths prescribed by the Charter.

If not convenient at that time, all such oaths must be taken within ten days after the day of election, either before the Mayor or the City Judge.

WALTER L. HETFIELD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 5th, 1883.

OH, for a North Plainfield Lock-up!!

THE Council meets next Monday evening.

AMONG the many attractions of H. S. Barnes' show windows are the models of white bronze monuments.

IT is about time an engine was put on the 5.15 p. m. train from New York capable of running according to the schedule.

THERE will be an extra rehearsal of the Plainfield Vocal Society this evening, through the kindness of Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh.

MESSRS Adams' and Swalm's painters supply stores will close at 7 p. m., excepting Sundays, during the winter months.

THE pulpit of the Crescent avenue church will be supplied next Sabbath by the Rev. Henry M. Booth, D. D., of Englewood, N. J.

SEALSKIN jackets in the Jersey style, but quite short and untrimmed, are more popular with young ladies than the sealskin sacque of former years.

THE annual parlor sale of the Church of the Holy Cross, will be held by its ladies in the adjoining chapel, next Tuesday afternoon and evening.

OWING to the non-arrival of the musicians, the hop at the Park House which was to have taken place on Thanksgiving evening, was indefinitely postponed.

SOMEBODY in North Plainfield ought to be ashamed of himself. The place is big enough to have a place of its own in which to lock up its own bad characters.

RICE'S Pleasure Party at Van Deventer Hall, last Friday evening, gave a handful of our citizens the finest piece of dramatic work seen in Plainfield for months.

MR. WILLIAM VAN HORNE'S Thanksgiving was a memorable one. A thief entered his house on Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, that night, and stole a small sum of mon[illegible] and a watch.

MR. JOHN WILA[illegible] without the aid of the "department," succeeded in putting out a fire that had started from a servant's carelessness in the residence of Mr. O. B. Leonard, last Saturday afternoon.

WILLIAM PANGBORN, of Alton, (Dog Corner) lost four valuable horses last week, from spinal meningetis. The animals were the property of New York gentlemen, and were in charge of Mr. Pangborn.

THE vacation of the State Normal and Model Schools, at Trenton, caused by the prevalence of scarlet fever, has been extended to the 10th of December, to permit of a thorough disinfection of the buildings.

IF you want to enjoy yourself thoroughly, in a most agreeable manner, attend the evening sociable of the Plainfield Turn Verein, at their hall on Second street, next Thursday evening. Admission 25 cents.

BY railroad men the new standard time is spoken of as red, blue, green and yellow time, these being the different colors in which the railroad are marked on the new maps. The Eastern Division runs on red time.

IN our last week's Council Proceedings was reference to a lad in the Children's Home "suffering from malignant scarlet fever." We meant to say, "suffering from the effects of." The patient is now removed to the Muhlenberg Hospital.

As the holidays approach, some of our citizens may desire to know where to procure suitable pure liquors for table use on such occasions. We refer them to the advertisement of Mr. E. P. Thorn, who has a decided reputation for furnishing such.

JAMES MORROW, the notorious criminal who escaped from the Union county jail recently was captured at Elizabethport last week and returned to his former quarters with Warden Cahill. He since received a sentence of six years in State Prison.

THE petit jurors for the January term, drawn in open court, Tuesday, Dec. 4th, were: Plainfield—James Clawson, Moses Carney, James H. House, Daniel P. Huff. Fanwood—Henry F. Stites, Thomas R. Mead, Stites M. Parse. Westfield—Jos. H. Clark.

AT the Park avenue church, next Thursday evening, will occur the second of its Young People's Course of Entertainments—a lecture by the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., on a subject, "Cardinal Wolsey," in which he is particularly interesting.

ATTENTION is called to the advertisement of A. F. Carpenter, Veterinary Surgeon, to be found in another column. Those in search of a good piece of horse flesh should first consult him before making a purchase. He is a good and competent judge.

THE Rev. Adam Chambers of Roselle, with his highly endorsed lectures on the "Pilgrim's Progress" illustrated with new and original oil paintings, will appear at the New Market Baptist church, next next Wednesday and Thursday evenings—rain or shine.

BACHMAN BROS., have filled their elegant new store at No. 27 West Front street, with a magnificent assortment of dry and fancy goods. On Thursday next they will offer for three days special inducements in all departments and respectfully invite you to inspect the bargains.

THE first of the Vocal Recitals, full particulars of which will appear in our next, occurs on the 20th. Some of the chorus having given up seats they could not use, a few more subscriptions will be received upon early application to Mr. J. K. Myers or Mr. W. W. Howland, and at Shaw's Pharmacy.

OF all the balls ever given in this city of ball-lovers, that of Thanksgiving eve, at Blatz's Hall, by the members of No. 2 Hose Co., was one of the best. The Chairman, A. T. Marsh, and the members of the Committee of Arrangements were untiring in their successful efforts to accomplish the enjoyment of all. The Committee consisted of Messrs. E. Marsh, J. Emmons, J. R. Frazee, F. Kreweon, L. A. Laine, J. Crosby and J. Bowman.

Another Suspect.

The "man-in-a-white-coat," supposed to be the murderer of Phoebe Paullin, has at last been arrested. He is Patrick Mc Farland, well known in this city where he lived while in the employ of Mr. J. J. Perrine, the hatter.

One-half the Force Disabled.

Tuesday night officer Grant, seeing a light in French's mill, stepped up to the window to look and fell about ten feet down into an area under it. Officer Mattox, who was with him, procured help and assisted Grant to his home where he lies useless with a strained knee and badly wrenched shoulder.

German Carp.

Residents of Union County desiring German Carp with which to stock ponds, may receive a consignment of the fish by addressing Fish Warden Percy C. Ohl, Plainfield, N. J.

"Cardinal Wolsey."

The next entertainment in the Park avenue Course will be a lecture on Thursday evening, Dec. 13th, by Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., on "Cardinal Wolsey". The doctor needs no commendation from us in this community. His lecture will be a rare literary treat. Tickets 25 cents. With reserved seats for this and all three following entertainments, 80 cents at Parsons'.

A Flattering Opinion.

Gov. R. E. Fenton visited Plainfield Thanksgiving Day for the first time—stopping at the house of his niece, Mrs. Charles A. Haynes, No. 10 First place, where several of our citizens paid their respects to him. He left Friday morning for New York highly pleased with his visit, and remarked "Plainfield was the most pleasant suburb of New York he had seen."

Edsall's Monthly.

The second number of Edsall's Illustrated Visitor is before us. It is issued by our popular merchant, Seeley Edsall, and while it devotes a small space to the advertisement of Edsall, yet contains much interesting reading matter. The front page is embellished with a beautiful cut entitled, "Who said Santa Claus was coming?" which will amuse the children who gaze upon it. Secure a copy of it.

At the Park House.

On Wednesday evening of last week, the young people of Grace church held a sociable in the parlors of the Park House. The organization of the society was effected and officers elected, and it is proposed to hold these entertainments every two weeks during the winter. About fifty persons participated in the festivities, which consisted of dancing and the playing of games. The next meeting will be at the residence of Mr. Stover, on Park Place, on the evening of Dec. 11th. The officers of the Society are Rev. Mr. Rodman, President; Mr. Herbert Stover, Secretary and Treasurer.

"A Greater Orator Than John B. Gough."

This is what some say of George W. Bain, the "Eloquent Kentuckian," who is to lecture on his greatest theme, "Temperance" at the Methodist church, Thursday evening, December 13th. A western paper says: "He keeps his audiences in a whirl of excitement or breathless suspense by his wonderful oratory and thrilling illustrations." Another declares, "the land of Clay, Marshall, Breckenridge and a host of other great orators, has lost none of her prestige in Geo. W. Bain. In him the star of her splendor shines resplendent." Reserved seats for his lecture can be obtained at Reynolds' Pharmacy, at 50 cents. The same price will be charged at the door.

A Thanksgiving Visit.

During the forenoon of Thanksgiving Day, our citizens were surprised by the sound of excellent music discoursed by a brass band. Investigation proved to our reporter that the strains emanated from members of Voss' celebrated band of Newark, which heading a target company—the Fourth Ward Guards of Newark, Capt. Burns—marched from the depot to Blatz's Hotel in North Plainfield, where after indulging in target practice in an adjoining lot, they partook of a sumptuous repast, such as only "Joe" and his estimable better half know how to set before hungry mortals. It was the universal comment by all that the turkeys served up at that dinner were the finest they had ever partaken of, which is easily accounted for from the fact that our old friend, David Smalley, of Sterling, furnished them. The "Guards" were a fine looking body of men, who carried canes instead of guns, and behaved themselves like gentlemen while they were visitors of our city.

A Memorial of His Character.

The following communication recently sent Mr. and Mr. John H. Cuthbert, speaks for itself;

"Immediately after the death of your lamented son, J. Heywood Cuthbert, it was suggested by some of his many admiring friends who were desirous of evincing their regard and esteem of his many virtues, to in some prominent manner perpetuate his memory. After various conferences and consultations it was finally decided to procure a suitable Memorial Window and have it placed in the church of his choice—Grace Church of Plainfield, N. J. We now have the pleasure of informing you that the window is completed and placed in the position it is to occupy for all time as a memorial of his untarnished character and a reminder to his young friends and associates to strive and emulate his example. Please accept it as it is intended as a slight tribute to his memory. Hoping that a kind Providence will bind up your broken hearts, and deal gently with you and yours in the future, we are truly yours."

Signed by "The League" of which the deceased was a member, and thirty-three friends and associates.

The window is placed in the left side of the church, and is a triumph of skill and taste. The coloring is very brilliant, and blends with a most gratifying effect. In the centre is a gilded cross over which gracefully falls a ribbon with the motto "Semper Fidelis," the deceased's true relation to Christ's work. Below are the words "simply to the cross I cling," above the name and date of birth and death.

Personalia.

The engagement of Miss Kate Wotherspoon, of Plainfield, to Mr. W. Pendleton Rodgers, of Hyde Park, on-the-Hudson, was officially announced last Saturday.

The sudden death is announced of Mrs. James Lyon, wife of the Principal of the Plainfield Academy. The deep sympathy of a large circle of friends is kindly extended the bereaved family.

Mr. William F. Downs, one of Plainfield's well known young men, was married on Nov. 25th to Miss Mary Gardner, of this city, at Elizabeth, N. J. The newly wedded couple have the best wishes of their many friends in Plainfield.

It is with pleasure we announce to the numerous friends of Mr. Auguste Saltzman the gratifying news that he has so far convalesced from his long confinement to his residence by cause of rheumatism, as to be able to walk about the house with the aid of crutches. We trust ere many days to announce his entire recovery of health.

From the Southern Enterprise, published at Thomasville, Georgia, we glean the following regarding one of our respected fellow citizens:

"Mr Samuel Manning of New Jersey, will be a resident of Thomasville for a portion of the winter at least. He has taken the cottage of Mrs. Seward, corner of Washington and Crawford streets, for four months. Hope he will find Thomasville so pleasant that he will prolong his stay."

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smock of this city, deeply sympathize with them in the loss by death of their youngest daughter from that dread disease, consumption; having previously lost their only two sons from the same cause. Their only surviving child, their eldest daughter, Letitia, started last Wednesday week for Independence, Iowa, where she will visit an aunt residing there, probably being absent about two months. Her large circle of friends and acquaintances wish her a pleasant visit and continued good health.

Notice is given that a bill will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature for a repeal of an act entitled "An act to revise and amend the charter of the city of Elizabeth," approved March 4, 1863, and all supplements thereto.

At The Netherwood.

James Stokes, the New York millionaire, with a large party of friends, was a guest at the Hotel Netherwood over Thanksgiving. All were so well pleased with the Hotel and its surroundings that they made arrangements for accommodations next month. Netherwood now bids fair to become a popular Winter resort. There certainly is no more comfortable or convenient Hotel to be found in this country.

A Rare Treat.

It is unfortunately the fact, that a Plainfield audience is seldom accorded the privilege of listening to a Shakespearean Recital by even a reader of little elocutionary ability. How greatly is to be valued then the entertainment arranged for Thursday evening, the 6th inst. as the second of the Y. M. C. A. Course. Mr. Locke Richardson is believed by many to be unsurpassed as a reader of those masterpieces of literature, the works of the immortal bard. He will, upon the date mentioned, read "Twelfth Night" with a power worthy the lines. A large audience will undoubtedly take advantage of this rare opportunity.

Another Appeal.

The very generous response to our Thanksgiving appeal enabled us to provide thirty-two families with bountiful dinners. In many cases where the families were large and supplies in proportion, our committee of ladies took them in carriages to the homes. The gratitude and happiness expressed in words and beaming faces, would have gladdened the hearts of all who contributed; and if they could have looked in at our busy rooms, where many kind hearts and hands were dispensing their donations, they would have fully realized "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and would have been thankful for the privilege.

MRS. GEO. W. FERRY,
Pres. Relief Asso.

Dr. Vincent's Lecture.

The series of three lectures arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church, was most auspiciously opened, Thanksgiving evening, by Plainfield's favorite, the Rev. J. H. Vincent. The date proved to be an unfortunate one, and the gathering—which might have been considered flattering to another lecturer—was small. The subject, a new one, was treated with Dr. Vincent's well-known and unequalled force, but, as the audience was prepared to expect from the lecturer's own words in introduction—there was absent the perfect connection of thoughts, and the even drift of ideas up to a grand conception, that are such marked features of Dr. Vincent's literary creations. It was the first public delivery of the lecture, yet its great merrit, when we realize it is hardly more than the frame work, can but dimly foreshadow its future success as one of the greatest productions of this talented lecturer who is soon to be appointed a Bishop.

Election Notes.

The Union Club elected all its Representatives. And they are the pick of the party, too.

The Democrats are becoming more united. Which is not altogether bad for the City.

The Rev. J. S. Hurlbut made quite a run.

It was a cold day, Thursday, for the Republicans in the First and Fourth Wards.

Collector Johnson thoroughly deserves the second term to which he has been so flatteringly elected.

The political and temperance "complexion" of the present Council must have suited the people, for the next is the same.

We couldn't have a better pair of freeholders than we have this term and will have the following.

His own ability, not to mention courtesy, will insure the election of Robert L. Livingston, Esq., as President of the Council of 1884.

They finished counting in the First Ward at 12:30; Second Ward, 12:00; Third Ward, 10:15; and in the Fourth Ward at 2:45 the next morning.

The Jay-Eye-Sees should change their name to Sad-You-Sees.

To those who were "left" on election we tender consolation; to those elected congratulation.

Christmas Gifts—Suggestions.

Christmas is coming! with its demand for pretty fancy articles suitable for Christmas gifts; and a few suggestions as to new style needlework may be acceptable to those having a number of friends to provide for. A nice present for a housekeeper is a set of half a dozen doylies or small fruit napkins. The latest fashion is to turn down one corner of the linen square and work upon it an orange, banana or other fruit, varying the design on each. Embroidered aprons are now very fashionable for home wear, and may be made of satin, linen, pongee or muslin, and decorated with silk, wools or crewels, as the material suggests. A very tasteful apron for a young lady, is one of pure white pongee, worked with dainty knots of violets, the waistband and strings being of delicate lavender ribbon. We have seen them of ecru, tied with scarlet, the front decorated with comical looking honey-bees, and the motto, in outline stitch, "How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour!" These are for evening aprons.

A new feature of art needlework is using small worsted or plush balls, which are sold by the dozen. These are flattened on one side, and sewed on in groups of three, a shadow being worked beneath each, and, when mixed with artistically shaded leaves, are very effective. One thing always to be remembered in embroidery, as well as in painting, is to decide at first on which side the light shall fall, and work accordingly, the shades gradually melting into each other, from the deepest to those which are almost white.

Foot Ball.

The second game of foot ball between the "Train Eleven" and "Leals' School Team" took place on Thanksgiving morning on the field on Eighth street, near Liberty. In anticipation of a close game both teams had strengthened their sides by the addition of some good players, and as the game turned out it proved to be one of the fiercest battles on the football field that has ever been fought in Plainfield. If the spectators were disappointed before, because they considered the game tame, they were amply repaid this time by seeing some exciting playing. Although played under the College Association Rules, it was difficult work for their referee and the two umpires to prevent hot discussions taking place between the two teams, concerning the legality of fouls, as the players appeared to play with as much vengance and determination to win, as though they were engaged in a matter of life and death—however, nobody was seriously injured—and if the exercise did not make the player eat an extra piece of turkey at dinner, then the reporter is very much mistaken. The following were the sides: Leals' School—Daniels, Kirk, Milliken, Hickling, Squires, Hoagland, Reissig, Sandford, Parkhurst, Murray, Watson. Train Eleven—E. Tracy, L. Walz, F. Walz, Yates, Stewart, Manchee, Tilney, Burt H. Tracy, Ginna, Pell. Umpire for "Train Eleven," Mr. Lemuel Serrell. Umpire for "Leals' School Team," Mr. Theo. Aldrich. Referee, Mr. E. B. Ackerman. The only point made was a safety touch-down by Parkhurst in the second inning, thus leaving the score by points 1 to 0 in favor of the School Team.

Unity Lodge K. of P. Reception.

Among the features of Thanksgiving Day, in this city, was the entertainment and reception given by Unity Lodge No. 102, Knights of Pythias. The first portion of the exercises took place in their Lodge room, and was attended by a very large and appreciative audience—among whom were noticed many of our prominent citizens—all of whom were highly pleased at the programme offered. The entertainment commenced with an overture by the orchestra; and after a few introductory remarks by C. C. Horace Martin, a miscellaneous programme of recitations, music, etc., followed. The recitations of Miss Ernie Smith and Miss Ida Lorton were well rendered, and, considering their youth, showed careful study. Miss Flora Hawkins' recitation, "The Church Organ," although a piece that has been often heard, was handled well and won her deserved applause. Miss Hawkins is a member of the Junior class in the High School. The Eclipse Quartette, of Newark, gave some of their fine musical selections. Mrs. C. B. Overbaugh performed two very delightful selections on the piano, in which she displayed her abilities as a pianist and her entire mastery of some very difficult scores. There was a very pleasing piano duett by Misses Lizzie Stewart and Ida Lorton which was well performed, also a humorous song by Mr. J. Randall, and a harp solo by V. Palermo. This part of the programme was concluded by a brilliant little comedietta called "Domestic Troubles," performed by Mr. and Mrs. Habell and Mr. M. J. Winn. Notwithstanding the limited space allowed them and the absence of proper stage facilities, it was performed in an acceptable manner and was well appreciated by those present. As soon as this was over Mr. Eugene V. Lorton, G. K. of R. and S. of the Grand Lodge, and who is a member of Unity Lodge, stepped to the platform, and after speaking a few words relative to the success of the Lodge and especially of the services rendered it by its competent corps of officers, presented, on behalf of the Lodge, a very handsome Past Chancellor's Jewel to Bro. Horace Martin, who shortly retires from the presiding office of the Lodge, which he has held since its institution. Bro. Martin has been an efficient officer and has displayed much energy and skill in the work assigned him. He received the Jewel with thanks and replied in a few short and appropriate remarks. The company then adjourned to Laing's Hall and enjoyed a fine sociable gotten up by Unity's energetic committee. Refreshments were served by Miller in his usual good style, and the music for dancing, which was furnished by Prof. Guttman, was unusually fine. Altogether, it was one of the finest and most enjoyable entertainments that we have had in Plainfield for a long time, and, judging from the audience present, Unity Lodge, though not yet a year old, has won a deserved reputation among our best class of citizens. This Lodge was instituted last March and has now nearly 40 members, among whom are many of our first citizens. We suggest to them—if they intend to give any more entertainments—to secure a larger room, as the Lodge room is entirely too small and has no satisfactory ventilation. The Knights of Pythias is a good beneficial order and Unity Lodge is an excellent association especially for young men.

District Messenger Service.

We have seen one of the instruments which the Plainfield District Messenger Company propose putting in use in this city. It is of much more value and convenience than those in use in New York, and would seem cheaper at $1 per month rental, than to have the New York instrument without a rental.

In New York it makes no difference what a subscriber wants, he must first summon the messenger to his residence or place of business (as the case may be) and pay for his services at the rate of thirty cents per hour from the time he leaves the office of the company until he returns, so that in the event of a doctor being wanted, the messenger is handed a letter with instructions to deliver it; he may be an hour, or longer, (according to the distance) performing the service, and the charges may be 30 or 50 cents.

On the face of the Plainfield instrument are eight calls as follows: Messenger, Police, Grocer, Plumber, Post office, Coupe, Doctor, Fire Department. When a subscriber calls for any of these, one signal is only necessary. He turns a pointer to the one he desires, then releases it by means of a small push button, and his wishes are naturally made known at the office of the company. A messenger is at once sent to perform the service—for instance—if a doctor is signalled for, by referring to a book in the office, the name of the subscriber's physician is at once learned; it is not necessary for the messenger to go to the residence to ask the question. The company charge 10 cents for notifying the doctor, the subscriber paying for the service. Both time and money is saved by this invention. No family would hesitate to pay so trifling a sum to be able to call their physician, especially if his services were required during the night. A call for a special police officer reaches the office of the company in about five seconds of time. Upon receipt of the signal an officer goes immediately to the residence of the subscriber who has called him. His time is charged for at the rate of thirty cents per hour; if he occupies half an hour fifteen cents is charged, if twenty minutes, ten cents. No person would refuse to pay such moderate charges for the assistance of an officer in case of burglary, annoyance by tramps, or for any purpose called for. The Post-office signal will be used by subscribers who desire the company to send for their mail and have a messenger bring it to their residence. Arrangements for this service could no doubt be made with the postmaster to deliver the mail to the company upon a written order from the subscriber.

The Fire Department, as well as subscribers, will be greatly benefited by the use of these instruments. Every instrument that is connected, immediately becomes a fire alarm signal, and in the event of fire, the department can be notified within two minutes from the time the signal is received and where the signal came from.

When a subscriber desires some service performed other than the "calls" on the face of the instrument, a messenger only is signalled for, and he goes at once to the house, to perform any service demanded of him.

Every instrument that the company connect has a number stamped upon it. Each subscriber will have printed tickets at the office with the number of their instrument, their name and residence upon it, for the guidance of the messengers. These tickets are kept in a large ticket case, numerically arranged, so that when a signal is received the number of the subscriber's instrument, thus calling, records itself upon paper over a Morse Register. It corresponds with his ticket number and his identity is at once made known. From 50 to 60 of these instruments can be put on one circuit, so that the company require but few wires.

The instructions for using the instrument once connected, are of the most simple nature; it would seem almost impossible for mistakes to occur. We have become satisfied that the District System must become popular in Plainfield. We can think of no cheaper or greater convenience than the protection the company offer in the matter of Police service. It is of itself worth all they ask for rental of instruments. The terms would seem to be within the reach of every household, and our citizens should encourage the enterprise into operation.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, Dec. 3, 1883.

The Council met in regular meeting.

Present—Pres't. Livingston and Messrs Beguelin, Coriell, Gardner, Jones, Marsh, Polak, Ross, Serrell, J. Simpson, R. Simpson—11.

Absent—none.

The minutes of last regular meeting were read and approved.

PRESENTATION OF PETITIONS.

By the Board of Education, for the location of a lamp at the corner of Fourth and Union streets.

Referred to Lamps Com. with power.

Grant, 50; J. C. Meeker, 31.05; E. Hartpence, 14; A. Runyon, 12; M. A. Cooper, 10; S. Vermeule, 6; Relief Association, 63.50; F. Hibbitts, 3. All referred to proper committees.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

The monthly reports of the Collector and of the Treasurer, and the quarterly report of the Overseer of the Poor, were received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. Serrell of the Select Committee on the Clark matter reported progress.

Mr. Jones of the Select Committee on Park avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets, reported that the property owners had been notified to remove the obstructions without effect, and offered a resolution directing the Corporation Counsel to use all lawful measures to cause the removal of the obstructions and that the Street Commissioner take such steps in the matter as the Corporation Counsel may direct. The report was placed on file and the resolution adopted later in the evening.

Alms Com.—Mr. Beguelin reported correct, claims of Ford & Stiles, $15; J. Newman, 4.50; C. Peterson, 12; Muhlenberg Hospital, 42.14 and 28.71. Referred to Aud. Com.

Finance Com.—Mr. Serrell reported correct, claims of F. H. Gardner, $439.50; J. S. Cutter 77.11. Referred to Aud. Com.

Laws Com.—Mr. Coriell reported correct claim of E. S. Atwater, $18.20. Ref. to Aud. Com.

Police Com.—Mr. Jones reported correct claims of Geo. W. Grant, $50; W. R. Mattox, 26.24; M. Conway, 7.75; D. J. Boice, 11; C. Jones, 25; W. S. Chase, 58.74. Ref. to Aud. Com.

In relation to the bill of Carney Bros., Mr. Jones stated he knew nothing about it. If the Chief of Police took upon himself to order whatever he pleased, the Council could take the responsibility of paying for it.

Mr. Coriell asked if the goods were bought without authority.

On motion of Mr. Marsh, the bill was referred back to the Police Com., for information as to who ordered it, and all other facts in relation.

Printing Com.—Mr. Ross reported correct claims of Runyon & Leonard, 24.45; M. Estil, 57.58. Ref. to Aud. Com.

Salaries Com.—Mr. Marsh reported correct claims of L. F. Wadsworth, 6; T. O. Doane, 12. Ref. to Aud. Com.

Streets Com.—Mr. R. Simpson reported correct claim of J. C. Meeker, $31.05. Ref. to Aud. Com.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Mr. Polak called up the ordinance concerning footways and sidewalks.

On motion of Mr. Marsh, seconded by Mr. R. Simpson, it was adopted.

Mr. Marsh moved that when the Council adjourn it be to meet on the 10th inst.

The rules were suspended and the Aud. Com. reported its approval of the Poor bills and Police claims in its hands. Warrants were ordered drawn in payment, and also for the claim of J. Johnson, $146.37, that had been laid on the table.

Mr. Serrell moved that the Corporation Counsel be directed to make a demand on Mr. J. B. Coward for $2,240.66 an amount of money belonging to the city retained by him, and in case the demand was not complied with to take steps to collect the same with interest from 1877. Carried, all aye.

The Council then adjourned.

THE postal note does not seem to grow in popular favor, and even its friends admit that it has not met their expectations. Reports received from all sections are to the effect that as a substitute for the money order the postal note is a failure. The sales do not seem to increase, and people do not appear disposed to adopt the note for the transmission of money except where only a small amount of odd cents is involved. The sale of the postal note has thus far not decreased the use of the money orders, except in very rare instances.

UNION DIME SAVINGS INSTITUTION. Broadway, 32d st., and 6th ave., New York, Nov. 28th, 1882. Dr. [illegible]—"Dear Sir:—About two weeks ago I purchased a bottle of '[illegible] Antidote to Malaria' for a member of my family who had been suffering from Dyspepsia for several years, and especially so for the past few weeks. Although the appetite was good, everything eaten would give pain, so that it would seem preferable to abstain almost entirely. Under these circumstances health was impaired, great weakness and nervousness were the result. Your medicine worked like magic in removing all pain and suffering; general health much improved. I take pleasure in recommending your remedy, hoping that others suffering from the same or similar troubles may find as rapid relief. Yours Truly, GARDNER S. CHAPIN, Treasurer Union Dime Savings Bank."

If there is anything that gets a woman completely deranged, it is to have her husband come home and inform her of the fact that he has met one of her old schoolmates on the street, and in reply to her question, "what did she have on?" answer, "I didn't notice."

THE NATION'S STRONG BOX.

The annual report of the Treasurer of the United States has been recently submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury. It shows that there has been a decrease during the past fiscal year from the figures for the preceding year in the receipts from customs of $5,704,238, from internal revenue of $1,777,226 and from miscellaneous sources of $968,962 and an increase in the receipts from the sales of public lands of $3,202,724. The total net revenue received during the year was $398,287,581 which is $5,237,628 less than the amount received last year. The net expenditures amounted to $265,408,137, an increase over those of 1882 of $7,426,697, and this increase, added to the amount of the decrease in receipts, makes a reduction in the amount of surplus revenue applicable to the reduction of the public debt of $12,664,366.

The gross assets were increased by $109,506,827 during the year and the excess of the cash assets of the government over its liabilities on the first of November, 1883, was $160,822,545 as compared with $135,151,688 on the same date in 1882. This increase of $30,755,715 is, however, reduced to $25,670,856 by the increase in the liabilities on account of the post-office department, in outstanding drafts and checks and disbursing officers' balances, and by the decrease in the fractional silver coin in the treasury and in the funds on deposit with national bank depositories. The general balance in the treasury increased from $143,964,893 on Sept. 30, 1882 to $163,232,463 on Sept. 30, 1883. The Treasurer recommends an appropriation to continue the distribution of fractional silver and minor coin, the appropriation made for that purpose by the act of March, 1883, having been exhausted about the first of October. He also recommends the redemption and retirement by recoinage into five-cent nickels of the three cent piece of the minor coinage.

IN THE TUNNEL.

A party of four persons were traveling on the Hudson River road one summer. In a seat was a young lady and a young gentleman who had been very attentive to her. In the seat behind them sat their friends, one of whom was a sportive young lady, fond of practical jokes and rather defiant of public opinion. As the train dashed through a short and very dark tunnel she leaned over and imprinted a resonant kiss on the cheek of the young lady in front of her. A scream followed and laughter came from the darkness all over the car. As the train ran into daylight the insulted young lady turned on her innocent escort and with snapping eyes and flaming cheeks, said:

"How dare you insult me in this manner?"

"I assure you," he said, stammering in confusion at the strangeness of his position, "that I have done nothing."

"Nothing!" she repeated, and burst into tears.

The passengers now ceased laughing and looked at the unfortunate young fellow indignantly. After further protests, which were not heeded, he went to the smoking car. The sportive young lady wrote a note the next day and explained matters. The young couple were reconciled, married, and the other young lady was not invited to their wedding.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and St. Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries." The reference to the wide resources in art and letters, commanded by St. Nicholas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is for the boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

The price is $3.00 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express order, bank check, draft or in registered letter.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Magazine begins its sixty-eighth volume with the December Number. It is the most popular illustrated periodical in America and England, always fully abreast of the times in its treatment of subjects of current social and industrial interest, and always advancing its standard of literary, artistic, and mechanical excellence. Among its attractions for 1884 are: a new serial novel by WILLIAM BLACK, illustrated by ABBEY; a new novel by E. P. ROE, illustrated by GIBSON and DIELMAN; descriptive illustrated papers by GEORGE H. BOUGHTON, FRANK D. MILLET, C. H. FARNHAM and others; important historical and biographical papers; short stories by W. D. HOWELLS, CHARLES READE, &c.

NEW YORK.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

—TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.—

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. $1 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10 an extra copy free.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

NOT GROOMSMAN.

'What time is it, Madeline?' asked Gaffer Hitchcock, carefully folding the evening paper, and placing it on the table.

The person addressed—a tall, slender woman about thirty — looked up from her knitting, and answered, with a pleasant smile.

'About half-past eight, I believe,' and, raising, began to put away her work.

Gaffer's question had been for the last six years the signal for retiring to rest, and, although it was full an hour and a half before the usual hour, Madeline never thought for a moment of hesitating to obey.

'Something has occurred,' she thought, 'and he will tell me before long,' for Gaffer had looked at his watch at eight, and a few minutes after, and at a quarter past had changed his chair, and coughed uneasily, and now he asked: 'What time is it?'

Madeline was the orphan daughter of an old schoolmate; Gaffer had taken her home with him when she was only ten years old, and his sister had cared for her with motherly solicitude, until she was wooed and won by Frank Reynolds and went to a distant city to live. Gaffer had made a terrible to-do about her marrying, called her an ungrateful good-for-nothing, and declared it was proper punishment for taking her in the beginning; but, nevertheless, spared no expense on the wedding trousseau. And when, about nine years after, she came back to her old home, widowed and childless, she was tenderly welcomed by the lonely man, for the grass waved over the grave of the good true-hearted sister.

For six years she had kept house for him, cared for him, humored him, and made everything bend to his comfort, as few daughters ever do. Lovers she had in plenty; those who would at any moment have laid heart, fortune and hand at her feet; and when Gaffer heard that Madeline had refused them, he chuckled at their discomfiture and smoothed her soft brown hair, telling her she was a good girl, every way worthy of their love only he knew she would never leave him.

He had grown so accustomed to seeing her happy, contented face by the opposite side of the fire, with some kind of work in her hands, that occupied neither brain nor attention, but left her always free to listen to him when he spoke, or play chess when the whim seized him, that he felt no fear at the attentions she received. He seldom spent an evening from home unless Madeline was with him; and he had never left his native city since she came home. He was thinking of all this to-night, as he watched her folding her work so carefully.

'What are you going to do, Madeline?' he asked at last.

'Going to put away my work,' she answered, simply.

'What are you putting it away for?'

'You asked me the time, and that is equivalent to saying, "I am tired of you Madeline; go to bed."'

'No, it ain't,' said Gaffer, gruffly; 'come back here, I want to talk with you—there, let that knitting-work alone. What is it, that you are in such a hurry to finish?'

'Stockings,' answered Madeline, sententiously; 'stockings for Madeline Reynolds.'

'Haven't you any more that you make such a fuss about this pair?'

'Yes, I have a pair on, I believe, and in case of an emergency I could borrow of you.'

Gaffer sat for a few moments in perfect silence; at last, with a violent effort and with very much the air of a man who has just made up his mind to have a tooth pulled, said:

'Maddy, I am going away.'

'Going away,' she repeated. 'Where to, pray?'

The tone of surprise in which the question was asked fully satisfied Gaffer of the importance of the revelation.

'Yes! I am going to New York; Bonnehue is going to be married on New Year's day, and wants me to be groomsman. Who would have thought old Bonnehue would have got married at last; why he's at least ten years older than I, and I most fifty. You see, Maddy, child, your old batchelor friend is not too old to get married yet. Dreadful pity leap year is most over; here I am, a hale, hearty man, in the prime of life, with plenty of money to support a wife, and no wife forthcoming. But what makes you so quiet—don't you want me to go?'

'No,' said Madeline, gravely, 'I would rather you would not go; I had made different calculations for New Year's; in fact, I rather think of getting married myself.'

'Madeline, are you crazy?' and Gaffer fairly bounded in his chair with astonishment. 'Why, what will become of the house? what will become of me? I'll starve, I know I shall!'

'You might live with me,' remarked Maddy, in the same grave, business-like tone.

'You know very well,' said Gaffer, testily, 'that I never could live with another man in the house; I should put him out before the honey-moon was over. And who may the happy man be? some blind old dotard? some conceited dawdy? some lame mendicant? some lazy vagabond, who sings love ditties to carry away Gaffer's money? or—or—'

Gaffer did not stop for breath, but for lack of sufficient expressive words to convey his detestation of the projected union.

'No,' said Madeline; 'he is not blind, or lame, or seeking after your fortune.' She hesitated for a moment, and then continued slowly: 'He is neither very young or very old, very blind or very cross, very good or very bad, very rich or very poor—but I believe he likes me.'

'Of course he has told you so in most affecting tones;' muttered Gaffer, ironically.

'No,' she said, quietly, 'he has not.'

'Madeline, are you crazy? or going into a dotage? Why did you not tell me you were so anxious to get married? and I would have advertised in all the daily papers for "a suitable lover for a widow not very far advanced in life, well preserved, and anxious to leave Gaffer Hitchcock." Why did you not tell me all this?' and his face clouded woefully. 'It's too bad, Maddy! I would never have believed you would go away again; it was bad enough to leave me when sister was here, but now, now, why Maddy! Maddy! think better of it—do, and don't leave me alone, child.'

Madeline's fingers worked nervously; how she longed for the knitting-work! 'Gaffer,' she said, without looking up, 'perhaps to-morrow you will not feel so badly about it. It is no sudden thing, my determination to get married; I have thought about it for over a year, and yet last night I would have said there was no telling when the wedding would take place.'

Poor Gaffer seemed perfectly undone at the news Madeline had imparted, but at her last words he started from his seat, and drawing up a chair, took a seat in front of her.

'It is not too late, then,' he said, his face radiant with hope. 'You can yet retreat. Oh! by the memory of past days; by the solemn agreement I entered into with your father, to guard his little girl; by all the years I have loved and striven to serve you, do not leave me now; you know that it would be taking away my life to part with you.' He took the two cold hands in his. 'Will you leave me? Dare you leave me?' Still no answer. 'If you would be happy away from me, my dear girl, say so, and Gaffer will not say another word; speak, Maddy, speak; don't mind me.'

The face of the woman was averted, but the words, though soft and tremulous, were distinctly heard by the anxious man before her.

'I never said I was going to leave you. If ever I marry again, it will be to be forever near you.'

The look of anxiety on Gaffer's face gave place to one of bewilderment, and then utter astonishment.

'Do you mean what you say?' he asked.

'I do; and it is for you to judge whether he is a blind old dotard, a conceited dandy, or after Gaffer's money.'

Then Gaffer rose, walked across the room and took his old seat, picked up the evening paper, and asked, 'what time is it?'

'Half-past nine. Good night.'

'Good night,' he answered, as if nothing had occurred; and Madeline put the knitting in her work-basket and left the room.

The next morning, at the usual hour, the bell was rung, and Gaffer walked down to the breakfast table, in dressing-gown and slippers, to see Madeline arranging cups and saucers in her own quiet, precise way; they talked very quietly together until Madeline asked:

'When are you going to New York, Gaffer?'

'Not till after the first of the month; for I expect to be married on New Year's day myself.'

There was nothing more said, and if Maddy ate little, Gaffer ate less.

'Maddy,' he said, when they had adjourned to the library, 'you are a very sensible girl, and I never knew before last night that I needed a wife; but I am fifteen years older than you, and what will the world say?'

'You suit me,' she answered, putting up her face for a kiss; 'and we will not invite the "world" to the wedding.'

KNEW HIS PAP, BUT NOT HIS MOTHER!

A few days ago a stock dealer from Flora, Ill., arrived in Cincinnati with a couple of car loads of stock, which he disposed of to good advantage. While down about the Ohio and Mississippi depot, over which road his stock had arrived, a pair of bunko sharps sized him up and concluded he was just the man they were looking for, and that they would turn an "honest" penny or so by bunkoing the sucker. So number one approached him and said, in the most cordial manner possible, at the same time holding out his hand: 'Why, how do you do, Mr. Black? When did you get here?'

The stock-dealer said to the nice young man: 'I guess you are mistaken. My name isn't Black but Joe Brown, and I am from Flora, Ill. I came here yesterday with a couple of cars of stock and sold out to-day and made a little money.'

'Oh,' said the nice young man, 'you must excuse me. I thought you were an old friend of mine by the name of Black who lives in Indianapolis.'

'No harm done, mister,' said the stock man, as he turned around and started up the street.

He had not gone more than a couple of blocks, however, before nice young man number two came up all smiles, held out his hand and shaking hands, said: 'Why, I'm real glad to see you, Mr. Brown. When did you leave Flora, and how is father?'

Said Brown, looking the nice young man over from head to feet: 'I left Flora a couple of days ago and brought some stock to the city, but I'll be gosh darned if I can tell you how your pap is, for I don't know him.'

'Don't know my father in Flora,' said the slick young man; 'why, he's president of the National Bank there; you must certainly know John Thompson.'

'Oh, ho, so you say John Thompson, president of the First National bank at Flora, is your pap?'

'Yes, I do,' said the nice young man.

'Well, then, if that's the case, I know your pap—you bet your bottom dollar I do. I have known him all my life; but see here, if Thompson is your pap, who in h—l is your mammy, for old John was never married?'

The nice young man suddenly left.

SPRING ELECTIONS IN TOWNSHIPS.

According to a supplement to the act of the Legislature entitled "An act concerning townships and township officers," passed in 1882, the Board of Freeholders may change the date of the annual Spring elections "in the townships of any county of this State" from the second Tuesday in March, as at present to the second Tuesday in April, the different officers in positions at the time of such change to hold over during the intervening month, until their successors are elected; the election to be held thereafter on the second Tuesday in April of each year. This is to be found in chapter 81, laws of 1882. At a meeting of the Passaic Board of Freeholders last week a numerously signed petition was presented asking that the time of holding the annual town meeting in Pompton township be thus changed, and a resolution was adopted at the meeting authorizing such change not only in Pompton, but in West Milford, the inhabitants of which latter township also had expressed their desire for a change, through their representative, Freeholder Vreeland—providing it should be found lawful to change the time of holding the election in one or more townships of a county and not in all at the same time. The question here involved was subsequently submitted to County Counsel Drury, who is of the opinion that the change, as proposed, cannot legally be made. He thinks the law clearly contemplates a change, if any, is made throughout the entire county, and not in individual townships. Also that if once made there can be no subsequent return to the former day of holding elections, unless through recourse to further legislation, as the last clause of the supplement provides that in case of a change the elections must be held thereafter on the second Tuesday in April. The other townships of the county are understood to desire no change in this respect.

"We have struck a smoother road, haven't we?" asked a passenger of a conductor on an Arkansas railway. "No," replied the conductor, "we have only run off the track."

THE BEAUTIFUL SUNSETS.

Several explanations have been made from time to time of the beautiful sunrises and sunsets with which this city and all the surrounding neighborhood has been favored. The latest was made at the American Astronomical Institute. One of the members thought that the phenomenon was due to the fact that the earth was passing through clouds of meteoric dust. This view was confirmed by the fact that there had been an extraordinary number of large and brilliant meteors noticed in England and America during the last two or three weeks.

Professor Brooks confirmed this view when he described a wonderful flight of telescopic meteors he saw. The earth was now passing through a portion of space particularly rich in meteoric matters. Professor Oakley attributed the phenomenon to the moisture with which the lower strata of the atmosphere have been loaded during the last month. Through that cloud of moisture the rays of the sun struggled.

SEASIDE vs MOUNTAIN.

For several years past the tide of summer travel has been gradually tending mountainward and away from the overdone fashionable centers at sea and spring and lake. They crave rather, the free unhampered life and surroundings of the uplands and mountains, and seeking for it, they find it to their exceeding comfort and increased strength and health. The great crowds that have peopled the mountains the past summer prove the fallacy of the reasoning, wherewith they of the sea and others, have solaced themselves for want of patronage. If it was cold and raw and chill at the shore, and on the plains, surely it was more so on the mountains, and if lack of business and economy dictated a staying at home from the shore, equally so would the same causes prompt people from coming to the mountains. The truth is, the weather was simply glorious at the sea and on the mountain, and such as to invite and allure everybody away from city and town and daily home life, to take and enjoy a wholesome change. And while business has not had the usual activity of the few years past, it has not been depressed by any serious hurt, or to a point where it would demand a denial of the necessary vacation through the hot months.

A FRIGHTENED WITNESS.

Oakey Hall cites the following case among his reminiscences:

On one occasion a witness, to all mortal conclusions, perjured himself, and yet he seemed cool and natural. Presently the recorder of the Court turned in his peculiar, affable way, and said:

'My friend, the room is not hot, the day is cold, and yet you are in a perspiration—are you not?

There was no signs of this, but the witness instantly caught up his handkerchief and began to mechanically wipe his forehead.

'Are you ill? You look so ill?'

He responded by turning pale and gulping down some water.

Here the counsel for the defence showing signs of wishing to interfere, being afraid of his witness breaking down, but the Recorder interposed with:

'Sorry to have agitated you but my duty is like yours,' (the Recorder had an impressive voice,) 'to ascertain nothing but the truth.'

The witness turned and said: 'Please let me go. I am indeed ill.'

His testimony was withdrawn by consent.

At the conclusion of the case the Recorder said to me:

'I knew he was committing perjury, for he had a peculiar tremor of the eyelids, which, from my nearness to a witness, I can always see. And this tremor may generally be noticed in men and women who are lying.'

I GOT IT.

O h
d o y o u
this great big boot, belonging to an ugly brute? It weighs a ton or more I guess;
it gave me one parting caress. I loved a damsel, she was fair as sunshine in the autumn air. One evening I did gladly whirl into the domain of my girl. We talked of love, I called her dove; we met down to the gate to spoon, beneath the gleam of harvest moon. I pressed a kiss upon her lips. It was so sweet I gave another
sip. Oh! then he came,
the owner of this boot
the same. I felt a pressure sore and quick, so sudden that it made me sick. Ten feet into the air I flew, and dropped into the horse pond too. I swore with all my might and main, I never would make love, no never again unto a maid whose pa he wore— it isn't fun—a boot that weighed almost a ton.

—Whitehall Times.

Admiral Farragut, than whom the navy has never boasted a purer patriot and a braver man, attributed his success to the vow he early made and always kept, to never taste intoxicating drinks.

"Pause," said the highly cultivated Boston girl to her lover, who was about to kill a mosquito. "Pause; in the balanced and admirably economy of Nature, men cannot interfere without disarranging the whole order of things." And he paused.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

THE KEY NOTE.

Speaker Carlisle upon assuming his seat as presiding officer of the House of Representatives struck the key note of Democracy by declaring:—

"What the country has a right to expect is strict economy in the administration of every department of the Government."

"Just and equal taxation for public purposes."

"A faithful observance of the limitations of the Constitution."

"A scrupulous regard for the rights and interests of the great body of the people, in order that they may be protected, as far as Congress has power to protect them, against encroachments from every direction."

Such concisely expresses the true mission of the Democratic party, and to win success, it is essential that party leaders shall be fearless and outspoken, untrammeled by selfish interests of any kind, and enlisted only for the honor of Democracy and the glory of country through the enhanced and permanent welfare of all the people.

It is time for the Democratic party to boldly assume an aggressive attitude, and moving forward with steady tread, under its own distinctive banner, to fight with determination for the overthrow of every species of public injustice, extravagance and corruption, thereby re-investing governmental affairs with the plain, practical and honest character the Fathers of the Republic designed they should ever bear.

No observing and fact respecting citizen can or will deny the necessity of Reform, and the absolute lopping of many evils which have been permitted to grow and fasten their poisonous fangs upon the body of popular freedom.

Such evils are clearly manifest, and becoming more and more defiantly hostile to the rights and privileges of the people.

Democrats! Keeping step to the music of the Constitution, march resolutely forward!

It is understood that in the coming term of the State Legislature an effort will be made to repeal the law against special legislation. It has frequently been found to operate to great disadvantage, since a general law cannot always, in the nature of things, adjust itself to special conditions, and the locality has thus been deprived the benefits which a special law would confer.

To imagine a more horrible story than the confession of Samon, the Laconia, N. H., murderer, would indeed be difficult. He first killed Mrs. Ford, put her body in a trunk, and carried it to the house of the Roddys. They received him, and the trunk was taken in with him, they being in ignorance of its fearful contents. Unable to sleep through fear of consequences that would follow the murder of Mrs. Ford, he in a frenzy of despair killed the Roddys and sought to wipe out all evidence of his crime by burning the house and his victims with it. Of all the atrocities lately recorded this stands pre-eminent in horror.

IT'S ALL SETTLED NOW.

According to the Dover Iron Era, the Republican party need not go, since the Democrats have nominated Carlisle for Speaker. That journal quotes the opinions of several prominent members of large iron firms, who are of the unanimous opinion that the nomination of Carlisle will injure the Democratic party and insure the election of a Republican President in 1884. Well, we are glad the question is settled—in their minds. Now wave that bloody shirt some more, gentlemen.

CONGRESS AND O'DONNELL.

Mr. Hewitt, of New York, introduced in the House on Monday the following resolution: That this House bring to the notice of the President the case of Patrick O'Donnell, claiming to be a citizen of the United States, and now under sentence of death in Great Britain, in the hope that the President may secure such reasonable delay in the execution of the sentence as will enable the President to ascertain whether the said O'Donnell is a citizen of the United States, and if so, whether he was tried and convicted in accordance with the provisions of municipal laws of Great Britain and the requirements of international law. The resolution was adopted.

THE VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.

The State Board of Canvassers met at Trenton Tuesday afternoon of last week. Senators Merritt and Carpenter were appointed to read the returns, which were compared with the list prepared in advance by the Secretary of State. It was necessary to make only one or two trivial corrections. From the table below, which shows what the vote was in each county for each of the Gubernatorial candidates, it will be seen that Abbett's majority over Dixon is 6,809. The vote was as follows:

	Dem. Abbett.	Rep. Dixon.	Pro. Parsons.	Gr'nbk Urner
Atlantic	1807	2069	206	56
Bergen	3368	2130	66	19
Burlington	5606	5661	624	[illegible]
Camden	4980	5042	420	13
Cape May	703	736	203	21
Cumberland	3021	3661	66	[illegible]
Essex	15,107	17,804	186	286
Gloucester	2667	2668	84	144
Hudson	15,293	12,089	26	26
Hunterdon	4491	2657	495	194
Mercer	4589	6619	161	79
Middlesex	5005	4274	186	[illegible]
Monmouth	7113	5686	82	873
Morris	3709	4329	306	196
Ocean	1024	1566	5	47
Passaic	3464	5748	184	30
Salem	2619	2094	130	69
Somerset	2947	2622	29	97
Sussex	2967	1728	100	167
Union	4064	4844	16	265
Warren	4405	2611	250	127
	103,856	97,047	4153	[illegible]

Abbett's majority over Dixon is therefore 6,809.

STATE ITEMS.

If the first three days of December are a sign, the winter will be a pleasant one.

New Jersey is the only State in the Union that can boast of having no State tax.

The Millville Herald, a Democratic newspaper, which was started in 1872, has been compelled to discontinue publication.

John I. Blair, of Blairstown, Warren county, is rated as the richest man in the State. He is put down as worth $15,000,000.

J. M. Patterson and Thos. A. Moore, of Woodbury, are said to have patented a glass bottle stopper for which they have refused $50,000.

Vineland's Fire Company has been strengthened by the addition of twenty firemen, 150 feet of new hose, new couplings and a speaking trumpet.

Lawyer Vaneycle, who was so badly beaten by editor Cheesman, at Bridgeton, is said to be in no possible danger, and will be about in a few days.

The 108th session of the State Legislature will begin on the 8th of January, and the inauguration of Gov. Abbett will take place on the 15th of Jan.

David Dickerson, of Chatham, has produced "grafted hickory nuts," which are of superior quality. The idea is a new one, and he believes it will be extensively copied.

The New Jersey Civil Service Association will make an effort for the enactment, during the approaching session of the Legislature, of a record bill, similar to the one passed last winter in New York.

Application will be made to the Legislature at the next session for the formation of "The Farmers and Citizens' Game Protective Society of Atlantic county," to act independently of the West Jersey Game Protective Society.

The Sunday Globe is the title of a new paper for journalistic favors published at Camden, N. J., with the name of A. J. Milliette, T. C. Hamilton and J. T. Rowland as editors and publishers. The Globe is a handsomely printed and well edited sheet and deserves success.

A corps of civil engineers have arrived in Flatbrookville, Sussex county, making a survey for a new railroad from the Delaware Water Gap to a point on the line of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad called Carpenter's Point, where the State lines of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey come together. The new road will be thirty-seven miles long and will be built by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. It will follow the Delaware river the entire distance.

George Smith, who said that he lived in New York, applied at the Jersey City station for lodging. He was informed that there were no accommodations there for lodgers and he went away. Shortly he returned carrying a roll of muslin which he threw on the desk, saying: "You will have to send me up now; I stole that." Smith said that he was dying of consumption, and having neither home nor friends, he wanted to be sent to jail where he could get something to eat and a place to sleep.

Lizzie Berry, a handsome young woman of 22 years, and living with her family on the Polify road, near Hackensack, started in company with her brother for New York to witness the sights. At the Hackensack station of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad she stopped to visit the post office, and in attempting to recross the track in front of the 9.12 a. m. train she was knocked down by the engine and cut to pieces. Many who were about to take the same train were so shocked that they returned home.

U. S. Senator McPherson's address at Washington is the Arlington Hotel, and Senator Sewell's 1501 I street.

John Koop, the self-confessed murderer of Amanda Fisch, at Perth Amboy last Summer, and who was arrested at Philadelphia by Chief of Police Col. Fauratt, of New Brunswick, has been indicted for murder by the Middlesex Grand Jury. The queer part of the story is, however, that Koop now denies the story, and the woman Fisch has been found alive at Quakertown, Pa. Who the murdered woman at Perth Amboy was, is now another mystery.

* * *

A remarkable conspiracy was brought to light in New York recently. A secret organization of grocery clerks was discovered, whose members were each pledged to steal $125 monthly from their employers. The money went into a common fund, from which members were allowed weekly benefits in sickness, or a fixed sum to start in business for themselves. It is commonly believed that adulterations in groceries have already reached the safety limit; but if proprietors of grocery stores are compelled to get back from their customers the losses they suffer from dishonest clerks, we may look for sugar that is all sand.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Oliver J. Rose, a Stanhope boy, trapped a rabbit weighing four pounds.

Last week Jesse Reeves, of Port Elizabeth, Cumberland county, killed a white deer, being the second one killed in that vicinity during the season.

The outcry raised some months since that a Mr. Silk, an Englishman, and a pisciculturist, had stolen 10,000 young black bass from Greenwood Lake, appears to have been a false alarm. In all he obtained 2,000 small fish, and these he bought and paid for.

A movement is on foot for presenting to the next Legislature a petition asking for the repeal of the West Jersey Game Protective Society's charter. The present difficulty existing between the Pennsylvania and New Jersey members of the organization is the cause of this action.

There has probably been more small game killed in Sussex County this season than for several years past. A party of three returned to Newark a few days ago with one hundred and twenty rabbits, besides other game. They killed their game on the borders of Sussex and Warren county.

At the meeting of the West Jersey Game Protective Society, held on the 6th inst, at Heilemann's hall, Camden, N. J. Charles H. Barnard of Gloucester City was declared elected secretary for the ensuing year. The following directors were elected: For Atlantic county, Wm. Risley; Cape May, Lawrence Peterson; Cumberland, Thomas W. Walker.

George Powell, a storekeeper at Tuckahoe, Cape May county, gave chase to a young deer that passed his store recently, and caught it by the hind legs as it stumbled on the edge of some brush. With the aid of a friend he secured it alive, and sold it to Mr. Gladding, at Market and Water streets, Philadelphia, for $20. This is equal to the boys in the mountains of Sussex catching trout with their hands.

There is splendid duck shooting on the Potomac now and this kind of game is a glut in the market on account of its abundance. All kinds, from the little red head to that epicurean delight, the canvas back, are to be found in large quantities about five miles below the city, and its no uncommon sight to see dealers from the market trying to get rid of their superfluous stock by peddling wagon loads through the streets.

ALL FOR NOTHING

Why the Doctor was Disgusted, and what might have been done without him.

"Well, wife," said Dr. E——, as he entered his house, which was situated in a cozy village in central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man wouldn't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the simpleton had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, swallowing the steaming tea which his wife had just poured for him.

Doctor E—— was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. In all diseases capable of being affected by a plaster Benson's acts efficiently and at once. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents. THE new Opera House at Yonkers, N. Y., was begun since ours, yet it is now all plastered, artists are painting the scenery and it is advertised to open January 15.

THE Somerset county court has shown its good sense by the re-appointment of Mr. P. V. Weaver as one of its Constables. He is the right man in the right place, every time.

REV. FATHER O'BOYLE, from the church "Star of the Sea," Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered a lecture on the "Immaculate Conception," at St. Mary's Church, last Sunday evening.

THE concerts of the Plainfield Vocal Society will attract larger gatherings than any other entertainment offered. Seats are sold way back into the Sunday school room of the Park avenue church.

THE fine display of West's statuettes, and other holiday gifts in M. Estil's show windows on Park avenue, attracts the attention of passers by. Mr. Estil has the reputation of selling low for cash.

THE lecture of Geo. W. Bain, Esq., on "Temperance", and that of the Rev. Rob't Lowry, on "Cardinal Wolsey," in the Methodist and Park avenue Baptist churches respectively last evening, undoubtedly drew large houses of appreciative citizens.

THE Plainfield Turn Verein at its hall on Second street, this (Thursday) evening, is enjoying one of its evening sociables. The great event of this society, however, is its Fourth Annual Ball, to occur at VanDeventer Hall, Monday evening the 24th inst.

THE Warren Mission thoroughly deserves the aid it asks of the public to assure the success of the Mission Christmas Festival. In another column on this page will be noticed its appeal and to which the liberal hearted of our citizens should reply with generous assistance.

MR. CHARLES SMITH having leased for five years from April 1st the entire corner of Front and Somerset streets, will lower the floors and convert the premises into a commodious saloon, handsomely furnished and supplied with every desire of his large list of patrons.

AT a meeting of the town commissioners held recently it was resolved to build a prison at Woodbridge. The building is now finished, and all tramps will be quartered there at night and obliged to work on the public road the next day to pay for their board and lodging.

MR. HUGH O'DONNELL having just purchased the Seaman stables on Sixth street, is offering the very best of accommodations for boarding horses and guarantees careful attention. Anyone desiring to engage carriages for calling or driving, should favor him with their patronage.

AN old-fashioned man from the mountain was in this city a few days since, and saw a pair of dudes promenading on Front street. He eyed them with deep interest until they turned the corner, when he was heard to say: "Gosh! what things a feller sees when he hain't got his gun."

MR. JOSEPH T. DUNHAM, formerly of this city where he was born and brought up, is the patentee of a combination tag and envelope that is endorsed by the leading business houses of the country. By its use the invoice is sent with the goods and postage saved, while other advantages commend it to shippers.

RESIDENTS of the South-side will be glad to learn from the announcement of Bowers & Co. on our second page to-day, that a full line of the best candies at uniformly low prices, as well as a large assortment of nuts, fruits etc. for the holiday season, can be procured at their establishment on the corner Peace and Fifth streets.

APPLICATION will be made to the next Legislature for the enactment of a special law for the county of Monmouth, to prevent injury or damage of live stock, by keeping or allowing to be kept any nest, or hive, or other receptacle for insects capable of stinging such live stock, within 500 yards of the field, or other place in which such live stock is kept.

THE Directors of the Plainfield Public Library would be glad to receive from the citizens of Plainfield and the friends of the library at large, contributions for the library of books or volumes suitable for either reading, study or reference. All persons having spare books will, by placing them on the library shelves, materially aid this, one of the most beneficial of Plainfield's public enterprises.

METUCHEN has a "Village Improvement Society," the main object of the members of which is to arouse public spirit in the town and awake an interest on the part of the citizens, to improve and keep in order their own property, to bring a moral influence to bear, that will encourage the people and especially every property owner to do all in their power to bring about the necessary improvements, and not to interfere with existing taxation.

A WELL planed conspiracy for the wholesale liberation of all the prisoners in the Union County Jail was discovered recently. Four fine steel saws of the most delicate workmanship, a file of the latest and most approved pattern and a razor were found on two of the prisoners, and a close inspection of the window bars in the interior of the jail showed that operations for a general break-out had been made. It is believed that confederates of the prisoners were diligently working on the outside.

THE suspended National Bank of Rahway has again resumed business, with Abram F. Shotwell as President, M. W. Brett, Cashier, in the place of T. W. Shotwell. Hon. B. M. Price succeeds Frederick Shotwell in the Board of Directors. A large amount of money was deposited by different business men of the city Saturday morning, more, it is reported, than was taken out by the run. A notice has been issued that the annual election for Directors of this Bank for the ensuing year, will be held at the banking house, on Tuesday, January 8, 1884, between the hours of 12 m. and 1 p. m.

THE newly-elected officers of the city are all sworn in.

THE regular meeting of the Union Club will be held next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock.

THE National Republican Convention is to be held in Chicago, Tuesday, June 3d, 1884.

THE Rev. A. V. V. Raymond will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church, next Sunday.

A LADY was almost run over, one day this week, by the mail wagon that is allowed to rattle over our sidewalks.

THE most awful pun of modern times is going the rounds. It is thus: "Maryland, have you seen Dela wear her new Jersey yet?"

DEMAREST the Front street grocer will furnish you anything desired in his line at the most reasonable prices. Fruits and nuts in large assortment.

YOU can buy any book published at a lower price than of the publishers, at the rooms of the Central Book Agency, Front street facing Park avenue.

IF you don't believe he knows how to do it, look at the way Rockfellow has dressed his window at the corner of Park and North avenues, with tempting dainties.

THE Central Times of this week publishes an article on roads showing what might be done in Plainfield to rid it of its greatest curse—rough and muddy thoroughfares.

SOME person must have been "flush" of money Monday night last, as on Tuesday morning early, two or three parties picked up bills of small denominations on the sidewalk corner Front and Somerset streets.

THERE will be an extra rehearsal of the Plainfield Vocal Society, this evening. The last before the coming concert will be in the Park avenue church next Tuesday evening, to which will be admitted only the escorts of the chorus.

PECK'S window this year surpasses all previous efforts. The little ones are delighted with it, and even older folk find it entertaining to look at. Besides this attraction there are even greater ones inside—holiday goods in large variety at low prices.

WEDNESDAY morning last the sun shone quite warmly, the sparrows chirped merrily, the grass looked fresh and green, and a down-trodden son of sunny Italy ground "Spring gentle Spring" from a hand-organ before our office door.

ALREADY candidates "loom" for the positions of City Clerk, Street Commissioner, Overseer of the poor, etc., for the coming year. There's plenty of time, gentlemen. The majority of you will be left, so don't be in a hurry.

NINETEEN years experience as a news-dealer in this city enables Mr. William H. Williams, at No. 7 Park avenue, to assure the public of his ability to supply them with the newspapers and periodicals of the day, promptly and at prices entirely satisfactory. Read elsewhere what he offers.

Only the Ward Councilmen.

It is only the Councilmen elected from Wards who are to determine by lot which shall serve the long or short term, and not the Councilmen-at-large.

Governor-Elect Abbett's Rooms.

Governor-elect Abbett has engaged a suit of rooms at the Trenton House for himself and family. Room 16 will be the room for the reception of visitors.

A Corporation with a Soul.

J. Warren Brown, of Westfield, dropped a $2 50 gold piece in the money-box of a cross-town car, No. 100 on Twenty-third street, New York, on Saturday. He wrote a letter of inquiry to the Company and Monday the identical coin was returned to him.

Out Before Christmas.

Wednesday was sentence day at Elizabeth and this is what the boys got. Charles Ulrich, assault, 10 days; Thos. Moore, assault, 10 days; Wm. Conners, assault, suspended sentence; Patrick Day, selling liquor to minors, judgment of lower Court sustained.

A Relic.

Mr. Wallace Vail of this city has in his possession the commutation ticket used by his father, Stephen Vail, over the Central Railroad of New Jersey, when the road was first built, in 1842. The style of the ticket then used is much different from the present.

Instigating a Strike.

If Councilman Marsh succeeds in persuading the Council to authorize the repairing of the running and striking "departments" of the Town Clock, he will be only accomplishing one of the many desired reforms we are assured he contemplates during the coming year.

The Usual Success.

We neglected last week to mention a fact which every body knows—the Thanksgiving dance and entertainment of the Plainfield Saengerbund, was most enjoyable in every particular and entirely successful. The floor managers were Messrs Charles Meyer and A. Scheidler, and Prof. Frazee led the music.

Just the Scheme.

The townsmen of North Plainfield—our neighbors who unfortunately live over the brook—need a lock-up, a town-hall for primaries etc., a court-room, and in fact just the building for many public uses that can be secured by the purchase of the old public school property on Harmony street. Buy it, gentlemen!

What The Hotel Does.

Mr. W. Randolph, now stopping at the Hotel Netherwood, has purchased the Briggs cottage near the hotel and after completing the repairs he contemplates, will take possession with his family, who now reside in Richmond, Va. This makes the sixth cottage that has been sold or rented at Netherwood since the Hotel opened and there is very fair prospect of considerable additional building in that vicinity in the Spring.

One Man's Philanthrophy.

The property at the corner of Park avenue and Eighth street, directly opposite the residence of A. C. Baldwin, Esq., is now owned by Mr. Job Male, who intends erecting thereon a building to be used as an art gallery and library. This same philanthropic gentleman, who has done so much for the beauty of that part of the city, offers to erect a club house of any design to suit in every particular the taste and desires of the Union Club, upon that association signing a lease to occupy it for a term of years.

Regarding Unity Lodge Reception.

In our report last week of the Unity Lodge reception we inadvertently omitted, among the names of those who took part in the exercises, that of Miss Lizzie Marsh, who gave a very entertaining recitation. Notwithstanding a severe cold with which the lady was suffering at the time, her part was rendered in an excellent manner, and elicited appreciative applause from the audience. Unity Lodge at their last convention passed a resolution of thanks to those who volunteered to make the programme of their entertainment so interesting.

Afraid to Go.

One of our gallant police force was requested, Tuesday evening, to go down in the Boulevard and arrest a resident who was beating his wife to death. He said "I can't leave my beat. The Captain will go down and get him in the morning." He was right. The Captain got him, and "him" got 80 days.

At the Park House.

The Park House is filled for the winter—but a few rooms being vacant—and besides the life imparted it by the guests, is becoming quite the fashionable place for the holding of sociables and evening dances by residents of the vicinity. Thursday evening, Miss Clara M. Thompson, of La Grande avenue, entertained a number of her friends in the parlors.

Why They Need a Lock-up.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock of Wednesday evening, "Shamrock," the owner of the trotting horse "Bullfrog," attempted to club life out of the animal with a spade, on Somerset street. This sort of thing was stopped by the interference of spectators, and the horse was led away from its brutal tormentor. That's another occasion which calls for a North Plainfield Lock-up.

"Great Deeds of Great Men."

The last lecture of the course in the Methodist church, will be given Tuesday evening, December 18th, by Charles H. Fowler. Dr. Fowler's power over an audience is too well known in Plainfield to make a description necessary. His lecture on "Great Deeds of Great Men," which is to be given Tuesday evening, is his best. Every body ought to hear it. Tickets with reserved seats may be secured at Reynolds' Pharmacy for 50 cents.

Those Turkeys.

And now we are informed that it was our young friend David Smalley, who sold Mr. Bintz those splendid Thanksgiving turkeys instead of "Uncle David." While, probably, it makes no difference to the reader which one it was, it does to young David, who prides himself on keeping as fine a meat and poultry stand on Somerset street as can be found anywhere, and therefore he desires the public to know where the Thanksgiving poultry came from.

Week of Prayer, 1884.

The week of Prayer commences with the first Sunday in the year, January 6th, and the general arrangements of topics is as follows:

Monday, January 7—Praise and Thanksgiving.

Tuesday, January 8—Confession of Sin, and Prayer for Cleansing the Renewal.

Wednesday, January 9—Prayer for Families and Instructions of Youth.

Thursday, January 10—Prayer for the Church of Christ.

Friday, January 11—Intercession for the Nations.

Saturday, January 12—Prayer for Missions at Home and Abroad.

This is the general series of topics, and sub-divisions may be made according to the wishes of pastors and churches.

Monogram Collectors.

A new wrinkle among the ladies is to secure a collection of monograms of their male friends, which are engraved on, in imitation of coin, and arranged in a pyramid or circle, and worn as an ornament instead of a breast pin, but which answers the purpose very well. Where there are several in collection, as is usually the case, the centre piece is said to usually contain the monogram of the one for whom the young lady entertains the highest regard, although for good and sufficient reasons this may be replaced by another piece of silver and of course another monogram. A number of young ladies are endeavoring to out-do each other in securing a collection of these keepsakes. There is said to be much sport in it, and in many cases the young gentlemen are only to anxious to oblige.

The First Vocal.

The first of the three subscription concerts of the Plainfield Vocal Society, to be rendered at the Park avenue church, next Thursday evening, will, we believe, introduce to our public a well balanced, and most efficiently trained chorus, in a very judiciously selected programme of glees and part-songs. These will include Rheinberger's "King Eric," Louis' "Waken Lords and Ladies Gay," Stewart's "Bells of St. Michael's," Hatton's "He that hath a pleasant face" and Hensel's "Woodland Valley." The gem of the evening, however, is to be Gounod's Messe Solennelle. The soloists are all well know to us, and all favorites. They are Mme Clementine Lasar-Studwell, soprano, Mr. Wm. E. Dennison, tenor, and Mr. E. W. Bray, bass. The accompanists will be Miss Blanche Fitzhugh and Mr. H. E. Benedict.

Mistaken Again.

The Central Times of yesterday says:

"As for the enforcement of the liquor law; nothing has been done whatever * * * One or two ridiculous attempts were made in the early part of the year to convict illicit sellers, but nothing came of them."

The truth is that in the prosecution of liquor sellers this year, the City for the first time within our memory has been successful in the Court of Appeal. After a vigorous contest in the City Court, the liquor seller was found guilty of selling liquor to minors—the worst phase of liquor selling—and a fine of $50 imposed. Three lawyers defended the case, and an appeal was taken with the hope of finding some technical loop-hole of escape, but none could be found, and the higher court, after a new trial, and elaborate argument, gave its judgment, Wednesday, in favor of the city with added costs.

Mr. Locke Richardson's Recital.

If any remedy has been applied, its effect upon the acoustic properties of the Park avenue Baptist church was not apparent last Thursday evening. After testing the ability to hear distinctly, or even to hear at all, in various parts of the auditorium, a choice of conclusions was forced upon the writer—either that experiment had augmented the difficulty, or that Mr. Locke Richardson's reputation as an elocutionist was questionable. The church was crowded, and although many left during the intermission because they could not hear or understand, those more fortunately seated seemed greatly interested and correspondingly entertained. The next of the Course will be Mr. Wm. I Marshall's great lecture entitled "An evening in Wonderland, or the Yellowstone National Park," illustrated with the stereopticon. It will occur Thursday evening, the 27th inst.

Codington-Runyon.

The fashionable circles of Morris and Somerset counties' society were in a flutter of excitement on Thanksgiving Day—the occasion being the marriage, at Millington church, of Miss Rachel Runyon, only daughter of Isaac S. Runyon, to William H. Codington, Esq., a member of the law firm of Jackson & Codington of this city. The day was all that could be desired and the sun shone with all the brightness that could be asked for by the most superstitious. The beautiful little church was filled to its utmost capacity and seldom, if ever, was there present a congregation where youth and beauty and fashion so abounded. The marriage service was performed by the Rev. Mr. Gibbs. Afterwards about seventy favored ones adjourned to the residence of the bride's parents where a reception was given in honor of the event. It is the intention, we are informed, of the happy couple to become residents of this city.

Information Wanted.

Letters have been received by Postmaster Pope, of this city, from residents of Spearfish, Dakota Territory, asking information regarding one Frederic C. Graham, who died at the above place November 11th. From letters found upon deceased's person, directed from Plainfield, N. J., it is inferred that he had relatives living here. The letters bore no signature, but were evidently from a near relative, possibly his mother. Any information given to the Post Office authorities here will be forwarded to those making inquiries.

Telephone and Messenger Service Combined.

Through the medium of new wires, telephone subscribers are now in direct connection with Jersey City, Elizabeth, Rahway and New Brunswick, and from the former station connection is made with New York and other points. Also, at the central office in Plainfield, messengers are now at call for any light work—delivering messages, invitations or parcels, distributing hand-bills, carrying mail and for many other purposes. The rates are fixed at 10 cents for a delivery within one-half mile of the office, and 30 cents per hour for continued service.

He Wont Make Calls This Year.

Councilman-elect C. D. Wadsworth, Esq., sent for an officer, Friday evening last, to take in charge a man found loitering around his premises. One of the force received the summons and hunted up the rest of the force; then the two found and lighted a lantern, and meandered up Peace street and wandered around through the outskirts of the city with the evident intention of coming up on their victim from behind and seizing the villain unawares. While this performance was going on Captain Chase heard of the matter and at once went after the man and locked him up. He gave the Mayor his name the next morning and His Honor gave him 60 days.

Right You Are, Curtis!

A report having gone abroad that ex-Judge George M. Curtis, of N. Y. city, was to conduct the prosecution of Jas. Nutt, for the murder of Nicholas L. Dukes, the traducer of his sister and murderer of his father, the ex-Judge last week sent the following characteristic letter to Edward C. Allison, of Uniontown, Pa., who represents the prosecuting authorities in the case:

> NEW YORK, Dec. 4, 1883.
> MY DEAR SIR—When I telegraphed you that I would come to Uniontown I thought you wanted me for the defence. Under no circumstances would I join in the prosecution of the boy. Money cannot tempt me. I believe he did right. Yours or I would have done the same. I hope he will be acquitted. With the able bar that represents the defense, the result ought to be in no doubt.
> Yours truly,
> GEORGE M. CURTIS.

Personalia.

Mr. William H. Brower started for Arizona Territory last week to be absent some time on business.

The announcement is out of the approaching marriage of Carrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Laing, of this city, and Mr. David A. Zeagler, of Denver, Col. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the brides parents on Fourth street, West, next Thursday evening at eight o'clock.

Mr. Thomas D. Winchester, for so many years the popular proprietor of the Western Hotel, Courtlandt street, has leased the Brower House, on Broadway, corner of Twenty-eighth street, New York city, and assumed proprietorship of the same. The many friends of Mr. Winchester, in this section, will no doubt be glad to learn of this new venture, and will call upon him when in the city.

Fire Board Meeting.

After the numerous failures for want of a quorum, the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department again met in regular meeting, Tuesday evening last. Present—Messrs VanWinkle, Gillies, Depew, Jones and Fisig. The minutes of the last meeting (Oct. 9th) were read and approved after correction. Mr. Jones from the Com. on Wells, reported that two steamers had found the supply of water at the corner of Front and Somerset streets inexhaustible. Also from the special committee on the building of Warren Engine House, reporting the work as done and approving as correct the several bills for the same amounting to $1,089 79. The following election of new firemen was then confirmed: George Cook and Thomas Keller of No. 2 Eng. Co., Frank Church and Henry Haurand of No. 1 Eng. Co., Charles Trotter of Zephyr H. & L. Co. The following claims were presented and ordered paid: Berry & Thorn, $27.62; Ecmonds Bros., $119.41; Jno. A. Thickstun, $22.30; Chas. Seibie, $4.50; Weed & Hall, $49.85; Geo. Keller, 75; Geo. Collins, $46.50; A. D. Cook & Bro. $167 44; T. O. Doane, $209.13; P. V. Weaver, $5.75; J. P. Hoffman, $4.95 and $36 65; J. V. Whitlock, $5; A. V. Rossell, $1.50; Robert Skinner, $6.00; L. M. French, $153; Carney Bros., $92.29; Thos. Jennings, $1.50; Henry Bilyeu, $3.29; E. Manning, $1.90; M. Hamilton, $6; Jos. Noel, 1; M. Estil, $3.70; Plainfield Gas Light Co. for quarter ending Dec. 1st, $87.30, re'fd to Com. on Repairs and Supplies for examination and payment by Treasurer if found correct. Some discussion arose upon the question of exempting firemen from [illegible] of taxation. Mr. Jones held that every fireman was so exempt immediately upon his election, while Mr. Gillies thought a new member should be first tried and proved an active fireman before the certificate was granted. Mr. Depew thought that every member in the year 1883 was entitled to an exemption from the taxes of that year. The Secretary, on motion, was authorized to issue a certificate to every person who shall have been a fireman when the assessment for the year was made and approved. Further bills were presented and ordered paid as follows: Jas. Macbeth & Co., $16; W. B. Gransel, $25; Runyon & Leonard, $10.75; Wm. C. Davis, $1.20; Alex Gee, $2; E. Manning, $3.70; E. Walters, $60; W. L. Force & Bro., $16.10; T. O. Doane, $13.09; A. D. Cook & Bro., $89.84; John Brown, $126.36. A communication was received from No. 3 Eng. Co., announcing the resignation of Foreman Coleman and the election of Jno. Becker in his place. Also a notification of the resignation of Messrs Adam Beck and Samuel Wallace from Zephyr H. & L. Co.—action endorsed. The Common Council notified the Board that it deemed it inexpedient for that body to take any steps towards the apprehension of incendiaries, and suggesting the Board take such action itself. Communication filed. The Chief Engineer sent in a list of repairs needed, which list was referred to the President. The Board then adjourned.

A FEW minutes spent behind the scenes at our post office will convince almost any one that the position of postmaster is not such a very soft snap after all; and although the work is not very laborious yet it is a severe tax on the energy and patience of the official. The school children are particularly annoying, as they stop both going and coming from school in the morning and afternoon and pester the postmaster with inquiries for the mail of their parents as well as their neighbors. But some of the grown up ones are almost as provoking. Some of them, for instance, have been on the arrival of every mail for the past two years, except, perhaps, on one or two occasions, and in this time have received about two letters. And yet a postmaster is supposed to be always as pleasant as a May morning.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, Dec. 10th.

The Council met in adjourned meeting. Present—President Livingston, and Messrs Corlell, Gardner, Jones, Marsh, Rose, J. Simpson, R. Simpson—8.

Absent—Messrs Boguslin, Polak, Serrell—3.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

On motion of Mr. Corlell the rules were suspended and a recess of ten minutes taken.

It was moved that when the Council adjourned it be to meet again in one week. Carried.

The following claims were presented: F. A. Dunham, $6; C. C. Moroe, $8; H. McDonald, $10; W. A. Woodruff, $16; S. A. Davis, $6; J. H. House, $8; W. F. Messersmith, $8; J. A. Demarest, $6; B. B. Gray, $18; R. Merritt, $15; W. L. Hetfield, $19.75; W. J. Tobin, 15; Amos Moffett, $6; Geo. W. Houseman, $; V. W. Nash, $22; T. J. Gillies, $27; O. B. Leonard, $18; A. D. Jennings, $12; W. Addis, $15; J. B. Miller, $25; J. H. Doane, $15; D. L. Robinson, $6; M. Thorn, $6. Ref'd to Com. on Elections.

Also the following: Jas. Maynard, $11 for winding the town clock. Ref'd to the Finance Com., which on motion of Mr. Marsh was also directed to enquire the cost of putting the clock in striking and running order.

Also the claim of Mrs. E. L. Laine, $10; ref'd to the Alms-Com.

Mr. Marsh moved that in anticipation of the collection of taxes of 1883, a loan be made with the First Nat. Bank for $3,500 at 60 days. Carried, all present voting aye.

The Council the adjourned.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Mr. Andrew Schuyler has purchased the Moore property on N. 1st St., now occupied by Mr. Cornelius Mesler.

Mr. William Post, mine host of the Scotch Plains Hotel, has exchanged his grey Messenger horse for a very beautiful fleet-footed golden sorrel. Look out for him on Park avenue when the snow comes.

Mr. William C. Stanbery was unanimously elected active honorary member of Excelsior H. & L. Co. of Scotch Plains, as a mark of great esteem felt by the Company in consideration of donation of lamps made by him for their new Hall.

Mr. William Hetfield, the Collector of Fanwood Township, is suffering from a very sudden and painful attack of inflammatory rheumatism. He was taken with it while at work in the cornfield, and has been confined to his house since. It is to be hoped he will be able to meet the eager tax payers at the appointed time.

John Marsh, Jr., has moved to the Mollenhauer Mansion, he having recently purchased it. To say that it is one of the most lovely and picturesque locations, would be only using a mild term. The house has a commanding situation on elevated ground, running up the base of the mountain and almost at the extreme rear of the premises, with a broad and extensive lawn gradually sloping from the front, with large forest trees at intervals; also a miniature lake and stream, rustic bridges, summer houses and trellised arbors, with the mountains for a background, all go to make it a beautiful and attractive residence.

WESTFIELD WISPS

Honorah Mc Carty, wife of John Mc Carty, died on Monday morning last of pneumonia.

William Long swapped his celebrated sand-pounder to Charles Lyons for a team of mules.

John S. Irving is building an addition to his large lumber sheds to accommodate his increasing business.

Joseph H. Clark was the only juryman drawn last week from our town to serve as petit juror at the January term of Court.

Considerable interest is manifested in the proposed great billiard match between "The Professor" and the "Golden-haired Constable," on Saturday evening next—bets being about even. Supper at 10 p. m.

The Westfield Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1, held a special meeting on Saturday evening last and appointed a committee to draft suitable resolutions of respect upon the death of one of their number—Stephen B. Mapes.

The marriage of Miss Annie L. Brown, daughter of the late Joshua Brown, residing on Clark street, to John M. Stutsman, occurred on Thursday evening, Dec. 6th. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. J. Yerkes of Plainfield, assisted by the Rev. N. W. Cadwell of our town. It was a very quiet affair—none but the immediate friends and relatives being present. The bridal couple left on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C.

The next Lamp-Light Sociable is to be held at the residence of Dr. Joseph B. Harrison, corner of Broad and Elmer streets, on Monday evening, Dec. 17th. All interested in the lighting of our streets are invited to be present. The persons having the sociable in charge promise to give a very interesting entertainment, well worthy the price of admission, which is small. Every person in favor of the welfare of our village should show it by being present on that evening.

The death of Stephen B. Mapes occurred at his residence, on Prospect street, on Saturday last, after an illness of ten days. He contracted a severe cold on Evacuation Day in New York city, which developed in an attack of Typhoid Pneumonia, which disease was the cause of death. The funeral services were held at his late residence on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Long before the time for the services to commence the house was filled with friends and relatives. The floral offerings were many and of beautiful design. The Westfield Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1, of which he was a member, attended the services in a body. The Rev. Mr. Ostrander, of New York, assisted by the Rev. Warren Hoagland of the M. E. church, and H. J. Neill of, the Congregational church, officiated. The body was taken to the depot on Tuesday morning for the 10:08 train, escorted by the members of Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1 and Empire Engine Co. No. 2, followed by all the children of the Public School and many citizens. He was interred in the family plot at Greenwood, New York. The Public School building No. 10 has been draped in mourning, and also the house of H. & L. Co. No. 1. The death of Mr. Mapes has created a void in our community which will be hard to fill. He leaves a wife, one son and two daughters. He moved to our town about 21 years ago from New York State, and immediately took an active interest in the welfare of our village at that time, especially in that of Public Schools. He was President of the Board of Commissioners that built the new school house on Prospect street, and has been President of the Board of School Trustees for the last 15 years. For several years he was a very efficient member of our Town Committee. He was a Democrat in politics and President of the Democratic Association of our town. In March 1881 he was elected Chosen Freeholder from our town, and again re-elected in March 1882—although our township in politics is largely Republican. He was the first person to advance money for the purchase of the present Hook & Ladder Truck.

MISCELLANY.

Card of Thanks.

The undersigned wishes to take this opportunity, through your valuable paper, to thank the Superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, for their promptness in paying my son's insurance, which was received by me within 21 hours after death.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

How soon are great men forgotten! It's long since we have heard mention of 'Muldoon, the solid man.'

"Rough on Coughs." Ask for "Rough on Coughs," for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Hoarseness. Troches, 15c. Liquid, 25c.

The man who gave his sweetheart a seal skin sacque and then got jilted says he understands what a sealskin sack is.

Decline of Man. Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

The wild turkeys of Texas live on pecan nuts, and are finely flavored as those who eat them are finely favored.

Mother Swan's Worm Syrup. Infallible, tasteless, harmless, cathartic; for feverishness, restlessness, worms, constipation. 25c.

Don't jump out of bed immediately on awakening in the morning. If there are any fires to be built, let your wife and the hired girl do it. It will give them a fine appetite for breakfast.

A startling fact. Heart Disease is only inferior in fatality to consumption, [illegible] Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator. It has cured thousands, why not you? $1 at Druggists.

Wed Cherry Rock and Rye as prepared by I. Calvin Shafer, [illegible] at Druggists.

It is a sight worthy of an artist's crayon to see a woman, while talking through a telephone to her grocer three miles away, stamping her little foot and shaking her fist as though the poor man was qualling right before her.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth and Head Ache, in Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cents. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

Think of the poor Mormons with so many mothers and one father, at a Thanksgiving table that sticks clear out of doors and over into the next lot, where the children have to sit in the cold and telephone in for fodder and mudder, too.

Dyspepsia & Liver Complaint—Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of these distressing complaints? [illegible] Shiloh's Vitalizer. [illegible] Sold by R. J. Shaw.

One of the naturalists gives the comforting assurance, as he calls it, that a bee can sting only once. Once is enough.

Oh, what a cough!—Will you heed the warning. [illegible] Shiloh's Cure [illegible] Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

The plumber looks on complacently while the coal dealer marks up his prices because it is going to be a hard Winter, and the ice man increases his price because the Winter will be mild. The plumber's prices are as fixed as the laws of the Medes and Persians.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

That is daily bringing joy to the homes of thousands by saving many of their dear ones from an early grave. Truly is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Loss of Voice, Tickling in the Throat, Pain in Side and Chest, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs, a positive cure. [illegible] Trial Bottles Free at H. P. Reynolds' Drug Store. Large size $1.

Dolls are now made that sing, and this fills a long-felt want. Nine-tenth of married men cannot sing, and when they try to lull the baby to sleep with music they really frighten the little one by their horrible noise. Now the singing doll can be put in the cradle with the live baby, and every domestic hearth becomes really happy.

PHOTOGRAPHS.

It seems hard that a man must become famous in order to see his photograph. [illegible] "Pinafore's Pinafore" [illegible] day without a rival.

Patriotic fire quenched: At a school examination a clergyman was descanting on the necessity of growing up loyal and useful citizens. In order to give emphasis to his remarks he pointed to a large flag hanging on one side of the schoolroom, and said: "Boys, what is that flag for?" An urchin who understood the condition of the room better than he did the speaker's rhetoric, exclaimed: "To hide the dirt, sir!"

[FORMERLY OLD P. O. BUILDING.]

Three Particular Points.

Point the First.—BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is not an intoxicating compound. It is a tonic medicine, not a drink. It is a skillfully compounded preparation made to restore strength and health; not a beverage to be sold in bar-rooms and taverns.

Point the Second.—BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is free from everything injurious. The most delicate ladies and the most enfeebled infants may use it with perfect safety and with great advantage. While it is powerful in its remedial agency, it is gentle in its operation, restoring wasted strength and imparting robust health in the most efficient manner.

Point the Third.—BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is made by the Brown Chemical Company of Baltimore, a long established house, whose reputation is well known to the business world and the general community. There is no risk in buying such a medicine. 4

MAKE HIM ODIOUS.

The following, on the vote seller, from the Trenton State Gazette, is none too emphatic:

"The press and people of New Jersey should unite to make odious the base creature who will sell his vote. This would be one of the most effective ways of breaking up the lamentable and alarming prevalence of this evil custom. Make him odious; let him feel himself a moral leper and outcast from the society of decent men; let the finger of scorn be pointed at him as the dirty dog, unworthy the name and proud privilege of American citizens, who sells his great national birthright for a mess of pottage. Let him be shunned by all respectable people, and pointed at by the children as a dastard defiling the image of manhood. Make him feel that he is unfit for the company of clean people; and that he is loathed as covered all over with moral foulness.

The pitiful scoundrel who will sell his vote richly deserves such a fate. He is the most contemptible of all despicable creatures. His baseness strikes at the very root and foundation of Republican institutions. If all men were like him our Government would fall to ruin. The utterer of counterfeit coin strikes at the use of money. This vile wretch strikes at the use of the ballot. His crime is a meaner and more dangerous one than that of the counterfeiter. Let him be made odious."

A new hotel is being erected at the corner of Broadway and Ocean avenue, Long Branch. It will have a frontage on Broadway of 128 feet and 100 feet on Ocean avenue, and will accommodate about 150 guests. The cost will be about $12,000.

The General Manager's prize of $100 for the Supervisor having the most perfect section of track upon the Pennsylvania railroad between New York and Pittsburgh has been awarded for the second time to Victor Wierman, Supervisor of Section B, New York Division, extending from Trenton to Stelton, which takes all the heavy traffic between New York and Philadelphia.

A recent report court case in England showed how absurdly a good law may be made to operate when Dogberry is on the bench. A man walking through a field on a Sunday saw a rabbit struggling in a trap and mercifully ended its sufferings. The magistrate, however, gravely declared him guilty of two offenses—killing game on Sunday and killing game without a license—and fined him $5 and the costs of the action.

Sheriff Bowers, of Warren county, has not yet succeeded in recapturing Peter Smull, the horse thief, who escaped from the jail at Belvidere some time ago. The Sheriff learned that after the escape Smull broke into the cabin of a boat at Broadway, N. J., and stole a coat for Corling, one of the men who escaped with him; also that Smull visited his father's house in Easton the night of his escape and obtained $28. It is the intention of the Sheriff to have Smull's father arrested for aiding him to escape.

From the Monroe Democrat we learn that a most remarkable case is that of John Dolan, ex-Burgess and a prominent citizen of Susquehanna, who some four weeks ago began bleeding at the nose and before the flow could be stopped had lost some twenty quarts; since then the flow has recommenced occasionally, at times being as high as four quarts, until at last accounts he had lost in all fully forty quarts. Mr. Dolan's weight before the trouble commenced was 375 pounds, and he has since lost 100 pounds.

It has just been decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania that when a passenger goes into a sleeping car, and occupies a berth and pays for it, the valuables and portable property he may have in his possession, after he is asleep, are in charge of the sleeping car company. It is bound to exercise a reasonable vigilance in looking out for the welfare of the passenger, who is no longer in a condition to look out for himself. If the passenger is robbed under such circumstances the company must foot the bill. This decision does not seem to be unreasonable. The charge for the sleeping car service is large enough to cover the cost of insurance against robbery.

THE CENTURY

PROGRAMME FOR 1883-'84.

The programme for the fourteenth year of this magazine, and the third under the new name, is if anything more interesting and popular than ever. With every season, THE CENTURY shows a decided gain in circulation. The new volume begins with November, and, when possible, subscriptions should begin with that issue. The following are some of the features of the coming year:

A New Novel by George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days," etc., entitled "Dr. Sevier," a story of New Orleans life, the time being the eve of the late Civil War.

"Life in the Thirteen Colonies," by Edward Eggleston, separate illustrated papers on subjects connected with the early history of this country.

Three Stories by Henry James, of varying lengths, to appear through the year.

The New Astronomy, untechnical articles, by Prof. S. P. Langley, describing the most interesting of recent discoveries in the sun and stars.

A Novelette by H. H. Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," etc. A vivid and sparkling story.

The New Era in American Architecture, a series of papers descriptive of the best work of American architects in Public Buildings, City and Country Houses, etc. To be profusely illustrated.

A Novelette by Robert Grant, author of "Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," etc., entitled "An Average Man,"—a story of New York.

The Bread-winners, one of the most remarkable novels of the day, to be completed in January.

"Christianity and Wealth," with other essays, by the author of "The Christian League of Connecticut," etc., on the application of Christian morals to the present phases of modern life.

Coasting About the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a series of entertaining articles, profusely illustrated.

Scenes from the Novelists, Hawthorne, George Eliot, and Cable, with authentic drawings.

On the Track of Ulysses, the record of a yacht cruise in the Mediterranean, identifying the route of Ulysses on his return from the Trojan war.

"Garfield in England," extracts from his private journal kept during a trip to Europe in 1867.

"The Silverado Squatters," by Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "New Arabian Nights."

There will be papers on outdoor England by John Burroughs and others, a beautifully illustrated series on Dante, a number of papers by the eminent French novelist Alphonse Daudet, articles on art and archæology by Charles Dudley Warner and others, illustrated papers on sport and adventure, short stories by the leading writers, essays on timely subjects, etc., etc.

Subscription price, $4.00 a year; single numbers sold everywhere, at 35 cents each. All dealers receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers by postal or express order, registered letter, bank check or draft.

SPECIAL OFFERS.

To enable new subscribers to begin with the first volume under THE CENTURY name, we make the following special offers:

New subscribers beginning with November, 1883, may obtain the magazine for one year from date, and the twenty-four previous numbers, unbound, for $8.00. Regular price for the three years, $12.00.

Or, if preferred, a subscription and the twenty-four numbers bound in Four Elegant Volumes will be furnished for $10. Regular price, $16.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Bazar is at once the most brilliant and useful household Journal in existence. It is the acknowledged arbiter of fashion in this country. Its fashion plates are the newest and most stylish; and its pattern sheet supplements and economic suggestions alone are worth many times the cost of subscription. Its illustrations of art needlework are from the best sources. Its literary and artistic merits are of the highest order. Its stories, poems, and essays are by the first American and European authors. Its choice art pictures would fill portfolios, and its humorous cuts are the most amusing to be found in any journal in America. A host of brilliant novelties are promised for 1884.

COMIFERA

For the Head, Scalp and Hair.

Thousands write us, on arriving home weary, the brain overwrought and tired out, that after bathing with Comifera they feel refreshed and ready for another day's work. It soothes, exhilarates and strengthens the head and brain. Ministers, doctors, lawyers, bankers, brokers, merchants, bookkeepers, mechanics, clerks, housekeepers, sewing girls, and every one who feels languid, depressed and exhausted should use it. It eradicates all diseases of the scalp and skin, removes dandruff, and keeps the hair soft and silken. We ask you to try it, and after using one-third of a bottle, if not satisfied return it to the dealer, and your money shall be refunded.

NEW YORK.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. $1 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10 an extra copy free.

Surrogate's Order to Limit Creditors
Union County Surrogate's Office, October 23d, 1883.

Chas. A. Haynes the Administrator of Edward B. Haynes, deceased.

On application of the above named Administrator it is ordered that said Administrator give public notice to the creditors of said estate of said decedent to bring in their debts, demands or claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from this date, by setting up a copy of this order, within twenty days hereafter, in five of the most public places in the county of Union, for two months, and also within the said twenty days, by advertising the same in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the same space of time; and if any creditor shall neglect to exhibit his or her debt, demand or claim, within the said period of nine months, public notice being given as aforesaid, such creditor shall be forever barred of his or her action therefor against the said Administrator.

By JAMES J. GERBER, Surrogate.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.—To the Vilas National Bank of Plattsburgh—By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Robert A. Reed is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, and plead, demur or answer to the complainant's bill on or before the second day of January next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you. The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Elias Barton to Robert A. Reed, dated June 1st, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, on lands in the city of Elizabeth, and you are made defendants, because you recovered a judgment against Charles W. Barton, in the Union County Circuit Court and therefore claim to have some lien on said mortgaged premises.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Footways and Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The tenant, occupant, or any person having the care of any building or lot of land bordering on any street, lane, court, square or public place within the city, where there is any footway or sidewalk, and in case there may be no tenant, occupant, or other person having the care of the whole of any such building or lot, the owner shall put, maintain and keep such footway or sidewalk in good and sufficient repair, even on the surface, and so constructed as freely to shed water, and for the width of at least three feet, if said footway or sidewalk be that wide, if not, then for the whole width thereof, shall make and keep it free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other hurtful substances; and in all cases in which at any time any footway or sidewalk is not in the condition required by this section, such tenant, occupant, owner, or other person, as aforesaid, shall forthwith cause the same to be repaired or put in above condition in conformity herewith.

Sec. 2. The street Commissioner is hereby authorized to notify and order persons liable under the preceding section to comply with the requirements thereof; and every such person, neglecting or refusing to comply therewith within one week after such notification and order of the street commissioner shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to a fine not exceeding ten dollars, and for each and every week thereafter that such neglect or refusal shall continue any further sum not exceeding ten dollars; and in case such neglect or refusal shall continue for the space of nine days after such notification and order of the street commissioner, the street commissioner may cause the necessary repairs to be made, and the person or persons convicted under this or the preceding section shall be liable for the costs incurred in making such repairs in addition to the fine.

POETRY.

WHAT IS BEAUTY?

What is a type of beauty? a maid, I ween
That hath her eighteenth summer seen,
With head that is of Grecian mold,
With pearly teeth within the fold
Of ruby lips—as cherry red—
Not sensual nor thinly laid,
With fawn-like eyes so soft and bright
Exposing soul within to sight;
With eyebrows arched in graceful curve
The type of beauty doth subserve;
The bust should be of Spartan build—
The waist, as dame Nature willed—
The limbs well rounded, plump and fair,
Small hands and feet in tasteful share;
With taper fingers, and whose tips
Should vie with that upon the lips.
These are beautiful, yet we find
The greatest beauty in the mind.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

ARIADNE'S PROPHECY.

'You will be famous yet, Paul, believe me.'

These words were uttered in a sweet, earnest tone; the speaker a fair young girl, standing in the moonlight beside her lover. A mansion with princely walls from among the distant shrubbery; and forth from that mansion her girlhood home, had Ariadne Homer stolen to meet her lover for the last time. For the arrogance of the purse proud rich man had done its work; the boy-artist, the dreamer, he who is richer far in his dowried soul than the great manufacturer, Amos Homer, has been forbidden those walls and the favoring glances of that rich man's daughter.

'I wish my faith were as strong as yours, Adne!' he said, doubtingly.

'It should be, Paul,' replied the girl. 'My heart is a true prophet; I can always trust its teachings. You will come back some day and then——'

She stopped suddenly, and then added. 'And Paul I will be true and patient, and await the day of your coming.' And a small white hand had stolen into his.

'It is enough, Adne. It is more than I deserve—more than I hoped. Now I can go forth from the humble home of my boyhood and wrestle manfully with life, bearing with me the words you have this night spoken. Adne, you have saved me. You shall be my good angel, my prophet, my guiding star. Now good by, darling, and God keep you when I am over seas, and bring me again to your side!'

And there, under the tender moonlight and the linden shade they parted.

Bridging over five long years of toil and endeavor, and study, we come to a time in Paul Dillard's life when that life seemed fairest and best, because, his dreams fulfilled, his feet fairly set upon the highway of fame and fortune, he began to turn his gaze homeward to the land where his heart lay—over the ocean.

But few letters had found their way to the toiler, and those were all penned in the brown weather-stained farm house at Spring Meadow—none from Ariadne Homer. But these he did not expect; relying implicitly on her faith, he had asked no token.

And how is it with her? Ah, hearts will change, and gold is a strong lure; it has won many before now, and this girl, bred in affluence, the pet of an idolizing father, is no wiser nor better. And then Paul Dillard at best was but a boy and a dreamer. He could never bring her to a home like that to which she had been accustomed, or like the one old John Etheridge offered her.

Thus it happened the twilight of the same eve that joined lives if not the heart of Ariadne and John Etheridge brought back Paul Dillard to his boyhood's home. Honor and laurel wreathes had all faded before the beacon light of love gilding him homeward. The faintest rays of lingering holy twilight shot upwards through the dusky bars that latticed the west in the dim gray twilight, when the old-fashioned stagecoach set down a weary, travel-stained, bearded, foreign looking man at a bend in the dusty country highway; and a few minutes brisk walk brought him into the green grassy lane leading to Jonas Dillard's farmhouse.

We will pass over his welcome in that home where he was so loved, but when he retired that night there were tears in the proud mother's eyes as she pressed her quivering lips to his cheek; and Jno. Dillard's own were not dry.

'Paul turned out the right sort of stuff after all. He'll do something for us in our old age yet. 'Twant a bad move, his going off to furrin' ports, was it, mother?'

When the old farmhouse was still, and the night shadows had lengthened on Tower Hill, Paul Dillard softly lifted the doorlatch of the large "spare chamber" and stole down the winding staircase. Sliding back the bolt of the old oaken door, he stood in the outer air.

He had not slept; many thoughts crowded upon him—thoughts of her whose eyes had lured him homeward. The night was calm and warm; a dark blue, star-studded sky bent down upon him. Two miles distant lay the village in whose suburbs, on a linden-crowned hill, stood Amos Homer's mansion. He stood a moment on the broad doorstep, then passed down the grassy lane and out into the highway. Then setting off at a brisk pace, a turn in the road soon brought him in view of Amos Homer's mansion. Every window was ablaze with light, and as he gained a closer proximity, he paused and leaned against the white railing which outskirted the grounds.

Placing one hand on the railing he lightly leaped it, and stood within the ground of the mansion. Nearing one of the windows, he looked and what he saw made his heart almost stand still. Ariadne, his plighted wife, in wedding robes.

It was enough. One glance told him all. His head on his breast, and his thoughts he knew not where, he again sought his home. The night passed, though it seemed it would never end. And there was no trace on his face of his struggle when he came down the next morning.

'Mother,' he said after, breakfast. 'I shall have to get away from you again. You will not think it hard if I leave you for Boston to-morrow. I have some orders that must be executed before the foreign steamer sails.'

'But I thought you had come to tarry here, Paul. And then you are sick. I know you are; and you will wear yourself out with work.'

'Oh, never you fear, mother; I am not ill. I look pale always, now. If I have leisure, I will run up among these New Hampshire hills again in a fortnight or so: but if I am very busy I shall write for you to bring Mary to Boston to join me. Oh, yes, mother, I'll have time yet for rest and recreation before I go over seas again.'

'Again? And must you cross the Atlantic once more? Oh, my son, we do not want riches or comforts, if we are to be divided from you. Do not go from home again. Stay with us, Paul,' urged Mrs. Dillard.

'Nay, mother,' said Paul, gently but firmly, you would not have me remain here an idler, a drone. I must return to Italy.'

An Italian sun was setting behind a low range of hills that skirted a broad Roman Campagna, as two travelers, one an invalid, alighted from a diligence at a humble hostelrie, whose brown vine-covered walls slept under the protecting shelter of a grove of dwarf cedars.

The invalid was an old man, the other a beautiful sad faced woman. And that wasted, wan sufferer, and that beautiful, but pale woman, were John and Ariadne Etheridge.

In all respect she had been to him a faithful wife. And so she had accompanied him across the sea to Italy, day by day attending him unweariedly with gentle fingers and tender care. But John Etheridge was a doomed man; all that long summer day had his strength waxed fainter; and when they lifted him carefully from the cushions and bore him within the mountain inn, even then the death angel entered beside him.

There was one other traveler who came slowly down the hillside path and sought the hotel's shelter that night—a dark, pale man, with sketch-book in hand, and enveloped in the folds of an ample Roman cloak. And while the shadows gathered deeper and the rain pattered on the low roof, the stranger threw himself on the rude wooden bench beside the window, and with face buried in his hands seemed lost in thought or slumber.

The evening wore later; the hotel keeper and his wife had sought their slumbers; the stranger still lay wrapped in his cloak-folds and almost lost in the dark shadows; but in an humble inner room Ariadne Etheridge and her faithful man-servant watched the flickering lamp of life. For an hour he dozed heavily, then the waning flame flashed up with fitful radiance; he started from his pillow and said gaspingly: 'Wife! Ariadne!'

She came closer and moistened his lips with wine.

'Wife, I have something to say to you before—before—' but his voice faltered. I am going—I know it,' he gasped feebly, 'and I must talk with you—Ariadne. I have been very wicked. You remember Paul Dillard?'

The head upon his breast drooped heavier; her beautiful hand clutched his convulsively for an instant, then she lay very still. And the man upon the bench in the outer room started to his elbow with a sudden bound, and leaned his head forward in an eager listening attitude.

'My child, it is hard for an old man like me to make this confession,' went on old John Etheridge. 'It is hard; but harder yet to go into eternity with the stain of an unconfessed sin upon my soul. I have been wicked; but I will make what reparation lies in my power. Ariadne, listen; I won you through fraud. I coveted you, with your youth and beauty; and when it was breathed to me that you loved a poor, unknown, humble youth, toiling afar over waters, the fiend of evil sent a suggestion into my mind which I was not long in obeying. How could that poor, humble youth stand in comparison with a rich man? I knew that such were your father's wishes; but I knew that such, however much they might influence your decision, would never your heart. And so I followed the evil devices of my own brain, and coined a lie and spread the rumor that, in his far off home your boy lover had wooed another. But it was all false—all false—my poor child. And when you, in your youth and beauty, came to my arms, and the first flush of triumph was over, when day by day I saw how meekly and uncomplainingly, you sacrificed yourself to all an old man's whims and caprices, then repentance came, and O how bitter. Disease came. Ariadne, as God is my witness, I joyed more than I sorrowed when I felt its chill fingers at my heart. This physician sent me abroad; we came here, to Italy. You did not know how often I sent my imagination here before me, and built a structure whose walls would be reared above my grave! For, my child,' and his voice sank to a whisper, and he lifted her face with one thin white hand, 'you will obey me; he is here, and by and by your paths will cross each other, Ariadne, you will be happy yet!'

Then came an unbroken silence in that death chamber; and the man in the dark kitchen breathed convulsively as he crept near the door.

'Yes, you will be happy yet,' gasped the dying man slowly. 'And now I am going—forgive. Your hand my child here, on my heart. God is good! I have but one wish in this death hour—if I could have brought you together—you two, whom I wronged so. If Paul Dillard were only here!'

'Yes, God is good! Paul Dillard is here!' came in husky whispers; and as the pale man staggered in from the outer room, Ariadne fell forward, with a faint scream, upon the breast of her dying husband.

What need have we to record more? Can you not see how the reparation of the dead was accepted?—how, her period of mourning over, Ariadne Etheridge, in that warm Southland, gave her hand where her heart had long been pledged, and fully redeemed her early prophecy by its fulfilment?

DOOFLICKER'S NOVEL FIRE ESCAPE.

"Yes," said Mr. Dooflicker, as he and Theophilus stood looking at the ruin wrought by a late fire. "I had some pretty rough experiences when I was a fireman. I remember one time we were called out to fight flames in a nine-story building on the North Side. The fire was in the lower part, and the stairs were burned away when we got there. The top floor was full of sewing girls, who stood at the windows crying for help. It was the most pitiful sight I ever saw, but nobody could be induced to go in and get the girls out. I was the engineer, and, of course, could not leave my engine, but I called Danny Mulhane, the pipeman, to me and told him what to do. Danny went back and got right under a window, holding the nozzle straight up. 'Now,' says I to Danny, 'hold her straight for the window and I'll save the girls.' I turned the stream on full head, and up shot a stream with tremendous force. 'One o' you girls jump on,' I yelled. A girl jumped aboard the stream and I turned the steam off and off, little by little, until it let her to the ground, just as you may have seen a ball dance around in the stream of a fountain. Then I shot up another stream and let down another girl, and so on til they were all safely out of the building. To make sure of it I skipped up the stairs four at a lick, and looked the building all over. Not a soul was in it. I had saved every one. The next day the girls made up a purse of $700, which, of course, I would not accept. I told them to give it to your mother if they wanted to get rid of it."

"Say, now," said Theophilus, "what I don't understand is how you skipped up the stairs after they had all been burned out?"

Dooflicker told Theophilus he had better run home right away; that one of the walls might fall on him.

LITERARY NOTES.

President John Taylor, the official head of the Mormon Church, is preparing an elaborate statement of the political and social attitude of the Latter-day Saints, for the January number of the North American Review.

The December (Christmas) Magazine of American History is one of the most attractive issues of this excellent periodical that has yet appeared. It contains four historical Essays on Christmas and its observances in various parts of early America and among different nationalities. The third chapter of the Private Intelligence Papers of Sir Henry Clinton occupies the department of Original Documents, together with two unpublished letters of special interest. The other departments—Notes, Queries, Replies, Societies, and Book Notices—are, as usual, overflowing with good things. This Magazine is deservedly recognized in every part of the country as one of the best historical publications ever offered to the public. Publication office, 30 Lafayette Place, New York city.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine—The editor (T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.) commences the fifteenth volume and the year very brilliantly; he presents in the January number a most attractive and interesting holiday one, replete with delightful reading and artistic excellence. The contents are extremely varied; there are Christmas stories, sketches, descriptive articles and poems, etc.; the editor has a characteristic article, "The Coming Sermon," and there are contributions in prose and poetry from some of our most popular writers. A new serial, "Wrong from the First," by the author of "Mr. Borke's Nieces," is commenced; in fact the pages overflow with entertaining and edifying matter and artistic illustrations. Now is the time to subscribe, and no one could fail to appreciate, as a holiday gift, a year's subscription to this popular magazine. The price is 25 cents for single number, or twelve numbers for $2.50, postpaid. Address Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

The Art Amateur for December is a number of holiday size and excellence. It contains working designs for a tea-pot (Japanesque decoration), a dessert plate (wild geranium), a hand screen (shepherdess), embroidery (a fan, Christmas-card box, doilies, and mitres), repousse work (cockatoos and dolphins), wood-carving and jewelry; two beautiful designs of children, with minute directions for painting in oils and mineral colors; an illustrated report of the Feuardent-Cesnola trial; a biograph of Charles Sprague Pearce, with numerous original drawings; an illustrated notice of the Huntington gift to the Metropolitan Museum; reviews of the National and Pennsylvania Academy exhibitions, the Sketch Exhibition, and the National Exposition at Paris; dramatic and musical feuilletons; some fine illustrations of Derby porcelain; practical articles on decorations, needlework and china painting; correspondence, literary and editorial notes. It is impossible to speak too highly of the varied excellence of this superb publication. Price 35 cents; $4 per annum. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

J. D. Belmer,
Wm. J. Thompson,
George W. Doty,
James T. Pierson,
C. W. L. Martine.

On motion of Freeholder Briant report received and placed on file.

From Com. on Jail Inspection.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—Your Com. on Jail Inspection desire to respectfully report that they have made an inventory of the goods and chattels in the Jail Warden's office and apartments; the furniture and fixtures are in as good condition as reasonable wear and tear would warrant, but in the jail proper on the approach of cold weather, more blankets, sheets and pillow cases; also a few ticks and pillows are needed; also a new supply of tin[?] Steps have been taken to procure a supply of these articles.

We desire also at this time to inform the Board that one of the escaped prisoners, M. [illegible], has been [illegible]; also that upon information received we were led to believe that saws had been secreted in the jail, so immediately on the evening of Nov. 27th we made a search, and found that a bar to one of the windows had been tampered with, which convinced us that saws were there; upon examination of the suspected parties we secured four saws and one file; also a razor upon one prisoner which had been allowed him to shave.

Upon further investigation and consultation we were convinced that there had recently been too much promiscuous social visiting at the jail; we therefore insisted upon the strict enforcement of the rule that visits should be made on Wednesdays, and then only by near relatives or parties having business with the prisoners, and no parties to be in close contact with the prisoners or converse in a language or voice not plainly understood, and no prisoner under sentence or likely to be under sentence to State Prison to be allowed the liberties of a hall man.

We would now recommend that the Warden be compelled to employ a Deputy Warden, who shall give bonds as the law requires; also a Matron, and that each of these appointees shall, before their appointment, be accepted by the committee in charge, and subject to removal for just cause at the option of the committee.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
John Isenmann,
Wm. M. Oliver,
J. F. Hubbard,
Committee.

Elizabeth, Dec. 6, 1883.

Freeholder Hubbard moved that the report be received and placed on file, and that power be given the committee as recommended, which was carried.

CHRISTMAS.

Happily there are points along life's journey where travelers, however weary laden, may meet as friends and exchange the salutation of good cheer.

We are nearing one such, cherished as a golden spot by the youth of to-day, and hailed with joy by even those whose heads wear the snowy crown of years.

It is Christmas.

A period in the calendar of Time sacred to Christianity.

Around which cluster more blissful memories than any other.

Where the nobler instincts of humanity rise into dominion and generosity imparts its invigorating warmth.

Where strife is stilled and pride forgotten.

To all we sincerely wish a MERRIE CHRISTMAS!

MIND THE HELM.

The security of a vessel under sail depends upon the vigilance and fidelity of the steersmen. They can keep her on a safe course, or, through negligence or design, they can drive her to destruction.

So with the Ship of State.

Perils surround her, hidden dangers ever have lurked and ever will lurk beneath the political waters. To avoid them and make a successful voyage, those in command of the helm must intelligently consult the chart of safety and with unfaltering devotion heed all its teachings.

That chart is the Constitution.

It is, if strictly followed, an infallible guide, leading directly to the haven of peace and prosperity.

But, it must be obeyed to the very letter, nothing taken for granted, no liberty assumed that is not clearly expressed.

The Republic of the United States, aptly pictured as the Ship of State, minutely steered by the chart of the Constitution, and subject to no other control, can bravely encounter and surely overcome all opposing forces that may arise or lie hidden.

Rigid loyalty to the Constitution is the only course of safety. Keep thereto and the cry will be "all is well." Depart therefrom and breakers will soon show their angry crests ahead.

The voice of Democracy is
"Mind the Helm!
Steer only by the Constitution!

O'Donnell, the slayer of Carey the informer, was hung at London, precisely at 8 o'clock on Monday morning last. The doomed man displayed extraordinary nerve up to the last moment. There was a large assemblage of people outside the jail yard, who quietly dispersed as soon as the hoisting of the black flag announced the fatal moment had arrived. O'Donnell's brother stood alone opposite the jail, sad and dejected. When the black flag was hoisted, he raised his hat and engaged in prayer for some moments. The news of the hanging was received in New York with dismay by the few Irishmen who believed that a respite would be granted at the last moment. Prominent Irishmen believe that the act will intensify the opposition of the Irish people towards England, and claim that O'Donnell did not have a fair trial, which seems to be the opinion of every one who has watched the proceedings since his arrest.

WESTFIELD WISPS

On Thursday evening, Dec. 13th inst, Edgar S. Brocaw, a carpenter residing on Broad street, after his day's work was done, went to Cranford to collect the weekly premiums of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, of which he is a local agent. He walked from Cranford towards Westfield and stopped at Mrs. Smelton's and left at about 9 o'clock. Upon his crossing over to the railroad track he noticed two men a short distance ahead of him walking rather slowly. He passed them and after going a few steps beyond they asked him if he had a match. He stopped and was feeling in his vest pocket for a match when one of the parties grabbed him by the arm from behind and the other blindfolded him with a handkerchief. They told him if he made no resistance they would not hurt him, but if he did it would be the worse for him. After taking his silver watch and chain, thirteen dollars in money, his memorandum book and overcoat, they took him to the fence along side of the railroad track and tied his hands behind him over a rail in the fence with his handkerchief, and pulled his hat over his eyes and told him if he made any noise whatever they would shoot him, and then left. Mr. Brocaw says he was some fifteen minutes releasing himself, after which he hastened to the town and gave the alarm. No trace of the guilty parties have as yet been discovered. Mr. Brocaw describes his assailants, from the slight chance he had to look at them, as one being a tall, stout built man with heavy bushy whiskers, the other a short man with a moustache. These whiskers and moustache may have been false, and probably were. A good dose of cold lead is too good for such miscreants.

Chas. W. Taylor, residing on Mountain avenue, who has just arrived home from a trip to his mines in Colorado, brought home with him the hind-quarters of a Black Tail Rocky mountain deer. The quarters weighed 110 pounds.

Hensford J. Moffett went from our town on Saturday afternoon last to purchase some clothing in Newark. It was about 10 o'clock in the evening when he started for the depot in Market street near Mulberry to return home. He was attacked by two ruffians and severely beaten and bruised and robbed of his overcoat, a gold watch and chain and five dollars in money. He was left on the street insensible, and on regaining consciousness he found himself in the hospital. He was brought home on Sunday evening.

George Lines, who recently purchased the lot on the corner of Kimball and Mountain avenues, intends erecting a new dwelling house on the same.

The Soiree Musicale given at the residence of Dr. Jos. B. Harrison, on the corner of Broad and Elm streets, on Monday evening last, for the benefit of the Westfield Village Improvement Society was well attended—over seventy-five persons being present. The programme was a very interesting one and the following persons that took part deserve creditable mention: Mr. Bogert, Miss Ella F. Ray, Miss Carie L. Ray, Mr. Joyce. The thanks of the people of Westfield are due the ladies and gentlemen from abroad who executed the programme so satisfactorily.

Wm. W. Connoly, Collector, has been engaged the past week in collecting the Fall taxes. On Tuesday the 18th he paid the County Collector in full Westfield's proportion of the County and State School taxes for the year 1883.

The Township Committee met on Friday evening last at the Town Rooms. But very little business was transacted. The receiving of the Collector's return of tax warrant on real estate for the year 1882, and also his certificate of tax sale of property bought by the township, were referred to the township attorney before recording the same.

The concert advertised for last Wednesday evening, of the Zion Mission Sunday school, was postponed on account of the inclement weather prevailing at the time.

The annual communication of Atlas Lodge, No. 125 of F. and A. M., was held on Monday evening Dec. 17. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Joseph R. Connoly—W. M. Andrew Z. Chambers—S. W. Thos. H. Love—J. W. Frank R. Pennington—Treasurer. Wm. W. Gibby—Secretary. Chas. Heberle—Chaplain. A. K. Gale—S. D. J. O. Blecke—J. D. Charles H. French—S. M. C. Linus Hetfield—J. M. C. H. C. Vanderhoof, organist. Frank R. Pennington, T. H. Love and A. S. Clark were elected trustees for three years. Addison S. Clark, proxy to Grand Lodge. The annual report of the officers show the Lodge to be in a very flourishing condition.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Our celebrated tonsorial manipulator, whose nom de plume was Professor, has left our midst. He stood not upon the order of his going, but vanished, left, absquatulated without any previous notice and without any friendly shake or tearful good-bye. He left a lasting and indelible impression on the memory of all who were fortunate enough to know him, and especially his generous landlord. The Prof. was a very useful and requisite personage in this little community, as he filled several responsible and lucrative positions; being U. S. mail carrier, village barber, ornamental painter, perfect master of music, member of the truck company, head singer in the choir, and an athlete of no common order. He was a man with many good traits of character, possessed a generous heart and a handsome face and figure—consequently he was a favorite pet of the ladies, in whose hearts he left many an aching void. Come back, Prof., come back!

Services will be held at All Saints Episcopal Church of Scotch Plains, on Christmas morning at 10½ o'clock.

The Sunday School of the Baptist church will hold their annual Christmas entertainment on Thursday, Dec 27th. The entertainment will consist of singing and recitations by the Sunday school scholars.

The pupils of the Public School will give an exhibition at Excelsior Hall on Friday evening, Dec. 21st. Proceeds to be used in aid of the School and for the further completion of the above Hall. The object of this exhibition is a very worthy one and deserves the liberal patronage of the citizens of this place.

The last of the course of lectures given by the Baptist church, was delivered by the eminent and eloquent divine, J. Bradford Cleaver, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 11th. The lecturer, in his early life was a resident of this place and got his first religious impressions under the teaching of Deacon Henry Hetfield. The subject of his lecture was "Feminine Foibles and Follies," a subject, it would seem, to most people, to be out of the ordinary line for a dominie to handle, but he proved himself fully able to illustrate many follies of the fair sex, and their different little innocent ways of flirting, arranging their hair and dress, and using their eyes to entrap the poor unsophisticated men. Some of the ladies in the audience thought he knew entirely too much. Altogether it was a very amusing, interesting and instructive discourse, ably written and eloquently delivered.

An unprovoked and most shameful assault was perpetrated on Saturday evening, Dec. 8th; the victim of which was a very inoffensive and hard-working citizen of our village. The aggressor was one of our promising youths. This is not the first time that the perpetrator has been guilty of a breach of the peace in other ways. It is high time that such offenders should be made to feel the strong arm of the law, for if such assaults are allowed to go without their much merited punishment, no resident will be safe from such ruffians. A lock-up here would not be out of order.

How They Do It in Iowa.

We clip the following from a Western paper:

"One of the most remarkable scenes was enacted at a church fair in the town of Sippey, in Central Iowa, on the night of December 7th, that, perhaps, was ever witnessed. The Methodists of that place had just finished a large and handsome church building, but finding themselves upwards of $1,000 in arrears, resolved to hold a festival, the proceeds to go toward liquidating the debt. In the evening it was announced that a certain cake was to be presented to the most beautiful lady in the room, the matter to be decided by the greatest number of votes, at so much a vote. The competitors were a Miss Potter and a Miss Hurlburt, both very young girls. It was soon manifest that more than usual interest was taken. Both parties belonged to some of the best families in the place, and the voting was heavy on each side. The excitement became intense. The father of Miss Potter vowed he would go his last dollar but what his girl should have the cake; while Miss Hurlburt's relatives backed her heavily, and both sides were assisted by their friends. The scene became indescribable. Old gray-haired men emptied their pocket-books, and young men offered to sell their horses from the hitching-posts to obtain ready cash. The cheering as the respective votes were called was deafening. First one side was in the ascendancy, then the other, the money being handed in almost as fast as it could be counted. Finally, C. H. Suydam, a wealthy merchant, and uncle of Miss Hurlburt, bought several thousand votes at once, and the opposite side gave in, thus declaring his niece winner of the cake (which was a marvel of skill and beauty) and the most beautiful lady present. Miss Hurlburt is really a very handsome girl and is an accomplished musician, being one of the finest pianists in the West. An odd feature of the drama is that Miss Hurlburt was born within five miles of Canton, Ill., and is an own niece of Mrs. Chas. Churchill and Mrs. Joseph Thompson, of that city—she is also a niece of Joseph R. Hurlburt, foreman of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST Job Printing Establishment."

What Dyspepsia Does.
It causes grievous pains by day and frightful dreams by night.
It destroys the pleasure of a good dinner.
It sours the disposition and makes its victim cross and petulant.
It makes the breath bad, the eyes leaden, and the skin sallow.
It makes the appetite capricious and unreasonable.
It causes constant grumbling and complaining.

What "Brown's Iron Bitters" Does.
It invigorates the weakened stomach, and enables it to digest.
It promotes the enjoyment of a hearty meal.
It enriches the blood, improves the liver, and cheers the mind.
It purifies the breath, clears the eyesight, and makes the skin natural.
It brings a regular and healthy desire for food at proper times.

MERRY Christmas!

FIRST snow storm, Monday.

OH! for a North Plainfield lock-up.

THE first sleighing of the season, Wednesday morning.

A FALSE alarm of fire Saturday evening last brought out a portion of the department.

OUR advertisement columns tell our readers where to purchase their Holiday goods.

THE guests of the Park House will give a private reception to their own particular friends, Christmas Eve.

THE display of holiday goods in the show windows of Plainfield's merchants are particularly fine this year.

THE walls of the Opera House are up to the roof beams and the scaffolding is being erected to hoist the heavy timbers into position.

As usual, "Uncle Ike Brown" was the first to appear on our streets in a sleigh on Wednesday last—the occasion being the first sleighing of the season.

THERE will be a pool match between two Plainfield experts at Zimmer's billiard rooms, next Thursday evening. A very exciting contest is promised.

THE churches and Sunday schools are making preparations for the Christmas celebrations, and the attendance of the latter is up to the holiday standard.

MARSHALL'S illustrated story of our own American Wonderland, will naturally attract a large audience to the Park avenue church, next Thursday evening.

THERE are the mornings when the buckwheat cake comes forth from the griddle and rapidly disappears, especially in families where there are two or three boys.

- Oh maiden fair! the Christmas comes,
And Christmas snow is flocking;
Thou hast my heart, sweet one, or else
I'd put it in your stocking.

THE parlor sale of the Holy Cross netted about $250, of which sum a large proportion was earned by the young ladies who presided over the deluding grab-bag.

THE City Hotel, corner of Park avenue and second street, will shortly again be thrown open to the public under the proprietorship of a Mr. Daly, of New York city.

WE this week enter upon a new departure—that of publishing the arrival and close of mails in this city. The public may depend upon the correctness of the same.

W. M. MCLANE, D. D., of Ohio, will preach next Sunday morning and evening in the Congregationalist church on 7th street. A cordial invitation to attend, is extended all.

LILIENSTERN, the Plainfield clothier, at No. 22 W. Front street, is positively selling off his large stock of goods at unusually low prices previous to his removal from the city.

SLEDS for Christmas presents and skates too, in great variety and at all prices are selling like hot cakes at Vanderbeek's, No. 33 Park avenue. His $4 orguinette is just the thing you want.

MR. & MRS. WILLIAM SULLIVAN will give an evening reception of their daughter Annie, at their Third street residence, next Monday evening. About fifty friends have been favored with invitations.

IN this issue McGregor & Co., the most popular of the Newark clothiers, make their Holiday announcement. Call and see them and their stock of the finest ready-made garments at the lowest of prices.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund will hold an evening entertainment in its rooms, corner of Park and North avenues, Monday evening, the 31st inst. Those present will dance the old year out and the new year in.

MR. A. F. CARPENTER again offers in this issue some special lots of horses, fine drivers and kind in harness. He also buys and sells on commission, horses for all uses, and guarantees them as represented.

EDSALL announces in another column that he has reduced the price on many articles in his Christmas goods in order, he says, to make a "clean sweep" of them this season. Purchasers of such goods will please to take notice.

WHITNEY'S assortment of Holiday goods this season is unusually fine, and should be seen at his store, under Van Deventer Hall, to be appreciated. You will find there many articles of use and ornament, that are just what you want for Christmas presents.

DURING Thursday next, beginning at noon, there will be an "auction by Gillies" at Bista's Hotel on Somerset street, North Plainfield, whereat will be offered all the household furniture contained therein, kitchen utensils, table ware, horse, carriage, etc.

THE show windows of Foote's confectionery store, on Park avenue, attract the attention of the passer-by, who stop to gaze on a model of the workshop of the establishment, displayed in one window. This really artistic piece of work is the result of the labors of George Demarest, foreman of the factory.

WE learn from the Hunterdon Democrat that Philip Case died in that town on Wednesday of last week from pneumonia. Mr. Case was a resident of this city a number of years ago. He was a carpenter by trade. His brother, Joseph Case, is an engineer on the Central Division of the P. & R. R. The Democrat says: "He was a generous, whole-souled man, and very popular."

THE Art Interchange for December reaches us with an extra colored supplement—a Psyche by Rosina Emmet—that is a credit to artist and publishers, and welcome to the journal's large list of subscribers. We know of no more valuable a collection of notes and illustrations on "the polite arts," than this periodical which is published fortnightly at No. 140 Nassau street, New York.

THE Trenton Times has "taken water" in the Carpenter libel suits, and publishes a complete retraction of the libelous articles it uttered against Senator Carpenter. It had "been told so and so," "didn't mean it," etc., and admits that "its libel*ous assertions made against Senator* Carpenter of Hunterdon were untrue." We guess the Times man didn't know the gun was loaded when he went to play with it.

THE "New Red Front" of Bachman Bros., is undoubtedly one of the finest stores in our city. It has been extended to a depth of 108 feet, giving much greater room to show goods and avoiding the crowding of customers. An immense sky-light has also been added by which goods may be examined to better advantage. This firm has added to its stock of dry goods an assortment of toys, and invite all to inspect their offerings. The same kind attention is shown visitors whether they purchase or not.

WE may not have a "green Christmas" after all.

THANKS to Councilman March, the Town Clock is to strike again.

TO-MORROW evening at 8 o'clock, T. J. Gillies will sell at auction a large assortment of fancy goods, at his store on Madison avenue.

MASS at St. Joseph's Church, North Plainfield, will be celebrated by the Rev. Father O'Hanlon, Tuesday, (Christmas Day) at 5:30 and 10:30 a. m.

COPIES of the farewell sermon preached by Dr. Bliss may be obtained gratuitously of Mr. J. K. Van Arsdale or at the store of Mr. Phillip Swain.

THE Rev. Robert Lowry on "Cardinal Wolsey," and Geo. W. Bain, Esq., on Temperance, in the Park avenue and M. E. Churches respectively, Thursday afternoon and evening of last week, drew large and satisfied audiences.

IN the Crescent avenue Presbyterian Church next Sunday the services will be in celebration of the birth of Christ. Rev. James A. Worden, D. D., will preach in the morning and address the Sunday School in the afternoon. Services at 10:30 a. m., and 4 p. m., (Sunday school) in the church.

Christmas at St. Mary's

Rev. Father Smyth, of St. Mary's church, will be assisted on Christmas by Rev. Father O'Connor, of Seton Hall. Masses will be celebrated on that day at 6, 8.30 and 10.30 o'clock A. M. Music being rendered by the new volunteer choir.

Turning and Dancing.

The Fourth Annual Ball of the Plainfield Turn Verein, will take place at Van Deventer Hall, Monday evening, to which other societies have been invited and will take part. The music will be led by Prof. Voss of Newark. Tickets, 50 cents.

North Plainfield Wants It.

The Hackettstown Gazette says: "'Oh, for an Opera House!' was the wail of the Plainfield CONSTITUTIONALIST for years. But it brought the opera house. Last week it started in with 'Oh, for a police station,' and we suppose somebody has opened a saloon under the opera house."

Two's Company.

A new comet is visible in the northwestern sky which can be seen with the unassisted eye, but as amateur astronomical observations of this sort are generally made by two persons at once, the test of discovering the comet without assistance will probably not in the majority of instances be made.

Cookie's Coming.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST carrier who has served you week after week throughout the past year, faithfully and in all kinds of weather, will soon call on you with his New Year's greeting congratulating you on the past, and wishing you well for the future. Don't forget to "do the right thing."

Entertaining and Instructive.

The third of the Y. M. C. A. course occurs at the Park avenue church, next Thursday evening, for which a few good seats can yet be secured. Mr. William I. Marshall will upon this occasion deliver his remarkably entertaining and instructive lecture on the Yellowstone National Park illustrated with the stereopticon.

An Appeal.

The ladies of the Relief Association ask for contributions of second-hand clothing, for distribution among their beneficiaries. Articles of all kinds for men, women and children, will be gratefully received; and they may be sent to the rooms of the Society, at 43 W. Second street. JULIA H. ACLY, Secretary.

Changed Its Mind.

The P. & R. R., N. J. Central Division, has called in the form of commutation tickets that had been issued, and will continue to sell those of 54 rides now in use. The new kind allowed 60 trips, and on its back was a clause setting forth the penalty of lending the ticket to be its surrender and the forfeiture of all privilege of commutation thereafter.

The Right Man.

The gentlemen who will form the Council of 1884, will undoubtedly recognize the fitness of retaining in the same position the present Clerk, Mr. W. L. Hetfield. That officer's close acquaintance with the business of the past year and that which will follow, and his efficient performance of the duties of his office, unusually commend him for re-election.

Closed With Success.

The Rev. C. H. Fowler, D. D., delivered his justly praised lecture on "Great Deeds of Great Men" in the M. E. church, Tuesday evening, before an audience flatteringly appreciative. With this closed the Course of three lectures arranged by the Ladies Aid Society of the church—a course, which, we understand, has resulted in a financial success only exceeded by its success as an unexcelled series of entertainments.

The Dunellen Incendiaries.

The Grand Jury of Middlesex County have found bills of indictment against Frank, alias "Winky" Conover and Le Grande Fulton, arrested at Dunellen on *suspicion of causing the recent incen*diary fires in that village. Conover turned States evidence, and pleaded guilty. Fulton plead not guilty, and in default of $2,500 bail, was committed, with Conover, to the New Brunswick jail, to await trial and sentence.

Our Christmas.

Monday's express delivered to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST sanctum, a box of oranges from our far away friend and former townsman, Henry Hand, who is now engaged in the manufacture of fine carriages and buggies at Longwood, Orange Co., Florida. He is also the owner of a fine young orchard of orange trees, which in a few years will prove a remunerative investment for him. The oranges came to us in good shape and were delicious in flavor and prodigious in size. Thanks, Henry. A merry Christmas to you and yours.

Cave Canum.

Emily street North Plainfield, and Park avenue of this city with the streets between, were not tempting promenades Monday afternoon when a mad dog roamed at large and howled at will therein. Two or three had scares, and the killing of a thoroughbred terrier belonging to Mr. Isaac Brokaw, is the extent of damages resulting. The wife of ex-Councilman Whiton was sprung upon, but the rabid animal was beaten off by a bystander. A charge of lead finished his career at the corner of Seventh street and Park avenue.

How Would This Do for Plainfield?

It is stated that a Taxpayers' Protective Association has been started in New Brunswick, with a large paid up capital, for the purpose of buying up all the properties advertised for sale for taxes and to hold them for redemption, or permanently, in default of tax payment. Heretofore the city, as all other cities in the State, has "bought in" the property, holding the same for the payment of taxes, and realizing comparatively nothing. Under the society the defaulters will have to pay their taxes or lose their property, and thus the general amount of taxation will be likely to be reduced.

Christmas at Netherwood.

Christmas will be celebrated by the Sunday School connected with the Netherwood Union Chapel, next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in place of the usual service. The children will sing Christmas Hymns and an address will be delivered by Rev. Dr. S. A. Patton.

Special Music.

The Crescent avenue choir will, Sunday morning, favor the congregation with some special music selected for the occasion rendered in their unexcelled manner. The opening will be "Sing, Oh Heavens' !" and the offertory, Gounod's "Oh, Sing to God," a trio for female voices. Nazareth also will be sung, and at the children's service in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, "O Holy Night."

Christmas in the Sunday Schools.

Monday evening—Methodist Episcopal.
Tuesday afternoon—Friends'.
Wednesday evening—Grace Episcopal, Congregation, and Trinity Reformed.
Thursday afternoon—Holy Cross Episcopal.
Friday evening—Crescent avenue, First Baptist, Park ave. Baptist, First Presbyterian and Warren Mission. The younger scholars of the Crescent ave., First Baptist and Mission Schools meeting in the afternoon.

Entertaining The Little Folks.

The Children's party at the Park House, Thursday evening of last week, given in honor of the birthday of one of ex-Councilman Thompson's little daughters, brought together many of the heirs and heiresses of this city's best families. As the bright-eyed and silky-haired little ones clustered together in the halls and under the handsome decorations of the parlors, the sight was unusually pretty. Supper was served during the evening, preceded and followed by music, and every means of enjoyment was given and enthusiastically accepted by the young guests.

By reason of sickness in the family it was found impossible, at almost the last moment, to have the entertainment as intended at their residence, and in consequence the courtesy and kindness of Mr. Johnson in offering the use of his parlors, was sincerely appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Masonic.

District Messenger Service.

The District Messenger Company will make a thorough canvass for subscribers immediately after the holidays, the object being to secure the requisite number to enable them to put the business in operation. Many of our leading citizens have already forwarded their applications for the service. Mr. Wann is to be congratulated upon the sweeping endorsement of his enterprise, as will be seen by the following:

To the Property Owners and Residents of Plainfield.

We believe that the Messenger Service and Police and Fire protection offered our citizens by the Plainfield District Messenger Company, as set forth in their circular, are such as to merit recognition of their efforts to establish the enterprise. We commend the undertaking to our fellow citizens, and hope for its speedy introduction.

Help!

It having been proposed to observe the 29th and 30th insts., as "Hospital Saturday and Sunday," offerings for the benefit of the Muhlenberg will be made in the *Crescent avenue and Grace churches dur*ing the latter day. It was hoped by those who are laboring for the welfare of the Hospital, that this particular Sunday would be observed generally in this particular way, but as yet no other churches have signified their willingness. If "Hospital Saturday" is observed here as in New York, stores and other places accessible to the public can be designated to receive contributions, and thereby provision made for the great number of cases the managers of the Muhlenberg are called upon to care for that are unable to pay the direct expenses attendant. A case of this sort has never been refused admission to Muhlenberg Hospital, yet that worthy institution is entirely unprovided with funds for its support save such as it receives from a few large-hearted friends. We surely have more than two-score generous men and women among our citizens of financial ability! Let those who have not already done so, reply to this appeal by a Christmas subscription. And let every congregation show its christianity-at-home by a substantial church offering.

Personalia.

Mr. W. S. Snyder, a journalist of some years experience and recently the editor of a South Jersey paper, has purchased the dying Bulletin, which he tells us was once published in this city. We wish him success in his new venture.

Mr. Wm. S. Humbert has accepted a position on the Board of Engineers of the Croton Aqueduct, and left last week to take up his residence in New York State. Plainfield's best society, in which he was a popular leader, cannot well replace him.

The Rev. George Winsor, D. D., of Milford, Pa., who was the pastor of the Plainfield M. E. Church a quarter of a century ago, has been visiting his son Thomas Winsor, Esq., of Broadway, recently, and performing the gratifying ceremony of baptising a little boy that will some day call him "Grand-pop."

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Baker, corner of Grand and Fourth avenues, Asbury Park, was married, yesterday, their daughter Hattie and Mr. Joseph C. Pierson, Jr. The bride numbers many admiring friends in the social circles of this city, who will unite with us in hoping her married life will be one long honeymoon.

The friends of our esteemed pressman—and he has a host of such—will deeply regret with us the critical state in which he lies at present, with typhoid fever. "Wrighty's" ever ready smile or cordial greeting, and genial companionship, is sadly missed by those who met him daily and with whom he was so popular. All, however, that medical attendance and experienced nursing can do for him is being exerted, and his recovery, it is hoped, will eventually result.

Amusing Outdone.

Once upon a time—a dark night recently—a young resident of this city who is a prominent leader in the Crescent avenue church, was stopped at the corner of 6th street and Madison avenue by a fierce looking man who thrust a pistol in his face and in the regulation style thundered, "throw up your hands." The brave lad never flinched, but, throwing up his hands as he was told, knocked the pistol in the air, tripped the highwayman into the gutter, and calmly walked away. We give this fairy-tale as the modest youth related it. He can be seen at the Christmas festivities of his Sunday-school next week accepting his orange and his box of candy without a blush.

Take Necessary Precautions.

Winter is upon us once more, and there are certain precautions which should be taken at this time. This season of the year is the one when fires are most likely to occur, and when the officers of the Fire Department should see to it, that every thing connected with this valuable branch of the public service is in the best possible state of efficiency. Measures should be taken to prevent the covers of the fire wells from freezing tight, and the proper working of the fire apparatus. The telephone fire alarm, too, should be kept in perfect working order. A little foresight and attention to matter of detail and precaution now, may be of incalculable benefit in the future.

Obituary—Chester N. Case.

Chester N. Case died from paralysis, at the house of his son, Lawrence Case, in Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, on December 13, at the age of eighty-seven. Mr. Case was born in Connecticut in 1796. He went South when about sixteen years old. When a young man, he established a store for the sale of general merchandise at Edgefield, South Carolina, having for his clerks Dennis Perkins and Lucius Hopkins, who succeeded him in the business, and afterwards carried on business in New York under the firm name of Perkins, Hopkins & Company, Mr. Hopkins being the first President of the Importers and Traders' Bank. Mr. Case lived in this city until a few years ago, when he went to Prairie du Chien.

Christmas Tree at the "Home."

A Christmas tree will be lighted for the children of the Home on Wednesday afternoon, the 26th inst., at 4 o'clock. In response to inquiries as to what is needed at this time for the children, we answer: Shoes and rubbers, in assorted sizes, for children from 4 to 12 years old, undershirts, drawers, handkerchiefs, gingham, for aprons, and all sewing materials. Multiply the capacity of one child for Christmas toys and candies by sixteen, and you will have the wants of the little family in this direction. All friends of this charity are cordially invited to the "Home," corner of Jackson and Westervelt avenues, at the time mentioned.

N. E. KIMBALL.

Ordered to be Extradited.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—The Court of Common Pleas here to-day upheld the decision of the County Court in the case of ex-Collector Levi D. Jarrard of Middlesex County, New Jersey, who was accused of embezzlement and forgery, and fled to Canada. Under this decision Jarrard is ordered to be extradited to be tried for forgery, and the Court refused to consider an appeal from this decision. Jarrard, who has been fighting against extradition for several months, will have to commit suicide if he carries out his boast "never to go back to New Jersey alive."

The question at issue was whether Jarrard had been guilty of forgery. If this crime was not fastened upon him he could not be extradited, embezzlement not being an extraditable offence. The alterations made by him in his books after the audit were claimed to be proof of forgery, but Jarrard's counsel contended that these alterations were only in the prisoner's own books, which he had a right to change as he pleased. In answer to this the representatives of the State of New Jersey said that the audit made the statements in the books binding on both parties, and that any change made thereafter was as much forgery as an alteration in an agreement. Jarrard has been confined since August last in Welland County jail, just across the Niagara River from Buffalo, where he has had every liberty consistent with security against his escape. The proceedings here have been watched throughout by Mr. Rice, Prosecutor of Pleas for the State of New Jersey, and Mr. R. Adrain, solicitor for the Chosen Freeholders of Middlesex County.

New Market.

A concert and entertainment, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the New Market Episcopal church was held in the Dunellen School Hall on Thursday evening last to a large and appreciative audience. The following programme was rendered:

PART I.

OVERTURE......"Enchantment"......Hermann.
Violin, Prof. J. B. Bartow. Piano, Miss B. Day.
READING......"Briar Rose"......
Mrs. Alberti.
VOCAL DUET..."I Will Magnify Thee"......Mosenthal.
Miss Adair and Prof J. B. Bartow.
SELECTIONS FROM TRAVIATTA......Verdi.
Violin, Master W. Bartow. Piano, Miss I. Day.
PIANO SOLO......"Fenerzauber"......Wagner.
Miss Dewey.
SOPRANO SOLO......"My Queen"......Blumenthal.
Miss Adair.

PART II.

INSTRUMENTAL DUET, Sonata in b......Dusbek.
READING..."King Volmer and Elsie"......
Miss Bessie Smith.
SELECTIONS FROM BEATRICE......Balfe.
Prof. J. B. Bartow and Miss Bella Day.
SOPRANO SOLO......"Waiting"......Millard.
Miss Adair.
INSTRUMENTAL SOLO, "Theme and Variations," (op. 26, Beethoven.
Miss Dewey.
READING......"Too Utterly Utter"......
Mrs. Alberti.
INSTRUMENTAL DUET, "Pole Militaire,"......(Samuel Jackson.
Misses Bella and Irene Day, with Violin Obligato by Prof. Bartow.

The selections from "Traviatta" by Master Willie Bartow and Miss Irene Day, were enthusiastically encored, also the soprano solo "My Queen," by Miss Cora Adair, who responded with "There sits a bird on every tree." The "Selections from Beatrice," by Prof. J. B. Bartow and Miss Bella Day were well rendered. Mrs Alberti received an encore for "Too Utterly Utter," giving in response "Jerry the Newsboy" with characteristic effect. Altogether it was one of the most charming entertainments ever given in Middlesex County.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The song meeting will be held Sunday evening from 6.45 to 7.15 P. M. All are welcome.

The Bible study is one of the most necessary meetings of the Association. It is held every Saturday evening.

The Boys' Branch will meet for Bible study this Friday at 4 o'clock. Will every boy who sees this notice and is connected with the Branch be in attendance, as an important matter is to be brought before the meeting?

The young men's prayer and song meeting is held every Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The subject for next Monday evening is "Things worth accepting." 1 Tim. 1-15. Will not all young men interested in Christian work endeavor to be present, and if possible bring some friend also.

The next reception given by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary will be held on this Friday evening. A fine programme will be presented. This will be the second of the Course of receptions to be given this winter. A most cordial invitation is extended to all young men to attend. Let the rooms be filled.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

The Japanese never wear shoes in the house. This is a great saving on their carpets. But then they have no carpets. So we don't know just what good there is in this no shoe business after all.

"Rough on Corns." Ask for Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Quick, complete, permanent cure. Corns, warts, bunions.

If at any time you desire the wind to change suddenly, take a pan of ashes, go into the back yard, and, facing the direction you desire the wind to blow from, quickly empty your pan. All who have ever tried this rule have never found it to fail.

"Buchu-Paiba." Quick, complete cure, all annoying Kidney and Bladder Diseases. $1. Druggists.

"Rough on Coughs." Knocks a Cough or Cold endwise. For children or adults. Troches, 15c. Liquid, 50c. At druggists.

Unhappy soldier to the Court Martial: "Oh, gentlemen, I couldn't help it! I assure you, gentlemen, I couldn't stay awake! I knew it would be death, but sleep overpowered me! Spare me, good gentlemen! Remember that before I enlisted I had served on the police!"

Try "Pomeroy's Petroline Porous Plasters," when everything else fails. Be sure you get them in an envelope. Price 25 cents. Sold only at Shaw's drug store.

"Five years ago my life was a dread all the time from Heart Disease, since using Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator the English language would fail me in telling the good I received.—Kate Mangrove, Columbia, Ind. For sale at druggists.

Stop that coughing by using Shafer's Wild Cherry Rock and Rye. It is made from pure old rye whiskey, wild cherries and rock candy; is always reliable and invaluable as a tonic. For sale by all grocers, druggists and wine merchants.

"Yes," said the deacon, "that cow is badly hurt and wouldn't bring $5. But I shall get more for her. A party of swell city fellows are coming down here to hunt and I shall put her up in the scrub pine lot and then tell them deer abound up here. Oh, she's as good as sold for $50."

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth and Head ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price, 50 cents. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

Answer this question. Why do so many we see around us, seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow skin, when for 75 cents, we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure. This is the best question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, whilst its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since it's first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. If your Lungs are sore, Chest or Back, Lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by R. J. Shaw.

The claim that if women were allowed the ballot only the best men would be selected for office, is a proposition which should be received with many grains of allowance. If their judgment is so infallible it is strange they make so many mistakes in selecting husbands.

A RUN ON A DRUG STORE.

Never was such a rush made for any drug store as is now at R. F. Reynolds' for a trial bottle of Dr. King's new discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. All persons affected with Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs or any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can get a trial bottle of this great remedy free, by calling at above drug store. Regular size, $1.

UNION DIME SAVINGS INSTITUTION.

Broadway, 32d st., and 6th ave., New York, Nov. 28th, 1879. DR. Liver—"Dear Sir:—About two weeks ago I purchased a bottle of "Sulphur" Antidote to MALARIA for a member of my family who had been suffering from Dyspepsia for several years, and especially so for the past few weeks. Although the symptoms were grave, everything ended we could give relief, so that it might seem presumption to expect results. Under these circumstances benefit was improbable, great weakness and despondency was the result. Your Antidote worked like magic in removing all pain and suffering; general health much improved. I take pleasure in recommending your remedy, hoping that others suffering from the same or similar [illegible].

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE HEIRESS'S DIARY.

Sorrows of a Girl Who Wants to be sure She is Loved for Herself.

November 5.—I begin to think life is a hollow sham. So many people, and elderly men especially, flatter me and follow me about, that a sort of true disgust is settling all around and about my mind. Heigho! Why, only last night the Count said in his pigeon English, "Mademoiselle, you are so I hear [illegible]—so beautiful, so young, so accomplished and so—rich." I hate the Count! I wish I was ugly. I wish I were old. I wish I were poor. I wish some one would love me for myself alone. I wish everything was different. I wish—oh dear—

November 6.—Irving in "Louis XI" is wonderful as to make up. Who would think that Mathias, Charles the First and Louis XI were one and the same man; and that Terry, angular and not a feature in her face but is sort of atmospheric, I declare she haunts me. I wish I were an actress; to swaying a great big audience and having it rise at one, so to speak. Ma would shriek if she could read this last; she detests anything connected with the stage. I wonder why? perhaps pa—but never mind.

How different Maude Harlan's mother is. Her life is bound up in the idea of making Maude a great actress and she will be one, for she is a wonderful child and marvel generally, even now.

November 7.—Another proposal. Ma's furious at me refusing this last offer. She says: "Suppose you are rich marry for money." all the same; or if you won't marry for money, love where there is money." One thing I have determined, I shall not marry until I love some one dearly. That young Canadian, now; his eyes followed me about with despair written in their blue depths, but perhaps it's all acting, perhaps he yearns for real estate and bonds too. I don't know. I suspect every one, I am getting a nasty, suspicious girl. There must be some truth and real love in the world, only I haven't struck any yet. "Some day—" Will my "someday" ever come, or shall I always be the pursued of fortune hunters?

November 8.—I've just had a new gown sent home, all gold and bronze, and such a love of a bonnet! yellow roses and autumn leaves. I shall look well in it, I know, for really, without vanity, I am pretty and stylish. That Canadian said the other night. "Your eyes always remind me of those belonging to 'Lorelei.' There is a picture somewhere of one combing her seaweed hair on a rock and singing a weird song the while; her eyes, loving, almond shaped, and darkly, deeply blue, are your eyes, and the ship that will soon be dashed to pieces on the Lorelei's rock reminds me of myself." What do you suppose he means, Diary dear? I remember every word. Dear me, I always do what he talks to me—

November 9.—We had a dinner party last night and Sidney —— actually got tipsy. Pa's tawny port did it, for Sidney drank a whole bottle himself, so pa says. He told me—Sidney, I mean—that his life would be a blank without me; but I know he was thinking of that port all the time. Ugh! I was so disgusted. I hate men who get tipsy.

November 10.—I've a great mind to marry a missionary—one of the Plymouth brotherhood for instance. I think I should like to be beaten occasionally. I think I should like anything better than this sugar-plum existence.

Almost everybody has heard of the liberty of the press. We desire to remark that it doesn't mean that a man can have this paper eight or nine years at a stretch without paying for it.

* * *

The nuisance of having the wires stretched from pole to pole in mid-air in our cities has had its day. A very successful attempt to connect all the public buildings in Washington by its wires laid under ground has been accomplished and by the most exacting tests known to electricians the circuits have been found in many respects better than by the overhead means of hanging wires. One peculiar characteristic and a good one is that by the underground method the unpleasant snapping and cracking of the telephone is done away with and talking and hearing easier and more distinct.

NEW YORK.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

Surrogate's Order to Limit Creditors

Union County Surrogate's Office, October 23d, 1883.

Chas. A. Haynes the Administrator of Edward B. Haynes, deceased.

On application of the above named Administrator it is ordered that said Administrator give public notice to the creditors of the estate of said decedent to bring in their debts, demands or claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from this date, by setting up a copy of this order, within twenty days hereafter, in five of the most public places in the county of Union, for two months, and also within the said twenty days, by advertising the same in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the same space of time; and if any creditor shall neglect to exhibit his or her debt, demand or claim, within the said period of nine months, public notice being given as aforesaid, such creditor shall be forever barred of his or her action therefor against the said Administrator.

By JAMES J. GERBER, Surrogate.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.—To the Vilas National Bank of Plattsburgh.—By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Elizabeth Reed is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, and plead, demur or answer to the complainant's bill on, or before the second day of January next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you. The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Elgar Barton to Robert A. Reed, dated June 1st, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, on lands in the city of Elizabeth, and you are made defendants, because you recovered a judgment against Charles W. Barton, in the Union County Circuit Court and therefore claim to have some lein on said mortgaged premises.

SACHEM'S HEAD.

ANTIQUARIAN GLEANINGS.

BY E. HAMILTON LEE.

"Sloping hills around enclose
Where many a beech and brown oak grows,
Beneath whose dark and branching bowers
Its tides a far-famed river pours
By nature's beauties taught to please,
Sweet Tusculum of rural ease."

It was in the summer of 1849 that I embarked from "the city of Manhattans" on a visit to relatives, descendants of an ancient family whose progenitors are said to have emigrated from the shores of the Zuyder-Zee, and had settled in 1688 at a point of land several miles below Throgg's Neck, on the Sound. I found them at their country seat, 'the Grange,' a long, low-peaked cottage peeping out under lofty elms from an arbor of holly-hocks and sun-flowers, bordered by a garden with leeks, garlic and such like sweet-scented herbs, on one of the many little bays which indent the shores of the Sound and are at ebb-tide with their weedy flats and mephitic exhalations, no bad substitute for the dikes and fens of Holland, and this with true Dutch-like propensity, their descendants harbored about creeks and shallows. Of the plague of the cholera which that summer had depopulated no small portion of the city, and had carried off the whole tribe of hard drinkers and besotted tobacco-chewers, they had not so much as heard, and seemed to regard my account of it as a story gotten up by stock-jobbers. I had no wish to disturb this little colony of day-dreamers and left them to their pipes and 'pottles.'

In this state of things I was one moonlight night surprised by the appearance of a strange sail, which having crept up unperceived into the inlet, came to anchor, with the stealth of a picaroon, under the lee of the pig-sty, a manœuvre which led me to suspect her of some hostile design on its inmates. She proved, however, to be the 'Juno,' bound on a peaceable voyage up the Sound to Sachem's Head and Indian Neck.

The crew consisted of Pompey, the pig, Cæsar, the dog, and Cupid, the black boy, and the Captain was no less a personage than Jason Jones. I was curious to know something more than I could glean from the map and Gazeteer, in which they were neither marked nor mentioned; of Sachem's Head and Indian Neck, places as their names would seem to indicate, of antique renown or singular configuration; so having bargained for one of two berths, which, with a passage of a few inches between them, made up the cabin, I betook myself to the study of 'the Indian wars,' and 'every man his own navigator' an I left 'Juno' and the Captain to get on as best they could. The Captain, or 'Cap'n' as he called himself, was a thick-set, weather-beaten, bluff-featured personage, with whom it was, as he said, 'a standing rule never to ill-treat a woman, put up with an insult, nor back out of a scrape.' I was, therefore, as may be supposed, cautious to give him no just cause for offence, and as Cupid was not mischievous, nor Cæsar ambitious, the little pugnacity of temper he seemed, notwithstanding his standing rule, to possess, was, of necessity, exercised on 'Juno' and the pig.

The voyage was not without interest, and what with smoking and chewing tobacco, discussing points of Scripture, politics and rum-toddy—at which I was no match for the Captain—the sight of cranes, porpoises and the like—mighty wonders of the deep—we enlivened the voyage most pleasantly.

Of the Neck, I shall only say, as I did not visit it, that is in the neighborhood of the Head, as we must suppose, indeed, it must be, from the name. The latter being, on the Captain's authority, 'the beautifiest,' to quote him verbatim, 'the healthiest spot on the face of the known airth.' The coast is indented by a broad, deep inlet, into which stretches a bold headland or promontory, quite destitute of trees, but famed for having in former times supplied the materials of one of those military trophies so unaccountably common in the days of our pious and peaceful ancestors, to wit: a pole, surmounted by the head of an Indian. The adjacent country was a wild mixture of wood and rock, hill and glen, for the most part as unpruned and tenantless as it was in the days of the old sachem whose head has somehow been metamorphosed into the promontory. But the 'lion' of the neighborhood is some half a score of small islands, clustering, like a clump of sea-fowl, just within the outermost points of the inlet, and named, from their diminutive size, the Thimbles. Some are bare rocks, others shrubbed or wooded; some low and verdant, shaded with clumps of small trees; others lofty, misshapen and broken. The remnants, as it were, of a sunken paradise. They who would see a more picturesque group of islets than the Ægean presents, have only in summer, to look down from the Head, at sunset, on the Thimbles. They are a fit residence for Oberon and his queen—

"That had their haunts in dale or piny mountain, Or forest, by slow stream or pebbly spring;"

and the sight of them is worth a voyage of a hundred leagues. The Head is during the warm months a favorite resort of the people along the Sound. My friend and constant companion, while I made one of the throng, but one of the anti-fashionables, at the Head, the Captain, was eternally cruising about and among the Thimbles, and at a world of pains to take me to, and inflict upon me, the history of every spot in them which had been the scene of ancient or remarkable event.

There was Kidd's Harbor, in which the famous sea-robber of that name was wont, like a water-rat, to lurk; the 'Devil's Punch-bowl,' a deep, oblong hollow, worn by the waves, or scooped out of the solid rock, around which his jolly crew had oft-times eaten and drunken—more particularly the latter;—the piles of earth and stone thrown up by adventurers in quest of his money; nay the very pit, at the bottom of which, not more than an hundred years before, an iron chest was struck by a pick-axe, and instantly sank, to what depth has been, and probably, never will be discovered.

East of Sachem's Head, and three or four miles distant from it, lies the ancient town or borough of Guilford, famed as the birthplace of the poet Halleck, and other worthies of less note. Such idlers at the Head, as are fond of a good sermon and a good dinner, will do well to visit the borough on a Sunday. The sole object of my ride to it—which I was fain, for the want of other ready means of conveyance, to perform in an ox-cart—was to get a sight of the house in which the poet was born; who I was pleased to learn of a villager was reckoned to be about the smartest man that ever left the place. At the "Grange," where I had sojourned before embarkation on this cruise to Yankeedom, I had read these few lines from a poem of Fitz-Greene Halleck engraven on the tomb above the grave of a poet, J. Rodman Drake, who was his early friend:

"Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my better days,
None knew thee but to love thee,
None named thee but to praise."

and the memory of that simple tomb on the lone moor at Hunter's Point impressed me sadly, visiting the first home of the writer of the epitaph. Guilford was, I was told, till within a few years, noted as a faithful repository of old customs, characters and manners, traces of which—such as riding double, ornamenting the outside of a house with festoons of dried apples and pumpkin rinds, and even 'bundling,' were perceptible even to that year. But curious in all matters pertaining the ancients, I had no cause to regret my four miles jolting over stump and stone in an ox-cart, laden as I was, on my return, with the lore of a brace of erudite gossips, yclept Eli Kirkem and Ambrose Graves, who unkennelled and followed up even the least fact connected with the fortunes of this illustrious borough from the important epoch of its settlement.

'The old Stone house' was pointed out a short distance from the village common—that emerald oasis in the centre of the town—on the right of the road toward Sachem's Head. They told me that it is believed to be the oldest house in Yankee-land, and although that is many years ago, I understand, it still stands, bidding fair to outlast a century more; only very few buildings in America outrank it in age, having been erected by the company who first settled the village in 1640. The house was used as a fort in the infant days of the early settlement for a time, to defend the colonists from predatory savages. Within its walls the first marriage which took place in Guilfordtown was solemnized; and contrasting with the extravagance of their descen*dants of this era, the wedding feast con*sisted of pork and beans.

After passing 'the old stone house,' I became wondrously interested in a ghost story which Eli Kirkem related. 'In the time of the old Squire who lived in the Stone house when I was a boy,' he said, 'one night at the village store near the south end of the common, the old Squire told a story which happened in the old house in his more youthful days.' Surrounded by a group of gossipers, who on cold nights usually congregated around the stove, the old Squire spoke as follows:

'My father had with him when he served as an officer in the Revolution, a black man, his slave, and when the war had ended and the troops were discharged he returned with him to his home at the Stone house in Guilford.

'The negro lived many years after the death of his old master, my father,' said the squire, 'but when I was a young man the slave was seized with sickness, which bore him away to the other world. He was buried, and nothing more was thought of it, and four months were already past—when behold, on a winter's night, being in my bed, thoroughly awake, I perceived a man, who stirring up the ashes of my hearth, opened the burning coals, which made him the more easily seen.

'Although I found myself, with the sight of the ghost, much frightened, I found courage to ask him who he was, and for what purpose he came thither to lay my hearth abroad. And he in a low voice answered: 'Master, fear nothing; I am thy poor slave Sancho; I come to expiate my crimes in the semblance of the flesh in which I committed them.'

'I slowly replied: if the commandment of God call you thither, to what purpose came you hither? 'Sir,' said he, 'take it not amiss, for it is not without divine permission. I am in a state not desperate, and when I may be helped by you, if you bear any good will toward me.' Hereupon I asked what he needed and what succor he expected from me.' 'You know, master,' said he, 'that long before my death I was in the war, where men have many bad examples. Liberty, youth and temerity all conspire in war times against a poor soldier. I committed many outrages during the late war, robbing and pillaging even the churches, for which I am grievously tormented. But, good master, if you loved me in life as one of yours, forget me not after death. I ask no part of your gold, only some alms for my sake, which will assist to mitigate my pains. My mistress owes me some money, on the reckoning between her and me. Let her bestow it, not for my body which has no need of it, but to assuage the griefs of my spirit, which exacts it of your charity.' I know not how I found myself emboldened by these speeches, but I had more desire to entertain it than fear of the apparition. I demanded whether it would tell me news of my father, his late master, who died long before. To which he made answer: 'I need not trouble myself with it, for he was already in the number of the blessed, since the help he gave during the late war, to the wounded and dying had purchased heaven for him.' From thence I fell upon another question, and was curious to know what happened to a certain judge whom I very well knew, and who lately passed into the other life; to which he replied:

'Sir, speak not of that miserable man, for hell possesses him, through the corruption of justice which he by damnable practice exercised—having an honor and soul saleable to the prejudice of his conscience.'

'My curiosity carried me higher—to inquire what became of a certain elder who was a leading man in the church a few years before that time, in our town—to which question I heard another voice that came from a window behind me, saying very distinctly: 'It is not of Sancho you must demand that, because he as yet can say nothing of the condition of that deacon; but I may have more experience thereof than he, I deceasing five years ago and being present at an accident which gave me some light of it.'

'I was much surprised, unexpectedly hearing this other voice, and turning saw, by the help of the moon's brightness which reflected into my chamber, a man leaning on my window, whom I entreated to tell where the elder was; whereto he replied:

'He well knew that passing out of this life, he had been much tormented, and his prayerful, good, religious life much helped him, but he could not at this present say in what state he was.'

'Having spoken this much, he turned toward Sancho, sitting near the fire, and said: 'Let us go, it is time we depart.' At which Sancho, making no other answer, speedily rose up and redoubled his com*plaints with a lamentable voice, saying:* 'Sir, I entreat you once again, remember me, and that my mistress performs the request I made you;' hereupon the two vanished together from the fireplace, arising amid the wreathes of smoke upward through the wide chimney.

[illegible] the old squire [illegible] from his wife what the spirit told him was true, carefully disposed himself, speedily and charitably, to satisfy all that was required. In conclusion he said:

'Holy scripture witness that the dead are sometimes sent to living men. As we know not what becomes of the spirits of the dead, so we suppose the dead know not what is done in the world at the time it is done, but they may afterward learn it from those who pass out of this life into the other and converse with them. Yet they understand not all sorts of affairs but those told them and such as are permitted to remain in their memories who recount them to spirits who must know them.'

And thus ended the quaint quotation by Eli Kirkem of the old squire's ghost story.

And now allow me to write when other visitors visit Sachem's Head, I hope they may find the timbers above water and that the women may outnumber the men, and of all places of summer resort on the Connecticut coast they will find that the Head is the head. I will end my story with a song in which 'I will bring thee to the glen

Lovely and lonely. There we'll sit unviewed
By scoffing eye; and let our hearts beat free
With their own mutual throb. For wild and rude
The access is, and no one will there intrude
To poison our free thoughts, and mar our solitude.'
—Drake.

THE GLEN.

A spot where dew drops ever weep
Undrunk it's water's well.
Where echo might forever sleep,
And sprites at noonday dwell.
No footsteps to its fountains lead,
Nor fruits are gathered there,
Nor blossoms—things that pity breed,
So lonely yet so fair.

There grows the fir—she that wears
The leaf with crimson speck;
The bramble that the blossom bears,
The woodbine berries deck;
And alders, tumbling by the brim
Of streams the heron wades;
And hemlock, that, umbrage dim,
The honeysuckle shades.

The partridge there, in winter finds
A shelter from the storm;
The hunter there, by snow-tracks winds
The rabbit to her form;
And there, to sunny lands their flight
Should some mischance delay,
A home the sparrows seeks at night
The black bird shrieks by day.

A spot, whose tutelary sprite,
I ween in days gone by,
Untroubled but by murmur light
Of brook that babbles nigh,
Has seen by human hands unlaid,
A simple altar rise
Of rock with bud and berry spread
A grateful sacrifice.

A CHINAMAN'S ADVANCES REPULSED.

Recently a Mongolian, attired in the eccentric costume of his race, entered a street car and blithely seated himself near a comely Irishwoman. In addition to other necessary adjuncts of civilized society he wore a bland smile, which he continually bestowed on every one in his vicinity. The daughter of the Emerald Isle was stern and dignified and held herself well in hand, so to speak. Presently the Chinaman, who had been ogling his attractive neighbor, feeling socially inclined, ventured the remark that it was "belly cold." "Ugh, you haythan!" she exclaimed, and then continued volubly, "If y'd tuck yer short in yer pants, like a dacent Christian, yer stomach wudn't be cowld."

DID HE KILL ANYONE?

The mystery in regard to the dead woman found in the woods near Perth Amboy some months since, seems to be no nearer a solution than at first. Amanda Fluch, who was supposed to be the woman, has been to New Brunswick and had an interview with the prisoner, John Koop, who is now in the County jail. She says she has not seen him before in eighteen months. Fanny Dunham, also supposed to be the woman, has been found in New York and brought before Koop. Some suppose that the body is that of Koop's Bavarian wife, but nothing definite is known. The prisoner now denies that he ever harmed any one. Chief of Police Fauratt is working indefatigably in the case, and avers that in his opinion, the murdered woman was Koop's wife.

ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS.

The festival of Christmas grew up at Rome, where it took the place and time of the old Saturnalia, or winter holiday of the heathen city. Indeed, many of the Christmas customs, and some of those the most beautiful, are said to have a heathen origin, and were simply transferred from the false worship to the true. Thus, hanging the houses with green was a heathen rite in Northern Europe from the earliest ages, and the lighting of tapers, and giving of presents, which seem to us to recall the midnight manger and the gifts of the magi, are yet as old as Rome itself. The holly-berries and the mistletoe, they take us away back to the Druid worship of the ancient Britons, and the yule-log, rolled in state into many a baronial hall, is a reminiscence of the German yule-feast in commemoration of the sun's return at the winter solstice. Thus, as the water-jars at the marriage-feast were laden with wine at the Saviour's look, so the harmless elements of the primeval faiths took on a new meaning and beauty when touched by the Gospel of Christ.

OUT IN THE AIR.

Do not be afraid of the winter cold for a healthy child. Let it get all the out-door air it can, and when summer comes it will not need so much "building up." Keep it away from window cracks, from drafts in the house but not out of the sunshine. Give it a sled, a wagon, a bicycle, a hoop, anything to make it run out of doors, and do not imitate the teacher of one of our primary schools who offered her little people so many good "marks" if they would not go out to play at recess. They were so much more quiet and manageable, she said, when they stayed in. And no doubt she was right. Bad air and dull play in a heated school-room will subdue the wildest child, while a good, stirring play, a fresh supply of oxygen, would of course send in a troupe disposed to noise and perhaps to mischief, but certainly (if she had but remembered it) with clearer brains and better working power.—Iron Era.

EATING LEMONS.

A good deal has been said through the papers about the healthfulness of lemons. The latest advice is how to use them so they will do the most good, as follows: Most people know the benefit of lemonade before breakfast, few know that it is more than doubled by taking another at night also. The way to get the better of the bilious system without blue pills or quinine is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much ice water as makes it pleasant to drink without sugar, before going to bed. In the morning, or rising, at least a half hour before breakfast, take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humor and bile with efficacy, without any of the weakening effects of calomel or congress water. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear; the powerful acid of the juice, which is always corrosive, invariably produces inflammation after awhile, but properly diluted so that it does not burn or draw the throat, it does its medical work without harm, and when the stomach is clear of food, has abundant opportunity to work over the system thoroughly, says a medical authority.

STRANGE HABITS OF BASS.

During a recent visit to Greenwood Lake we were informed by Mr. Zindle of a curious phase of black bass life in that water. When the first cold snap comes, so that there is a film of ice formed upon the surface of the lake, large numbers of bass may be seen, belly up, on top of the water. They remain in that condition until a change of temperature, which in the early winter months is apt to be higher, and then, instanter, the bronzebackers regain their normal briskness. When taken from the water as they lie on the surface belly up, in a semi-torpid condition, they immediately recover their spirits and friskiness. One of the most singular features of this curious trait is, that it is confined to the large-mouthed species of the black bass. The guides of Greenwood Lake confirm the statement of Mr. Zindle, who also informs us that he stocked a private pond of Hon. Abram S. Hewitt with black bass which he picked out of the lake when in the above named condition, and that the plant was entirely successful. Have any of our readers a knowledge of the like doing of black bass in their local waters? Can any one assign a cause for this curious trait?

WHY WOMEN LOOK UNDER THE BED.

Men have the habit of ridiculing women because they look under the bed every night before retiring for the undesirable burglar. It is wrong. This simple act on the part of our sisters, wives and mothers in looking for that which they do not want to find is, in most cases, a harmless one, and is not deserving of censure. Sometimes they find something between the slats and floor bigger than a bedbug and more dangerous than a cobweb. This was the experience of a woman in Georgia, who, while taking her accustomed peep, discovered two colored men stowed away in that neighborhood. Of course she was not frightened, but she was so mad that she stirred up the whole village with her screams, and the burglars becoming alarmed, jumped out of a three-story window, and, falling on a policeman who was sleeping in the doorway below, broke his neck, thereby causing a vacancy in the corps. If this lady had not kept up the time-honored custom of looking under the bed there is no telling what crimes might have been committed in that house by the two men who were on duty while the policeman slept. By all means let the women look under the bed, and those who are near-sighted should be furnished with opera glasses by the municipal government, and thus be able to detect crime lurking in low places.

LITERARY NOTE.

The North American Review for January presents a table of contents possessing in the highest degree the character of contemporary human interest. First, the opposite sides of the question of "Ecclesiastical Control in Utah" are set forth by two representative men, President John Taylor, the official head of the Mormon Church, and the Hon. Eli H. Murray, Governor of the Territory of Utah. Senator John I. Mitchell writes of the "Tribulations of the American Dollar," contending that it is our imperative duty to-day to settle definitely the question, whether we shall have dollars of unequal commercial value in circulation. In an article entitled "Theological Re-adjustments," the Rev. Dr. J. H. Rylance insists upon the necessity of eliminating from the teachings of the churches, whether in the pulpit or in the Sunday-school, all doctrines and all statements of supposed facts which have been discredited by the advance of exegetical scholarship, and by the progress of natural science. Senator Henry W. Blair, taking for his theme "Alcohol in Politics," advocates the submission to the people of an amendment to the United States Constitution prohibiting the manufacture, sale and importation of intoxicating liquors. No one who read in the December Review the first half of "The Day of Judgment," Gail Hamilton's incisive review of the domestic life of Thomas Carlyle, will forego the pleasure of perusing the latter half in the current number. "Evils Incident to Immigration," by Edward Self, is a forcible statement of the mischiefs wrought by the importation into our social and political life of an enormous annual contingent from the lowest stratum of the population of Europe. Finally, the subject of "Bribery by Railway Passes" is discussed by Charles Aldrich and Judge N. M. Hubbard. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and for sale by booksellers generally.

GREETING.

The wheel of Time steadily revolves and no human power can turn it back. Year follows year in rapid succession. We number them as things that were, we remember them as a tale that has been told.

As the setting sun dips below the Western horizon 1883 is fading from view. Soon the silvery dawn will herald the approach of 1884.

May its coming be joyous, bringing peace and prosperity to the people, individually and nationally, enriching the whole land with plenty, and scattering broadcast the pearl gifts of truth and righteousness.

Accept as heart prompted our salutation to all of

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

LET THE PEOPLE THRIVE.

Prosperity, from a Democratic standpoint, means the general public welfare, a free chance for every citizen to exercise his enterprise, skill, industry and ability in his own particular calling and to reap therefrom honest reward; the legitimate employment and just remuneration of capital; and for labor adequate compensation, undwarfed by extortion, direct or indirect.

That is Democratic prosperity, and experience demonstrates, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that an equitable diffusion of wealth and real independence can in no other way be secured and permanently retained by the people.

Monopolists, now striving for ruling power in this country, bitterly antagonize the Democratic party, because they well know, if Democracy, which is the spirit of Constitutional freedom, gains the mastery, their sordid intent of making the rich richer and the poor poorer, or speaking more directly to the point, of raising the privileged few to the rank of arbitrary princes and lowering the toiling many to the condition of dependent serfs, will certainly be frustrated, as it must be, if popular rights are to live.

Down with Monopoly!
Let the People thrive!

WELL SAID.

Judge Joel Parker, when charging the Grand Jury of Burlington county last week, took occasion to say—

"Bribery at elections is a great evil, not only in this State but throughout the country, and if it proceeds much further, nobody but the wealthy can run for office. It has run to riot in some places, and it has come to pass that even when a National Committee, of either party, press the claims of a possible candidate the fact that he is a millionaire is publicly noticed in the papers. If the matter is not checked, this Republic will go the way of other Republics. Its only safety is in the purity of the ballot."

That was bringing the attention of those vested with the power of criminal indictment to a gigantic and wide spread evil, which is doing more at the present time to undermine free representative institutions than aught else in the land.

We hope every other Judge will echo the warning words of Joel Parker, for never was there a truer saying uttered than that—The Republic's only safety is in the purity of the ballot.

If conventions and elections are to be controlled by the mercenary influence of money, and men nominated and elected only because they possess wealth and the disposition to use it corruptly, the liberties of the people will soon be at an end.

The purity of the ballot is our only safeguard against the worst kind of despotism, and he who would pollute it for any purpose, or in any manner, is a traitor of the darkest dye.

A PHILIPPIC.

The Freedman's Bank, of unsavory fame, was a Republican party institution, from gilded dome to empty vaults.

Gentlemen high in the councils of the grand humanitarian and professed color loving party engineered its affairs.

In the homely language of the Mississippi river it "bust its biler."

The hard earned savings of thousands of colored people went up and have not yet come down.

The colored depositors continue on the growl and we blame them not.

A member of the colored National Committee, at its session in Washington the other day, delivered the following terrible philippic:—

"Mr. Chairman, The Freedman's Bank was the most disgraceful and sinful swindle that ever stained earth or shocked high heaven. The commission appointed at $5,000 a year each was like a hyena devouring a carcass, and then like a lion smashing its bones and sucking the marrow therefrom, and furthermore, a Republican Congress made the commission the pall-bearers of this same carcass."

We quote the indignant words of a colored gentleman.

Democrats are entirely clear of the rumpus.

It is a Republican family jar throughout.

We would suggest the expediency of Mr. Blaine, or Mr. Sherman, or Mr. Sabin, or some other of the many rich Republican aspirants for Presidential honor, coming forward with a few barrels of crisp greenbacks and allaying the rising storm of political retribution.

The most disgraceful and sinful swindle that ever stained earth or shocked high heaven, is a fearful charge to stagger under.

Even President Arthur's shoulders are not broad and strong enough for the load.

Dorsey has retired from business.

At Ocean Beach, a well was driven to a depth of 270 feet, at which point the pipe was withdrawn, as it was still in a bed of marl.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy, George M. Robeson, has been offered the Presidency of the railroads in New Jersey under the control of the Reading. The offer as yet has not been accepted.

A pair of knitted socks 2,000 years old have been discovered in an Egyptian tomb. They are loosely knit of fine sheep's wool, and the foot is finished in two parts to allow the sandal strap to pass between them.

In the Yorkshire coal mines there were last year 95 deaths, so that one life was lost to every one of the total 807 employed. The day is gone by when trifling with the lives of men can be carried on with impunity even in coal mining.

SHOWING THAT A BOY MAY BE USEFUL.

This story is told by a preacher of a brother minister. Recently a circus was in the city and the ministerial curiosity was so awakened that an outside view of the canvas would not suffice. The minister had compunctions of conscience against the questionable desire. However, his liberty of belief would allow the children to go, provided they had some good sized masculine protector. But unfortunately for him, he had no children. Finally he hit upon a plan. He went to his brother preacher and tried to borrow his five year old boy as a companion to the circus. But the other preacher remarked: "I've waited a long time for my boy to get big enough to go to a circus and now I want to use him myself."

A STRANGE DISCOVERY.

The skeletons of twenty-three persons and about the same number of horses were discovered in the northern part of Dickey county, Dakota, a few days ago, by a party of explorers. They were found in a valley in that singular range of hills extending from near Fort Pierre to the British line, near the head of the Moose river. Among the skeletons were found brass cavalry buttons, spurs, and other effects of mounted men, but no guns or implements of war. There were also some shoes remaining on the horses' feet. That these are the remains of some party accompanied by an escort of cavalry or of a detachment of cavalry there can be no doubt. It is thought they met with a violent death, and that the horses were probably killed as a last resort and their bodies used for protection. They have been there probably twenty years, as all connection between the bones has disappeared. Many skeletons have been found heretofore in other places in that region, most of which are believed to be those of prisoners carried away by the retreating Indians after the raid into Minnesota in 1863.

PRISON LABOR REFORM SCHEMES.

TRENTON, Dec. 18.—The Legislative Committee of the Labor Congress of this State have agreed upon the following points in reference to their proposed substitute for the system of contract prison labor. First, the abolition of the contract system; second, that as many prisoners as are necessary shall be employed in producing the articles necessary for the State institutions; third, that eight hours shall constitute a day's work in prisons and reformatories, and two hours each day shall be devoted to the moral and intellectual instruction of the inmates; fourth, that a portion of the earnings of prisoners be placed to their credit, and after the expenses of their trial, etc., is deducted the balance be paid to their wives and families, if they have any, and if they have none to themselves at the expiration of their term of servitude; that the balance of the prisoners not needed in work for the use of the State shall be employed under the "piece price system;" that no more than twenty be employed at one branch of business, and that a board of appraisers, consisting of two wage workers, two business men and one merchant, with the warden as an advisory member, be appointed to appraise the value of the products of prisons, to prevent such goods going upon the market at less than market rates.

In the Essex Court on Thursday last the counsel for ex-Speaker of the New Jersey House of Assembly, John Egan, entered a plea of guilty for his client to an indictment for legislative bribery. The court set down Jan. 5 for Egan's appearance to plead in person.

Ex Alderman John E. Smith, of Jersey City, who has been for several years in the employ of the Central Railroad, has accepted a position to take charge of the new depot of the Michigan Southern Railroad at Detroit. He will start for his new field of labor in January.

Mr. Willard C. Fisk, the Private Secretary to Governor-elect Abbett, is a lawyer by profession and was a law student with Governor Abbett, and at present has charge of his Jersey City office. He called at the State Capitol and made the acquaintance of some of the State officers last week.

The special election held in the Second District of Bergen county to fill the vacancy in the Assembly caused by the death of John W. Doremus, on Tuesday of last week, resulted in the election of Jacob W. Doremus, Democrat. The deceased and his successor both being Democrats, the Democratic majority in the Legislature will not be changed from five on joint ballot.

At the school for telegraphy at Ann Arbor, Mich., one of the students has not the use of his arms, yet he sends and receives messages correctly. On the table in front of him are a pencil and stick. Taking the pencil between his teeth he can write well, and with the stick in his mouth and resting on the key he can send messages at the rate of about 17 words per minutes.

The cold wave which struck this section on Sunday last, was the coldest experienced in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant." At 3 o'clock Sunday morning the thermometer stood at 9 degrees, and at 9 o'clock it had fallen to 4 degrees, at which point it remained until about noon, when the mercury gradually arose until at 7 o'clock in the evening it marked 9 degrees. About that time it began to snow, and by sunrise Monday morning there was a fall of at least 7 inches of snow on the already deeply covered ground of white. Railroad travel was impeded and telegraph wires demolished. In some parts of Western New York the thermometer registered 25 to 36 degrees below zero.

A New York Judge who was trying a man charged with robbing a woman of her gold watch as she was stepping on a horse car, did a neat piece of cross-examination. The man claimed that the watch was his, and the woman was mistaken in identifying it as hers. Suddenly the Judge asked, "Where's the key?" The prisoner fumbled in his pocket and said he must have left it home. The Judge asked him if he had wound it up frequently with the key, and he said yes. Then a key was procured, watch and key were handed to the prisoner, and he was told to wind the watch. He opened the case, but could not find any place to use the key, because the watch was a stem-winder. The sentence was five years and six months, and the thief had not a word to say.

WESTFIELD WISPS

J. M. C. Marsh, agent for a large number of Fire Insurance Companies, has presented, the past week, to his many patrons a very fine insurance calendar for the coming year.

John L. Boulson has bought out the butcher shop recently occupied by John Nelson, on Broad street, and started on Saturday last with a choice stock of meats and poultry.

Wm. H. Edgar has engaged in the express business at the depot; Mr. G. H. Koester, our popular baggage master, having had until now a monopoly of the business. Opposition is the life of trade.

Henry L. Webb was married to Miss Susie Louise Davenport on Monday, the 24th inst., in the Episcopal church at Bayonne, N. J. They went on their wedding trip to Philadelphia and Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Stutzman have returned from their wedding trip. They spent two weeks visiting Philadelphia, Washington and other cities. Thursday, Dec. 20, a reception was given them at their residence on Clark avenue, at which upwards of fifty invited guests from Elizabeth, Plainfield and our town were present. They were the recipients of many handsome and valuable presents. Thursday, Dec. 27, the bride and groom held a second reception. We wish them much joy in their matrimonial life.

One of the stylish turn-outs on Christmas day in our town was that of Rob't Woodruff, Jr. It was a fine team of gray horses hitched tandem to a sleigh 110 years old, and positively no older, trimmed with evergreens and flags. He took several of his friends with him, including the Prof. on Billiards. From their account of the trip on their return, they could not have upset no less than a dozen times. The cause of it, no doubt, was the large horn (I mean a tin horn) they took with them, as they returned without it.

The Town Committee met at Town Rooms on Wednesday evening, Dec. 26th, at 7 p. m. Present—David Sayres, Robert R. Sinclair, Oliver M. Pierson and L. M. Whitaker, Clerk. The following overseers of roads were settled with and paid: Dist. No. 1, Jno. Hetfield, $44.31; Dist. No. 4, A. L. Ross, $183.86; Dist. No. 7, A. Wilcox, $44.36; Dist. No. 8, Jos. Moffett, $250.00 on account; Dist. No. 10, C. A. Brown, $6.30; Dist. No. 11, John R. Scudder, $83.43; Dist. No. 12, David T. Pierson, $249.42; Jas. R. Ferris, $100 for Rent of Town Room.

The Sabbath School of the Presbyterian church held their Christmas festivities on Wednesday evening, Dec. 26th. The church was handsomely decorated with evergreens and wreathes. A large motto in letters of evergreen—"Star of Hope"—was arranged over the pulpit. Two large Christmas trees were tastefully trimmed. The exercises was under the charge of the Superintendent of the School, Gilbert Leveridge. The programme was of a very interesting character, consisting of songs and choruses by the School, responsive readings by the Superintendent and School, and a very appropriate address by the Rev. Mr. Gillespie of Elizabeth, N. J. The teachers and officers of the School were the recipients of some very fine presents. Each scholar received candies and oranges in abundance. The Presbyterian church has four branch Sunday Schools: Branch Mills, Locust Grove, Willow Grove and Scudders School, which hold their Christmas festivals during the present week.

The Christmas exercises of the Baptist church Sunday School was held on Christmas morning in the main audience room of the church at the hour of 10:30 a. m. The church was filled with the children of the school, their parents and friends. The exercises were of a very interesting character, consisting of singing, recitations and remarks on the following subjects: "Christ in the Beginning" by Rev. Jos. Greaver; "Christ in the Day of Abraham," by Mr. Charles Hahn; "Christ in the Day of Moses," by Mr. C. F. Conant; "Christ in Infancy," by Mr. B. Chamberlain; "Christ in boyhood," by A. F. Grant, Jr.; "Christ's work begun," by A. Dolbier; "Christ's work finished," by Mr. J. Warren Brown; "Triumph of Christ's first coming," by Mr. E. L. Massett; "Triumph of Christ's Second Coming," by Mr. J. W. Beebe; "Christ the first and last," by Mr. A. F. Grant, the Superintendent of the school. After some beautiful presents were made to the officers and teachers of the school, the large Christmas tree loaded with boxes of candy, toys, etc., was stripped of its fruit and distributed among the children.

Among our churches none evinced a more active interest in the welfare of their Sunday-school children than the Congregational church of Christ. This was fully shown by the large and enthusiastic gathering assembled despite the inclement weather of Monday evening, to witness the Christmas festivities of the school. The attractive Sunday-school parlors of the church was well filled at 5 o'clock, and teachers and children passed two hours pleasantly in social enjoyment and in the discussion of a bountiful supper provided by the ladies of the congregation. At 7.30 the school adjourned to the church which was tastefully decorated and a large tree loaded down with Christmas fruit, presented a most brilliant appearance. After the opening services, conducted by the Superintendent, Mr. Henry Hosford, the school was favored with an appropriate address by the Rev. S. F. Massett of the Westfield Baptist church. A quartette of little girls next sang a Christmas hymn, the school singing the chorus. After a few happily chosen remarks by the pastor, he with several other workers in the school were made the pleased recipients of testimonials of regard from friends among the teachers and scholars. Mr. W. D. Porter being called upon responded by reciting with excellent effect the poem "Annie and Willie's Prayer." After the distribution of gifts to the children the exercises closed. A feature of the entertainment was the tree, the gifts with which it was adorned being contributed by the scholars, and which were afterward sent to a New York charity for the benefit of sick children, many of whom will no doubt spend a happier Christmas through the bounty of their little friends in Westfield.

On Christmas evening the M. E. church Sunday School held its Christmas festivities in the audience room. The officers having the trimming of the church in charge dispensed with the large Christmas trees which they have generally had on these occasions. The church was nicely festooned with evergreens, stars and wreaths. The lettering over the pulpit—"Christ our King,"—with evergreens and flowers, and the star of Bethlehem, was done in an artistic manner. At the hour appointed for the exercises to commence—5 p. m.—the church was not more than half filled with scholars and friends, owing, no doubt, to the severe snow-storm prevailing at that time. The organ was ably presided over by Mr. Wait. The exercises consisted of solos, choruses and responsive readings. Mr. Joseph E. Crosby of New York took charge of the singing in place of Mr. D. Sayres, who has been confined to his home by sickness for the past two weeks. One of the most interesting exercises of the evening was the offerings for the poor which each class had collected, consisting of clothing, toys, books, etc., and were brought to the platform by one from each class repeating a text, upon delivering them. There was enough received to fill a large dry-goods box which will be immediately sent to the Five Points Mission School of New York city. There was some very fine presents to the pastor and officers of the school. The children all received a large box of candy, and together with this some of the smaller ones received dolls and toys; while in the distribution of these gifts, Santa Claus arrived with a back load of oranges for the children. By request of the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. L. Hoagland, the singing exercises and responsive readings will be repeated next Sunday evening.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

A vote of thanks should be given to Messrs Ackerman and Brittin for clearing the snow from the sidewalks of the principal thoroughfares.

Mr. Myers has so far recovered from his severe attack of pneumonia, as to once more make his appearance among his numerous friends.

Bishop Scarborough will make his annual visit to All Saints Church, Scotch Plains, on Sunday, Dec. 30th. Services will commence at 10.30 a. m.

Prince's greasy face, jubilant expression, and the exultant gleam of his victorious eye, told too truly that he was the winner of the 30 lb. prize turkey, on Christmas eve.

The School entertainment at Excelsior Hall was well patronized. The Hall was packed. The pupils done admirably, reflecting great credit on their teachers. The whole entertainment was excellent. Special mention might be made of the Salutatory by Lowry Van Dyke, the recitation by Nellie Hollingsworth, and Will Hazell as King, Grace Smith as Queen and Lillie Nicholl as Queen of the Fairies, in the juvenile extravaganza of the Fairies Revenge.

Going! Going!! Gone!!! Nothing but the doleful and sonorous voice of the glib auctioneer emanated from the sale room of the departed Professor, on Saturday evening last, as the personal effects of the aforesaid Professor passed under the ruthless hands of the aforesaid auctioneer. Works of art, lather boxes, oil paintings, Turkish towels, bric a brac, fireman's hat and belt, etc. All went at a slaughtering figure in a short space of time and vanished like the bill poster's dream. But now comes the important question; who will be able to fill the departed Professor's place? Echo answers—a barberous coon from Westfield, who wields a mighty blade. He not only removes the beard, but also for the same price, takes off pimples, ring-worms, moth patches, birth marks, hair moles, and in fact all protuberances that may chance to come in front of the keen edge of his trusty razor. Give him a call. You will be pleased when he gets through with you. OLD SCRATCH.

OH! for a North Plainfield lock-up.

A HAPPY New Year to all our patrons.

NEXT year is leap year. Hold on, girls.

LAST Friday was the shortest day in the year.

PLAINFIELD's merchants did a good holiday trade.

THE "tin horn" brigade were out in full force on Christmas Day.

NOW prepare to "swear off"—and then break your promise inside of a week.

SLEIGHING has not been better in and about Plainfield for a number of years.

THE week of prayer for 1884, commences with the first Sunday in the year, January sixth.

THE Morristown Jerseyman issued a neat and attractive holiday supplement last week.

THE holiday supplement issued by the Somerset Unionist-Gazette was a credit to that establishment.

HOW would you like to work as a telegraph-line-man and roost on the top of a pole in a freezing gale?

FOR the result of a new enterprise in Plainfield, look for the word SUCCESS in our advertising columns.

AMONG the numerous candidates for the position of Sergeant-at-arms of the House, is ex-Sheriff N. K. Thompson, of Elizabeth.

IT has been asked why the City Physician is like a Congressional report, and the answer is made—"because he is a 'Pub. Doc.'"

PARTIES who drive out in cutters and sleighs without bells, should be fined, and fast driving on the streets should be stopped by the police.

SOME property owners in this city, fail like others who do not pay their taxes, to clear their sidewalks of snow as an ordinance requires. It is about time they were compelled to obey the law.

THE Delaware and Raritan Canal was closed to navigation on Thursday, the 20th inst. The water will be drawn off on the 24th and repairs will be made while this important water course remains closed.

THE N. J. Herald (Newton) very well suggests that the Democratic editors of this State organize and meet annually for effecting concert of action in political campaigns.

ICE men are bearing the ice crop already. They say the "season is so late" that the crop will probably be a small one. Then they bundle up in their ulsters and tippets and go out and see how hot it is getting.

THE Warren Journal, that staunch advocate of Democratic principles, has recently been much improved in appearance by the aid of new type, and enlarged in size. We congratulate the Journal on its prosperity.

WHO will be the President of the incoming Council now begins to be an agitated question. The present one, Mr. Robert Livingston, cannot be improved upon. He has made an excellent presiding officer.

AN exchange says that persons who receive carp from the Fish Commission should endeavor to avoid putting them in ponds to which suckers or goldfish have access, as they interbreed and make a valueless hybrid.

PARK avenue, below the Baptist church, has been the scene of many a well-contested bursts of speed between prominent fast steppers owned by residents of this city and surrounding country, since the sleighing commenced.

ABRAHAM FRAZEE, of this city, was taken with an apoplectic fit in front of Lewis' meat market on Sunday evening last and died before he could be taken to the hospital. His funeral took place from the residence of his brother Augustus, on Wednesday.

THE Elizabeth Journal scouts at the idea suggested by the Central Times, that of the formation of a new county, with Plainfield as a county seat, North Plainfield in Somerset county, and Dunellen, in Middlesex county, being added to the new county. Such a plan would not be a bad one, in some respects.

A Louisville burglar had a narrow escape last week. He attempted to break into an editor's house, but escaped before the editor could head him off and rob him. The editor has since had his name taken out of the directory and the plate off his door, and goes about with a sort of will-you-walk-into-my-parlor-said-the-spider-to-the-fly air.

THE boys who are permitted the freedom of the streets at night, are the boys who make the "hard cases," who commit crimes, and who fill our jails and penitentiaries, bringing sorrow to the parents and shame to the community in which they were raised. If there is any way to prevent it, boys should be kept off the streets at night.

THE Dover Index gave its readers the benefit of a fine holiday supplement last week, and "goes for" editor Gibson of the Era, whom he claims copied much of the excellent reading matter in his supplement, palming it off for "home product." Shake hands now, brethren, and commence the new year with a resolve not to scratch each other as you have the past year.

FOR many years the Lehigh Valley Company has had a very large business from the West, and the increasing importance of the coal trade has made it a most valuable road to its Buffalo connections. It is now an application for admission to the trunk line pool. It has a large business of its own which the Lake Shore, the Grand Trunk, and Canada Southern or any road west of Buffalo would be glad to have. At the same time it is in a position to build a line of its own to Chicago, to buy a railroad if it chooses, to give its business to any existing company, or to make a connection with a new line.

THE Allentown Democrat, gives for the benefit of its lady readers, a description of the latest of bonnets, and says, for once every woman can be her own milliner, we give full directions as to how to proceed. Take any barn-yard fowl, from a goose down to a bantam, according to your natural inclination or size of the head, slit it open from the lower part of the throat down along the under side of the body, and then remove all the fleshy parts, etc., as well as all the bones excepting those of the legs. After the skin (with all the plumage on, of course,) is dry, give it its natural shape again, and then line it with whatever material you fancy, leaving only room enough inside for your head, and the bonnet is finished with the exception of the short tie strings to the legs. Some have diamond eyes put in, and the toes inlaid with gold. Imagine a lady going to church with a big gobbler, or a peacock on her head, but yet such is the style, and you may as well be out of the world as out of fashion.

COUNCIL meeting next Monday evening.

THE days successive sleighing and more to come.

WITH this issue ends the Sixteenth Volume of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

CAPTAIN of Police Chase entertained his father last week, that gentleman making a visit here from his home in Indiana.

THE pulpit of the Crescent avenue church will be supplied next Sabbath by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Burlingham of New York city.

AT the evening service in the Crescent avenue church next Sunday, the choir will repeat a portion of the Christmas music sung last Sunday.

THE New Year's eve ball of the Saengerbund promises to be fully as successful in every particular as its past entertainments—which cannot be excelled.

AS Supt. Stearns is so cautious about furnishing interesting railroad news to the Elizabeth Journal, it had better send direct to us for any such information it may desire for its many readers.

AN enormous New Year's tree has been secured by the Saengerbunders, to be erected in its rooms and laden with presents to be distributed to those who attend next Monday evening's entertainment.

THOSE patent pillow sham-holders that have so pleased the ladies, who purchase of the agent, can now be found on sale at R. B. Fairchild's furniture store, No's. 7 and 9 Somerset street. They sell on sight.

WORTHY and respected Councilmen, you have on your ordinance book a law demanding the cleaning of sidewalks within a certain time. If it is in force, enforce it—at least along the business thoroughfares.

THE advertised date of the next entertainment of the Park avenue Baptist Course, occurring during the "Week of Prayer," it has been changed and Prof. Latham will appear next Thursday, Jan. 3d, instead of the 10th.

THE Band of Hope Christmas entertainment will take place Jan. 2d in Cutter's Hall, at 3:45 P. M. All children will be admitted free. Adults will be charged 10 cents. An interesting programme will be furnished.

NOT only does Carpenter the horse dealer keep on hand a number of special bargains as he advertises elsewhere, but he will buy you anything you may want in that line on commission and give you the benefit of his experience and judgment.

WE wonder how many people in Plainfield wished for the District Messenger Service last Monday morning when they woke up and found fourteen inches of snow on the sidewalks and had no way to order a sleigh to take them to the depot.

THE guests at the Park House was favored with a grand game dinner, Christmas, reflecting great credit upon Mr. Johnson and his Steward, Mr. E. McCormack. Salmon trout, Adirondack venison, Western grouse and wild goose were a few of the many tempting dishes set forth.

THURSDAY evening next, Jan. 3rd, Prof. Allen Latham, a lecturer of great interest, will fill the next number of the Park avenue course. His address will be illustrated with the aid of the stereopticon and made additionally entertaining by flute and xylophone solos. A rare treat is probable.

KINDLY open your hearts (and pocket-books) most respected subscriber to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST carrier who has served you so faithfully for months and months, and when he calls on you with the customary "address" at the beginning of the New Year, donate at least something towards the shoe leather he has worn out in your service.

To be prosperous speak well of your town, patronize your home merchants, read your home paper, give hearty welcome to new comers, treat with courtesy friends of your associates who may from time to time visit them, be free, be generous, be self-denying, be honorable, but remember that a slight touch of modesty out-wears the hardest cheek, and finds a home in the best and purest hearts. Keep these points in view and your community will grow with respectable prominence and your own interests will be benefited.

Anchor Lodge Election.

The annual election of officers of Anchor Lodge, F. & A. M., resulted as follows: Dr. H. D. Burlingham, W. M.; F. O. Herring, S. W.; C. M. Goddard, J. W.; J. S. Nason, Treasurer; James Lyon, Secretary.

Personalia.

Mr. Paul Abel, of New York city, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Marsh of this place.

Mr. Jacob Laing one of Plainfield's oldest as well as one of its most esteemed citizens, died at his residence on Fourth street, Saturday afternoon, suddenly of heart disease. Deceased was 67 years of age and leaves a widow and five children.

Christmas Eve at The Park House.

The Park House was kept merry all Monday night and far into Christmas morning, by its guests and their invited friends. Mr. Johnson, the proprietor, furnished music for the occasion; and later in the evening spread a gratifying supper. Besides these means of enjoyment, others presented themselves, passing the hours so quickly that some of the guests strolled homeward by the light of the rising sun.

The Week of Prayer.

The churches of Plainfield are to unite in special gospel services during the week of prayer, beginning on the evening of Jan. 6th, 1884. Each evening there will be a sermon followed by a short prayer meeting. A strong effort is to be made to arouse greater spiritual interest in the whole community, and reach the many among us who are practically irreligious. The full programme for the week's services will be announced next week.

Temperance Alliance.

The State Temperance Alliance at Camden adjourned Wednesday night of last week after adopting a constitution, by which it was provided that the alliance shall consist of representatives from all the organizations which are in sympathy with ultimate legal prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages, and who shall be total abstainers from alcoholic drinks, and other persons of the same character.

A Natural Kindler.

The Hydrocotyle gummifera grows in the Falkland Islands, as well as in Tierra del Fuego, and is known as the "gum plant," because of a vicious substance it exudes in large quantities; the sap is called "balsam," and is used by the natives of the countries where it is found as a poultice for wounds. But its most important property, in their eyes, is the ease with which it can be set on fire, even when green and growing,—a matter of no slight consequence in regions where rain falls five days out of every six. In the Falkland Island, where there are no trees, the natives often roast their beef over a fire of bones,—the very bones of the animal from which, but the moment before, the meat itself was stripped,—and they use the gum-plant to kindle this fire.—From "The Land of Fire," by Captain Mayne Reid, in ST. NICHOLAS for January.

Help the Suffering.

Contributions will be received at the principal stores, Hospital Saturday, Dec. 29th, for the support of free beds in, and to meet the current expenses of Muhlenberg Hospital. On Hospital Sunday, Dec. 30th, it is hoped that collections will be taken in all the churches.

Hotel Netherwood.

Numerous sleighing parties visited Netherwood Hotel on Christmas day, and received the attention of Proprietor Woodruff, who did everything in his power to make them comfortable. The Netherwood becomes more popular each day under Mr. Woodruff's management.

Somerset County Courts.

The Grand Jury came in on Wednesday evening, Dec. 19, finding only 13 bills of indictment. The case of Freeholders vs. Cory is being tried with the following struck jury: Walter B. Parrott, Gilbert Lane, Joseph D. Nevius, L. V. D. Shepherd, Luther Martin, Matthew Suydam, Rynier Staats, John Groendyke, Henry S. Long, Joseph H. Van Cleef, Alonzo A. Emery, Henry P. Cortelyou.

Hymeneal.

Quite a number of the intimate friends of the bride and the bride's family, gathered in the parlors of the residence of Jacob Laing, Esq., on Fourth street, Thursday evening of last week, to witness the marriage of his oldest daughter and Mr. David A. Zeagler, of Denver, Col. The ushers were Messrs. Edward Nelson and James Plummerfelt, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Wm. Manchee. The bride wore pearl Irish poplin and satin, with veil and diamond ear-rings. The presents were many and costly.

Heavy Sentences.

Judge McCormick's Christmas dinner must have disagreed with him, as his sentences Wednesday were rather severe, but fully deserved. Walsh, who at one time worked for Isaac Scribner of this city, and who rang door-bells at midnight and demanded money, was sent to the State Prison for one year. Jim Babbit who snatched a pair of ducks and a goose from Lewis' market, got two months in the County Jail. Jumbo Lewis plead guilty of the Huntington burglary, but his sentence, luckily to him, was suspended until next Wednesday.

How He Finished His Christmas.

A young resident of Harmony street, North Plainfield, appeared before Justice of the Peace, Wm E. Mattison, M. D., at his store on Somerset street, Christmas evening, and applied for a warrant against a fellow citizen. The Justice after telling the plaintiff he was intoxicated, and advising him to wait and think the matter over the next day, was called a liar and severely pounded when attempting to eject the young man from his store. The result was the latter spent Tuesday night in the Plainfield City Jail (Oh, for a North Plainfield Lock-up) and the next morning was held in the sum of $500 to appear at the next term of court.

Special Music.

The programme of Christmas music at Trinity Reformed church, last Sunday, included the following, from which selections will be made for repetition next Sunday: A Te Deum by Millard; Holden's "Calm on the Listening ear of night;" "While Shepherd's Watched" by Lloyd, and Dudley Buck's "There were Shepherds;" Gloria from Mozart's 12th Mass; a soprano solo from Elijah, "Hear ye Israel", and a hymn anthem by W. C. Williams, "Now the day is over." The perfect and effective rendering of the above was entirely satisfactory—reflecting greatly to the additional credit of the members of this, one of the city's most talented choirs.

A Deserved Gift.

The guests of the Park House desirous of showing their esteem for Mrs. C. L. Johnson, the wife of the proprietor, and expressing their appreciation of her continuous efforts in behalf of their comfort, presented that lady Christmas morning with an elegant easy chair, cushioned in garnet silk-plush. On a card accompanying the gift were the following verses, penned by Mr. R. H. Davies, the post laureate of the House:

> Your friendly guests have thought it best,
> That you should take some needed rest.
>
> Sit in this chair, part of each day,
> And drive your household cares away.
> And in your reveries, may there be
> Christmas memories of '83.

The Origin of the Potato.

The potato, originally a South American plant, was introduced to Virginia by Sir John Harvey in 1869, though it was unknown in some counties of England a hundred and fifty years later. In Pennsylvania, potatoes are mentioned very soon after the advent of the Quakers, they were not among New York products in 1695, but in 1775 we are told of eleven thousand bushels grown on one sixteen-acre patch in this province. Potatoes were served, perhaps as an exotic rarity, at a Harvard installation dinner in 1707; but the plant was only brought into culture in New England at the arrival of the Presbyterian immigrants from Ireland in 1718. Five bushels were accounted a large crop of potatoes for a Connecticut farmer; for it was held that if a man ate them every day he could not live beyond seven years.—From "Husbandry in Colony Times" in the January Century.

New Jersey Congressmen.

A Washington correspondent says Mr. Mc Adoo sits next to Holman of Indiana and, with Messrs Fiedler and Ferrell of this State, he voted for Mr. Randall for Speaker as a matter of duty to his party in New Jersey, although his personal preference was for Mr. Cox, whom he has for a long time been on the most friendly terms. Mr. McAdoo in the Democratic caucus nominated for Chaplain Rev. Mr. Fisher of the Third Presbyterian church of Jersey City, and that gentleman received a very flattering vote, although not enough of a one to nominate. Mr. McAdoo is himself of the Presbyterian faith. An amusing circumstance occurred when Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Phelps were introduced to one another the other day and then dined together in the latter's house. They had never seen each other before. The general Republican conception of the Jersey City Congressman's appearance, derived from the partisan newspapers, is that of a big, rough impetuous Irishman, flourishing a shillelah in one hand, ready to belabor the British lion, whose tail is grasped by the other. Mr. Phelps was therefore surprised to find him a slim young man, with a look as demure as that of a divinity student, polished in his manners and address and an intelligent and courteous gentleman. Mr. Mc Adoo, on the other hand, had supposed that Mr. Phelps was a sort of dandy aristocrat, proud and unapproachable. He found also to his surprise, Mr. Phelps, although a little natty in dress, is a sociable, business man, plain in his manners, and every way companionable. Mr. McAdoo said he had gone through the whole campaign in New Jersey really believing that Mr. Phelps was the dude some people had called him, but he now found him to be one of the most really Democratic men he had met in Washington. The remarks of the two Congressmen upon the erroneous conception each had formed of the other were very amusing to those who heard them.

Officers of Plainfield Council No. 711.

At the annual election for officers of the Royal Arcanum of this city, held Monday evening, the following were chosen:— Regent—David E. Titsworth; Vice Regent—Rev. E. M. Rodman; Orator—S. C. Baker; Secretary—E. E. Anthony; Collector—W. J. Leonard; Treasurer—W. H. Wheeler, Jr.; Chaplain—Rev. T. Logan Murphy; Guide—L. M. Stover; Warden—W. L. Titsworth; Sentry—Albertus Swalm; Trustees—J. E. Christian, A. Swalm, B. M. Stover.

The January Term of Court.

The first day of the January term of Court falling on New Year, Judge Van Syckle has instructed the clerk to formally open the Court on that day, and adjourn to the next day, Wednesday, when the business of the term will begin. The term will probably occupy nearly as many days as the last, and there are a number of interesting cases to come up, both in the criminal and civil branches. In the former the trial of May and Layton, the young men from Rahway, for murder, will incite much interest.

Park Avenue Course.

Allen Latham, of N. Y., will give an entertainment consisting of Illuminated Recitals aided by a powerful stereopticon, also flute and xylophone solos, in the Park avenue church, on Thursday evening, January 3d, commencing at eight o'clock. The entertainment following will be a grand concert by the Salenica Orchestra, of 20 pieces, and the last a Vocal Concert by the Brunswick Quartette of Brooklyn and New York, and J. S. Burdette, Reader. Admission 25 cents; Course Tickets with reserved seat 60 cents—for sale at Parsons & Co's Books store.

Squaring Up Accounts.

Balancing up is the order of the day, and one is surprised to find out how very much behind one can get if attention is not given each day to matters of finance. The last of the year is also a good time to balance up in regard to what has been left undone in so many different paths, and to pay up as far as possible the amounts behind. Very few come up to the mark in this respect, and therefore the balancing is general and should be the more particular. A careful balancing of accounts between men will do a heap of good if the accounts be settled in a Christian-like manner.

Vick's Floral Guide.

Here it is again, brighter than ever; the cover alone, with its delicate tinted background and its dish of gracefully arranged flowers, would entitle it to a permanent place in every home. The book contains three beautiful colored plates, is full of illustrations, printed on the best of paper, and is filled with just such information as is required by the gardener, the farmer, those growing plants, and every one needing seeds or plants. The price, only ten cents, can be deducted from the first order sent for goods. All parties any way interested in this subject should send at once to James Vick, Rochester, New York, for the Floral Guide.

The New Jersey Game Season.

On the 1st of January the game season in New Jersey will close, thus allowing all the lovers of this sort of sport one week more to enjoy it. It is the general opinion of the sportsmen that more game has been bagged since the opening of the season, which was on November 1, than in many previous years. "More than one-half of the rabbits bagged this season," said an old sportsman a day or so ago, "met their death since the recent snow, which gave us an excellent opportunity to track them right to their resting places."

The above is clipped from the Trenton Times. What an "ole" sportsman (?) that must be who enjoys such fun (!) as to track a poor little bunny to his hiding place and then lifting him out by the ears, break the creature's neck and store it away in his game bag. Truly, that man must be a grand old sportsman (?)

The Turner's Ball.

The Plainfield Turn Verein had its Fourth Annual Ball and Show Turning at Van Deventer Hall, Christmas Eve, and an entire success was the result of the efforts of those in charge. The programme consisted of club swinging by Mr. Fred Becker, bar and other exercises by members and visitors, and the wonderful acrobatic performances of Messrs. Richard and Harry Cornell. Prof Voss led the couples through a selection of round and square dances that passed the night away most acceptably. Mr. Geo. Whiteley was the efficient floor manager, and Messrs L. D. Hagaman and Alex. Gee, the Floor Committee. The Committee of Arrangements included Messrs W. H. Piker, L. E. Hagaman, Fred. Becker, H. B. Young and F. A. Pasch.

Three-Cent Stamps To Be Redeemed.

Postmaster-General Gresham has issued orders directing postmasters to exchange all unused three-cent and six-cent postage stamps issued since 1861, at their face value, and all stamped envelopes at their schedule value on January first, 1883. No mutilated stamps or envelopes will be exchanged, nor any so worn that they look as if they had been used, or the mucilage is worn off the back. These stamps and stamped envelopes will be exchanged in any quantity, great or small, for other stamps of any denomination, or for postal cards, but no money will be paid for them. This exchange will include all envelopes having printed directions on them, or having business cards or special requests to return in ten days or other such printed forms. No obsolete stamps will be exchanged.

OBITUARY.

SAMUEL MANNING.

The sad announcement was received on Saturday last, of the death of Samuel Manning, a well-known resident of this city. Being in ill health, Mr. Manning, a few weeks since, went with his family, to Thomasville, Georgia, to recuperate, and from the tone of letters received here by friends, it was supposed that he was improving in health. Only a few hours before his death, he indited a postal to this office on business matters. It was by the urgent request of his many friends that he severed business connections and went to the South-west to try the benefits of a change of air for his complaint, which was consumption. His father-in-law, Mr. E. G. Brown, of Elizabeth, on receipt of a telegram announcing his death, left for the South to bring the remains home. The body arrived in this city on Tuesday last, and the funeral services were held on Wednesday, the remains being interred in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Manning was one of Plainfield's best-known residents and highly esteemed. For many years he was in the employ of the Central Railroad Company, occupying the important position of General Car Agent. It was through his too attentive discharge of the duties of this office that his friends claim caused his ill health. He was also for several years the Treasurer of the New Jersey State Agricultural Society, and held that position at the time of his death. In his death this Society loses a valued officer. Years ago, when Gazelle Engine Company No. 1, of this city, was in its infancy, Mr. Manning was one of its most active members and served as Foreman, also Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. Manning was greatly esteemed in the community in which he resided and conducted business. He was always affable, courteous and obliging. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and kind father.

Legislators at the Trenton House.

The following members of the Legislature have secured quarters for the session at the Trenton House: Senators—John W. Griggs, of Passaic county; B. A. Vail, Union; L. Cochran, Sussex; Geo. Hires, Salem; H. B. Smith, Burlington; J. S. Applegate, Monmouth; E. S. Doughty, Somerset; A. Merritt, Camden; Wm. Brinkerhoff, Hudson; Wm. H. Miller, Cape May; Ezra Miller, Bergen. Assemblymen—E. S. Savage, Middlesex; DeW. C. Hough, Union; C. A. Cadmus, Passaic; Wm. Prall, Passaic; Theo. Budd, Burlington; C. W. Mills, Passaic; Henry Coombs, Salem; A. B. Stoney, Monmouth; T. G. Chattle, Monmouth; E. A. Armstrong, Camden; John B. Campbell, Cumberland; Chas. H. Bond, Monmouth; S. D. Dickinson, Hudson; E. Q. Keasbey, Essex; F. S. Fish, Essex.

The First Vocal.

An unpleasant evening, ushering in a drizzling snow-storm, failed to have any effect upon the size of the audience that gathered in the Park avenue church, Thursday of last week, when the Vocal Society opened its trio of concerts for the Season of 1883 84. Both the church and entire front of the sunday-school room were filled—the patrons even occupying seats so close that all harmony passed over their heads, and seats far enough back to catch the three aggravatingly distinct echoes that chase one another through the doors of the school room.

The concert opened with a desire on the part of the basses to "Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay," but as is usually the case with the first selection of an entertainment of the kind, neither the chorus nor the audience responded with alacrity. This was followed by a solo by Mr. Dennison, entitled "Because of Thee;" two part songs, "The Woodland Valley," and "He that Hath a Pleasant Face" and a trio, "Evening Rest," by the ladies of the society; all of which received only half-hearted applause. The appearance of Madame Lasar-Studwell, however, was effectual in calling forth the latent enthusiasm in the breasts of the audience. Mrs. Studwell has always been a great favorite in this city, although she has not been heard here for some years. She sang Moir's "Waiting for the King," followed by Henschel's "Lullaby," and to say that she achieved all that was expected of her is all necessary praise. The next selection, "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," almost came to grief, owing to the failure on the part of the tenors in singing their bells at the proper time, which unusual occurrence so demoralized the ladies that they came in a bar or two late. The gentlemen perceiving this after a while, waited, with their usual courtesy, for the ladies to catch up so that all might chime together. The enthusiastic feeling among the audience not having, as yet, died out, they kindly insisted upon a repetition of the performance to the great amusement of the chorus and also to their satisfaction, as it enabled them to redeem themselves and to do the piece full justice, thus making it a prominent feature of the evening. Mr. Bray, in his first appearance in this city as a soloist, made a very good impression in his rendering of Balfe's "The Day is Done;" but he refused to favor with a second performance, thinking either that he or his hearers had had enough Rheinberger. "King Eric" was not very well received, all the ardor being reserved for Pinsuti's "We'll Gaily Sing and Play," which was welcomed with as much enthusiasm as it received some years before under similar circumstances, and with Mrs. Studwell as soloist then as now. Too much praise cannot be accorded Gounod's "Messe Solennelle" both as a composition and in its rendering, which latter displayed both the diligent study of the chorus and the careful training of the conductor. There were of necessity a few mistakes, the most noticeable being made by Mr. Dennison who seemed possessed, upon one or two occasions, by a desire to pursue the even tenor of his way in a key of his own choosing, utterly regardless of several murderous glances cast in his direction by the conductor. These little mishaps, however, failed in making the Mass anything but the gem of the evening, and the audience retired feeling well paid for venturing out on so stormy a night, and perfectly satisfied in their own minds that the concert was one of the best of its kind ever given in this city. If the remaining concerts are as fine as the first, Plainfield may be justly proud of its Vocal Society.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

There will be pigeon shooting, glass ball shooting and hog guessing at the Club House, adjoining the fair grounds, on New Year's day.

THE good effects of the game laws were never more fully demonstrated than during the present season, in the large quantities of everything brought in by sportsmen, varying from deer to quail.

Plainfield can produce—so it is said—five amateur shots, who are willing to contest with five of Elizabeth's amateur shootists for the championship of the two cities. No New York Gun Club men need apply.

The incoming legislature should pass a bill compiling all the game laws into one act, so that a person would not have to search the books of a law office to ascertain the exact "open season" and penalty attached for violation of same.

The pigeon shooting match at Campbell's Club House on Christmas Day, was well attended, but the inclement state of weather seriously interfered with the sports of the day. They do say that Harry is a good shot, and it only requires a Lever to stir him up.

The open season, allowed by the laws of this State, for shooting quail, ruffed grouse and rabbit, expires on December 31st. The penalty for destroying or having in possession one of the above mentioned birds or animal, is fifteen dollars. Dealers in game should also remember this.

The Fish Laws of New York and Pennsylvania allow the capture of black bass by hook and line only between June first and January first. The New Jersey law closes the season on November first. It should be amended so as to extend the time to January first. It could do no harm.

Hundreds of rabbits have been captured by hunters since the recent heavy fall of snow. The rabbit is tracked to his lair, and one experienced can then easily pick the animal up, as they are loth to leave their nest. We heard of one person thus tracking a rabbit to a small heap of grass. He gave it a kick but no rabbit appeared. Another kick sent the dried grass to one side, and there sat Mr. Bunny, who was picked up by the ears, and afterward released. Rabbits will be scarce another year, it is predicted.

Now is the time that every one interested in the preservation of "Bob White" should look after the little fellow's interests. The recent heavy fall of snow has made it difficult for the birds to find food with which to sustain life, while the dreaded pot hunter will go forth to find a covey huddled together under some protecting bush or fence and murder the whole of them at one fatal discharge of his gun. Let the farmer and others who know of a bevy of grain near his premises, scatter quail about the out-buildings where the birds will naturally seek shelter, or if he will take the trouble to walk a little distance to where a bevy are known to resort and leave a few handfuls of food, he will not only do an act of humanity, but assist the Game Protective Societies in their efforts to restock the country with this most excellent game bird.

Two "Durned Fools" Accommodated.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 18.—An old man of fifty-eight and a rather lively-looking widow of twenty-eight were waiting for Justice Mills, when he returned to his court from dinner to-day.

"Will you marry two durned fools?" said the old man, smoothing the single lock of iron-gray hair that was trained up over his otherwise bald head.

The Justice seated himself, looked at the couple thoughtfully for a moment, and then remarked: "Trot out your fools."

"Here we are, Squire, and tie us as quick and as cheap as you can," the old man said, as he stood up with the willing bride. After a few preliminary questions the Justice ascertained that the desire for marriage was mutual with the couple, and in a very few minutes he had them securely tied. The old man put a plain ring on the woman's finger, and, after paying the necessary fee, started away, remarking to her as she leaned on his arm: "I know I'm a durned fool, but I couldn't help it."—Trenton Times.

THE BONANZA KINGS.

Speaking of the bonanza kings, a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "Flood, Fair and Mackay are brawny, full-blooded men, with good color, heightened by good living and drinking. They dress carelessly and have all the California characteristics—free and easy in address, hail fellows well met with their friends. Sharon, on the contrary, could sit for a picture of a good Connecticut deacon. He is thin, angular, undersized, flat-chested, with straight, lank hair, whitened by age, combed down smooth over his small head; a pallid face almost destitute of expression, and a moustache that adds nothing to the countenance. When he looks at you, however, you notice a pair of eyes as sharp as those of a weasel, and the quiet gestures show that the small body has a good deal of nervous energy. He always dresses in plain, black broadcloth, of ministerial cut, and this, with his white necktie and silk hat, adds to his clerical appearance. He is one of the best poker players on the Pacific coast."

Five of the gang of thieves and incendiaries, who have been the means of destroying so much property in Red Bank, this State, the past year, have been apprehended. Two of them confess to certain fires and another tells of a murder committed by the gang.

The New Jersey Court of Pardons has refused to commute the sentence of James Graves, the murderer of Edward Soden, a boy, at Newark. The same court having refused also to interfere with the sentence of Robert Martin, the Newark wife murderer. The two men will be hanged in jail at Newark on Jan. 3.

Church fairs are degenerating, at least in Canada. At a Kingston, Ont., church a few nights since there was a contest between two prominent citizens for some prize which was being voted for. The friends of one of the contestants, probably believing that there should be a similarity between church and State elections, in a country where both are united, made a rush, seized the ballot box and carried it away. It is alleged that they stuffed it full of ballots, and insist that their man won the prize.

A great many valuable discoveries and inventions have been made in Paterson. The latest is a cure for cramps without medicine. A servant girl in the Ridgway family had colic in aggravated form. Mrs. Ridgway surprised Mr. Ridgway clasping the servant around the waist, as she lay on her bed of stomachic anguish. The servant protested that the cramps didn't hurt so bad when she was thus held, but Mrs. Ridgway was unreasonable enough to scout the new cure, and hold to the time-honored remedies of paregoric and peppermint. Mr. and Mrs. Ridgway are two, now.

All up and down German Valley, the well-to-do farmers are in arms against what they term an invasion of their rights by the Postal-Telegraph Co., now engaged with a large force of men in erecting poles. Mr. John C. Welsh, President of the Hackettstown National Bank and a large real estate owner, entered his protest to the company, and followed it up by taking legal advice and warning the company against trespassing upon his property under penalty of an action. Others did the same and poles were cut down. Great excitement prevails. The planting of poles on Bull's Island, by this company, is also being vigorously contested.

FUNNINESS OF THE TIME PIECE.

If the proposed plan for numbering the hours from one to twenty-four is adopted it will sound funny to hear such talk as this: "Here it is nearly half-past nineteen? Yesterday night it was twenty minutes past twenty-one when you came home, and the night before you never came near the house till twenty-five minutes past twenty-three. This has got to stop. If you can't get home at half-past thirteen or a quarter to fourteen I'll let you have the house to yourself and go back to mother.

THE FIGHT AMONG THE SECRETARIES.

"Charles H. Barnard, of Gloucester City, the recently elected Secretary of the West Jersey Game Protective Society, has filed his bond of $2,000 in the County Clerk's office. Mr. Barnard has also secured an order from the Society's solicitor, C. V. D. Joline, upon the former Secretary, Judge S. T. Miller, directing him to turn over immediately all the books and papers now in his possession. Mr. Barnard states that he will make a thorough search of the books to find out if there are any discrepancies, as the auditors' report shows an expenditure of $700 for looking after $[illegible] worth of birds."—Philadelphia Times.

ALL FOR NOTHING

Why the Doctor was Disgusted, and what might have been done without him.

"Well, wife," said Dr. E—, as he entered his house, which was situated in a small village in central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man would n't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the simpleton had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, swallowing the steaming tea which his wife had just poured for him.

Doctor E— was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing sale of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. In all diseases capable of being affected by a plaster Benson's acts efficiently and at once. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents. Shall We Let the Child Die?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. "Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!" Well, try a bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS on that child. See the poor little fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by Brown's Iron Bitters. Your druggist sells it.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

—TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.—

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. $1 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To Clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

THE CENTURY

PROGRAMME FOR 1883-'84.

The programme for the fourteenth year of this magazine, and the third under the new name, is if anything more interesting and popular than ever. With every season, THE CENTURY shows a decided gain in circulation. The new volume begins with November, and, when possible, subscriptions should begin with that issue. The following are some of the features of the coming year:

A New Novel by George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days," etc., entitled "Dr. Sevier," a story of New Orleans life, the time being the eve of the late Civil War.

"Life in the Thirteen Colonies," by Edward Eggleston, separate illustrated papers on subjects connected with the early history of this country.

Three Stories by Henry James, of varying lengths, to appear through the year.

The New Astronomy, untechnical articles, by Prof. S. P. Langley, describing the most interesting of recent discoveries in the sun and stars.

A Novelette by H. H. Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," etc. A vivid and sparkling story.

The New Era in American Architecture, a series of papers descriptive of the best work of American architects in Public Buildings, City and Country Houses, etc. To be profusely illustrated.

A Novelette by Robert Grant, author of "Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," etc., entitled "An Average Man,"—a story of New York.

The Bread-winners, one of the most remarkable novels of the day, to be completed in January.

"Christianity and Wealth," with other essays, by the author of "The Christian League of Connecticut," etc., on the application of Christian morals to the present phases of modern life.

Coasting About the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a series of entertaining articles, profusely illustrated.

Scenes from the Novelists, Hawthorne, George Eliot, and Cable, with authentic drawings.

On the Track of Ulysses, the record of a yacht cruise in the Mediterranean, identifying the route of Ulysses on his return from the Trojan war.

"Garfield in England," extracts from his private journal kept during a trip to Europe in 1867.

"The Silverado Squatters," by Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "New Arabian Nights."

There will be papers on outdoor England by John Burroughs and others, a beautifully illustrated series on Dante, a number of papers by the eminent French novelist Alphonse Daudet, papers on art and archæology by Charles Dudley Warner and others, illustrated papers on sport and adventure, short stories by the leading writers, essays on timely subjects, etc., etc.

Subscription price, $4 00 a year; single numbers sold everywhere, at 35 cents each. All dealers receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers by postal or express order, registered letter, bank check or draft.

SPECIAL OFFERS.

To enable new subscribers to begin with the first volume under THE CENTURY name, we make the following special offers:

New subscribers beginning with November, 1883, may obtain the magazine for one year from date, and the twenty-four previous numbers, unbound, for $6 00. Regular price for the three years, $12 00.

Or, if preferred, a subscription and the twenty-four numbers bound in four elegant volumes will be furnished for $10. Regular price, $16.
